Police Blast Three Clews To Murderer Of Teacher

Screams, Message, and Mystery Phone Call Fade as Help.

Burglar Blamed; Alarm Sent Out

Parings From Finger Nails May Identify Killer of Woman, 65.

By Frank Getty.

A telephone call abruptly, inexplicably terminated; screams in the night; a message left by a murdered woman for her relatives—one by one these "clews" to the brutal slaying of Miss Mary E. Sheads, retired school teacher once cited for heroism, were dissipated yesterday.

Miss Sheads, police now are convinced, was murdered after a brief fight by a burglar who crept into her apartment at 2000 Sixteenth street northwest, from a fire escape. After felling the 65-year-old woman with a blow, the intruder strangled her, and fled into the rainy night.

The creaking of the fire escape as the murderer descended into an alley in the rear of the Balfour Apartments gave the alarm at 10:35 o'clock Thursday night, and shortly thereafter Miss Sheads' body was found in her fifth-floor suite.

Alarm Is Broadcast.

Late yesterday, a police alarm was broadcast for a slender, dark-skinned colored man, belived to be a resident of the colored district not far from the scene of the crime. He was described as 5 feet 9 or 10 inches tall, wearing a reddish or faded brown suit and dirty gray fedora hat.

To the police lookout warning was added the one significant word: "Murder."

Miss Sheads fought briefly for her life, according to Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald, and today the parings from beneath her finger nails will be examined microscopically to determine whether the skin she clawed from her assailant's face or hands was that of a white or colored man.

Furniture in Disorder.

When the flashlight of a startled motorcycle policeman first revealed the slain woman's body, after the burglar's noisy flight had started an investigation, it appeared as though her little apartment had been turned into a shambles by a terrific struggle. It developed, however, that painters and decorators had disarranged the furniture, and that the intruder's powerful hands had ended the former teacher's life abruptly.

Then a note, found among her scattered possessions, asking that a second cousin, John L. Sheads, of 4322 Kansas avenue northwest, be notified "if anything happens to

Military Law Rules Austria

"Limited" Control Ordered to Cover Crimes of Public Violence.

Vienna, May 25 (U.P.).—A "limited" martial law was proclaimed throughout Austria today by the Cabinet Council. The decree provides martial law shall cover crimes of public violence, involving malicious acts or malicious negligence.

The latter term was defined as meaning knowledge in advance of planned violence or knowledge of perpetrators without informing the authorities.

Malicious damage or disturbances of the state telegraphs, or causing explosions generally, also will be under the "limited" martial law, in a new drastic move to maintain order.

Death Race Figure Sped to Canal Zone

Victim of Appendicitis Off Galapagos Has Chance.

Balboa, C. Z., May 25 (U.P.).—William A. Robinson, American explorer, was on his way to Balboa aboard the U. S. destroyer Hale tonight, with a "fair chance" of recovery following an emergency appendicitis operation by naval surgeons off the Galapagos Islands in the Pacific.

The young adventurer's condition at 1:30 p. m. was reported "unchanged." Reports from the destroyer earlier said his condition was "critical, but favorable."

The Hale is due to reach Balboa at midnight Sunday, when Robinson will be placed in the Gorgas Hospital on the heights of Ancon Hill to recuperate. His wife, the former Florence Crane, wealthy Chicago heiress, accompanied him.

2 Slain Bank Robbers Avenge Son of Guard

Man Who Waited Chance Shoots True to Rout Six Bandits.

Chicago, May 25 (A.P.).—Six robbers who stormed the quiet little suburban town of South Holland today found themselves facing a bank guard who had waited four months to avenge his son's death.

They took a bloody defeat. Before they could fire a shot, one of their band was dead, another was mortally wounded, and a third was hit and staggering. The three others dragged him into their car and fled, completely routed.

Armed with all the paraphernalia of modern crime, the six robbers found themselves trapped. They were at the mercy of a bank guard eager to avenge the wanton murder of his only son, killed in the same bank four months ago, the police said, by the same holdup gang.

The guard, Jacob P. De Young, 53 years old, routed the robbers with five shots from a rifle. Those who could flee ran out into the fire of three or four vigilantes, recruited on five minutes' notice.

Four escaped, leaving one dead and one dying. Three hours later

'Dead Ones Don't Bother Anybody,' He Says in Own Story.

The following story was told by the guard at the South Holland, Ill., bank after he had slain one robber and fatally wounded another yesterday.

By Jacob De Young.

Chicago, May 25 (A.P.).—It's not a comfortable thought to realize that you've killed a man, maybe two, but it's some satisfaction for the fine son that you've had shot down without warning and without a chance even to surrender, much less to fight back.

When Peter was killed February 10, I made up my mind that, if I ever met any bank bandits, it would be me or them.

But when Police Chief Lagestee told me they were in town and looked like they might be going to rob the bank, I wasn't thinking of revenge. It was my duty to protect this bank and that's all I was trying to do.

So when these four fellows ran in, yelling like Indians, I just watched them for a second. One of

AAA Starts New Attempt To Widen Rule

Byrd Skeptical of Power Extension but Will Attend Parley.

By Robert C. Albright.

A new move to mollify Congressional opposition to so-called "clarifying" changes in the agricultural adjustment act, clinching vast licensing powers for the Secretary of Agriculture, and extending them to all farm commodities, was launched yesterday by the AAA.

Chester C. Davis, farm administrator, offered to work out amendments more pleasing to Senate critics, whose charges of "farm dictatorship" and "Hitlerism" challenge any effort to get action this session.

Confident they have the amendments whipped, despite reported White House approval, opponents of further extension of AAA authority eyed with skepticism the latest gesture.

Byrd Is Skeptical.

Senator Harry Flood Byrd, outspoken Virginia Democrat, frankly told Administrator Davis he saw little prospect of redrafting the sweeping "clarifications" in satisfactory form. He is open to persuasion, however, and will sit with AAA attorneys Monday.

As a matter of fact, Senator Byrd does not regard the amendments as "clarifications" at all. Regardless of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's protestation, Byrd thinks the amendments make Wallace "absolute czar and dictator over every agricultural product" and vest with him "arbitrary power to say who can live and who must die."

The Virginian is the spearhead of swelling Senate opposition to the amendments, with such influential members as Chairman Ellison D. Smith, of the Senate Agriculture Committee, and Senator William E. Borah arrayed on his side.

Bankhead for Changes.

One Senator, John H. Bankhead, of Alabama, author of the cotton-control act, spoke out yesterday in support of the changes.

"Without the power to prevent chiseling distributors from destroying the effect of trade agreements made in the interest of the producers, the law can not be properly ad-

Morton Leaves $1,500,000.

Chicago, May 25 (A.P.).—An estate of $1,500,000 was left by Joy Morton, chairman of the Morton Salt Co., who died May 9, it was revealed today when the will was filed in court. The widow and two children inherited the majority of the estate.

U. S. to Join Preliminary Naval Parley

Accepts British Proposal to Smoothe Way for '35 Conference.

By Kendall Foss.

The United States moved yesterday to take part in a series of informal conversations among the powers designed to smooth the way for the 1935 naval conference.

Instructions were sent to Ambassador Robert Worth Bingham, in London, to accept an oral British suggestion looking toward exploratory discussion. Great Britain broached the subject with Ambassador Bingham several days ago, suggesting it appears that it was about time questions dealing with the site, date and agenda of the conference as well as with certain technical matters which need preliminary threshing out be discussed.

It is understood the British Foreign Office approaches the representatives of Japan, France and Italy, co-signers of the London Naval Treaty, in the same vein. Japan has acquiesced; the others are expected to follow suit. Nothing formal is contemplated until 1935, it was emphasized in authoritative quarters yesterday. At the same time, no big conference can hope to run smoothly if the ground has not been prepared before. The forthcoming talks are to head up in London, it was learned.

London Might Be Scene.

This gave rise in diplomatic quarters to the suggestion London might be selected for the actual scene of the 1935 conference. It is the London treaty of 1930 which calls for the conference; the Washington treaty of 1922 goes on indefinitely unless denounced before the end of this year. If it is denounced, one grand conference, combining the problems previously handled separately, is believed likely. Washington restricted capital ships and aircraft carriers; London, all other types of fighting ships.

June Robles Leaves For Rest on Coast

Tucson, Ariz, May 25 (A.P.).—June Robles, accompanied by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Robles, and her sister Sylvia, 3, left Tucson quietly last night for Los Angeles. They plan to spend a month or six weeks on the Coast.

The father announced a rest was necessary to permit 6-year-old June to recover from her experiences in the desert prison pit in which she was held 19 days by kidnapers.

Roosevelt Calls on All in U. S. To Help Reduce Traffic Toll

President Roosevelt yesterday called on every individual, both motorist and pedestrian, to fulfill his share of responsibility in reducing traffic accidents.

The message from the President was read by Secretary Roper at the closing session of the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety. It said:

"I am most interested in the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety which is meeting in Washington with a view to reducing the large number of deaths, injuries and the great amount of property damage caused each year by traffic accidents. It is said that the total dollars and cents loss attributable to traffic accidents exceeds the amount of money the United States pays each year for its public school system.

"The studies being undertaken in an effort to work up uniform traffic codes and regulations, together with the most effective means and methods of reducing traffic accidents and losses are excellent.

"But uniform codes, regulations and systems are valueless unless every individual, including both pedestrian and driver, accepts and fulfills his full share of responsibility."

The drunken driver, Gov. Joseph B. Ely of Massachusetts told the conference, is becoming a more serious problem.

"Unless our present record improves," he said, "the time is not far distant when it won't be safe for any one to venture on our streets. We shrink from the thought of war, and yet war alone holds a parallel to the death and destruction of our traffic accidents."

Mayor Bernard F. Dickman of St. Louis suggested that "a stern, vigorous policy of enforcement be adopted against all traffic violations and especially against those involving intoxicated and hit-and-run cases."

The closing sessions of the conference were devoted largely to final consideration of uniform traffic rules.

Labor Dispute Bill Pushed To End Crisis

Revised Wagner Plan May Reach Senate Floor Today.

Roosevelt and Johnson Urge Its Speedy Enactment..

Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Working at top speed the Senate Education and Labor Committee early last night tentatively agreed to report favorably to the Senate a revised Wagner labor disputes bill, greatly desired by President Roosevelt and Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson as a check on the labor unrest sweeping the country.

The committee did not formally vote on the bill, but made public its tentative report, which was written in such a way as to allay the fears of those opposing the measure. The Senate group will meet again today, may make a few minor changes in the language of the bill and then report it to the Senate.

The text of the revised bill was not revealed, but both the committee report and Chairman David I. Walsh of that group made it clear that the measure has undergone sharp revision. The measure would create a five-man National industrial adjustment board to enjoin employers against unfair labor practices, determine what organization a matjority of workers in a plant desired to speak for them and to act as an arbiter in other labor disputes when requested by both sides.

Company Union Clause.

The section in the original bill outlawing company-dominated unions is retained in the new draft, but the language has been modified in an effort to meet the objections of industrialists. Under this legislation an employer would be compelled to meet with representatives of a majority of his workers, and if they reach an agreement it would be binding on all employes.

As the committeemen in shirt sleeves worked in a locked Capitol room, it became obvious that the Roosevelt Administration has become concerned over the labor conflicts daily becoming more serious in Toledo, Minneapolis, New Orleans and in the steel mills of Pennsylvania.

Moreover, it appeared that before many more days the Roosevelt Administration must come to grips with the steel industry over its flat refusal to recognize any but company unions.

Code Expires Soon.

The NRA steel code, containing a recitation of the famous section 7 (a) of that act which guarantees to workers the right to organize and bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing, expires on May 1. Undoubtedly it will be renewed with this labor clause in it. With a Nation-wide steel strike threatened for June 16, it will be up to the Federal Government to enforce this part of the agreement, otherwise industry generally will ignore it.

President Roosevelt in his semi-weekly press conference, after pointing out his Administration was doing all it could to bring peace to the strike situation, said he thought enactment of the Wagner bill would be very helpful.

He said he very much wanted the bill passed—a declaration which, if he makes it to Congressional leaders, will leave no doubt as to the prospects of the measure. An hour earlier Gen. Johnson said he favored the Wagner bill in its revised form. He particularly lauded the principle of recognizing majority rule among employes.

Bandits Get $2,000 From Mail Carrier

Maryland Rural Postman Held Up on Route.

Salisbury, Md., May 25 (Spl.).—John W. Turner, local rural mail carrier, reported to Wicomico County Sheriff G. Murray Phillips that he was held up and robbed of $2,000 this morning on his way to Nanticoke, Md., with the mail.

He said two unmasked men appeared at the roadside about 11 miles west of here and at pistol point took the package of currency.

The money, it was said, was consigned to the Nanticoke Savings Bank. Turner's gun also was taken. It is thought the robbers must have known of the currency.

Ireland Abolishes Free State Senate

Separation From Britain Held Step Nearer.

Dublin, Irish Free State, May 25 (A.P.).—Final passage today of the bill abolishing the Senate was accepted in government circles as bringing the Irish Free State a step nearer to becoming a republic.

"We want England to get out," said President Eamon de Valera, after the Dail Eireann had passed the bill. "We do not want to have anything to do with Britain. Afterward, if there is any form of association, it must be in the common interest of both."

No definite plan was mentioned, and none is expected to be put forward before March, 1935, when abolition of the Senate will become effective.

Toledo Strike Terror Spreads; Soldiers Again Fire on Rioters; Mobs Rush on Police Station

Pistol Shooting Soldiers Rout Rioters; 2 Dead, Many Hurt.

Gas and Bayonets Hold Crowd Back

Perkins Reports Peace Progress; Roosevelt Keeps Watch.

Toledo, May 25 (U.P.).—Continuous bombardment of gas bombs and shells, broken by the staccato crack of rifle or pistol, marked warfare between National Guardsmen and rioting strikers tonight as siege of the Electric Auto-Lite plant went into its third night.

Another tense night of fighting in the debris-littered "war zone" was indicated. A National Guard airplane droned overhead in the darkness.

Toledo, Ohio, May 25 (A.P.).—Khaki-clad National Guardsmen whipped out their revolvers late today and fired on a brickbat hurling crowd of 2,000 yelling strike sympathizers whom tear gas had failed to disperse.

The troops, whose rifle fire yesterday killed two and wounded several, rushed the rioters' lines in Elm street in a sudden foray after sporadic clashes throughout the day.

The crowd scattered at the first shots.

Firing as they ran, the soldiers pursued the strikers and their friends down alleys and between houses.

Almost simultaneously two truckloads of soldiers whizzed downtown to break up a shouting throng of 500 around the police station.

Rioters Promise Revenge.

"We're going back to get help and we'll come back here and strip you," screamed the rioters as they retreated.

A 12-year-old boy was hurt in an early afternoon tear gas bombardment of rioters. He was struck by a gas projectile. A 15-year-old boy was bayoneted in the thigh yesterday.

A police ambulance came shrieking to the scene. Guardsmen arrested five men.

A gas bomb which one strike sympathizer picked up and tried to hurl back at the soldiers exploded, but he was not hurt.

In Washington, Secretary Perkins of the Labor Department reported to President Roosevelt:

"We are making real headway in mediation of the Toledo strike."

Her department, she said, was in constant touch with Charles P. Taft, the Federal mediator here.

Roosevelt in Close Touch.

Mr. Roosevelt is watching the strike closely, it was made known at his semiweekly press conference, but there was no sign of alarm at the White House.

E. H. Dunnigan, assistant to Taft in attempted mediation, said after leaving a committee of automotive strike leaders:

"The mediators have presented to the union committee a proposal for ending the strike.

"If the committee approves it, the proposal will be presented to a meeting of the union members later.

Senate Warned Of 'Hi-Jacking' By Politicians

Vandenberg Says Party "Gifts" Sought for FDIC Aid.

A warning against political hijacking was sounded in the Senate yesterday as an outgrowth of charges that officeholders were making Government favors contingent upon contributions to party campaign coffers.

Senator Arthur Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, alluding to charges that Michigan politicians were soliciting campaign funds from officials of banks seeking admission to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, read a letter from Leo Crowley, chairman of the FDIC, declaring that he would not tolerate any political interference with the deposit insurance corporation's activities.

"I hope that if any political hijackers shall so far tresspass upon the hopes and fears of those who must deal with the FDIC, as to renew this type of chiseling anywhere in the United States, this forthright statement of the officers of FDIC will serve to reassure the intended victims that they need pay no heed or tribute to any such collectors," Vendenberg said.

Horatio Abbott, Democratic National committeeman for Michigan, recently resigned as collector of internal revenue at Detroit, following charges his assistants had sought poltical contributions from business men. Two of his assistants were suspended and evidence turned over to the Department of Justice.

Senator Vandenberg told the Sen-

Sofia, Bulgaria, May 25 (A.P.).—Members of the cabinet expelled from office by the coup d'etat today were received at a farewell audience by King Boris. Officers of the dissolved parliament also visited the monarch.

The audiences were regarded as an honor unique in the history of revolutions.

Betty Boyd's Divorce Invalidated by Court

Los Angeles, May 25 (A.P.).—A final decree of divorce, granted last year to Betty Boyd, film actress, from Charles Henry Over, jr., broker, was set aside today by Judge Charles Bogue, who held a fraud had been perpetrated on the court because of evidence the couple had lived together since the divorce proceedings were started.

Over opposed Miss Boyd's move to have the decree set aside.

Jeering Mob Forces Naked Youth to Lead

Strike Breaker Is Mauled, Stripped and Made to March Downtown.

Toledo, Ohio, May 25 (U.P.).—A rowdy parade of strikers, headed by a cringing, terrified naked strike-breaker, marched into downtown Toledo late today as violence threatened to spread from the factory district where two men fell dead and several wounded before National Guard rifles yesterday.

The strikers seized the youth, identified as one who had taken a job in the Electric Auto-Lite plant after the walkout, stripped him of his clothes and compelled him to march at their head through the business section of the city—a tragi-comic drum major to the rabble marchers.

All Toledo threatened to become a battleground tonight as rioting strikers carried their violent demonstrations to downtown streets.

A 12-year-old boy, John Paren, was injured and taken to a hospital. National Guardsmen, who for two days had guarded the big Auto-Lite plant against repeated assaults by cursing, brick-throwing strikers, were called to aid city police to hold the downtown demonstrators in check.

Rioters massed around central station, where the beaten strike-breaker was taken after being rescued by a corner policeman. The mob pressed against ranks of youthful militiamen who joined arms in a semicircle around the station.

Stephen Kardos, a youth with violently red hair, who was said to be a strike-breaker, attempted to enter a taxicab near the scene. Strikers spied him and pulled him from the cab. He broke away and started sprinting down the street, but was overwhelmed by force of numbers.

Rioters beat the youth unmercifully, then stripped him of all cloth-

General Strike On Labor-I.C.C. Building Called

Carpenters' Walkout May Be Ended by Wage Compromise.

Union troubles in Washington's crippled building and ice cream industries reached a new chaotic level yesterday when a general strike was called on the harassed Labor-Interstate Commerce Commission Buildings, and ominous developments presaged sympathy walkouts in ice cream plants. Meanwhile, compromise terms, which may or may not end the carpenters' strike, were reached.

At a meeting late yesterday in the District Building, arranged by Commissioner George E. Allen, representatives of union carpenters and the Master Builders Association agreed to a wage increase of 25 cents, to $1 an hour and retention of the present 40-hour, 5-day week.

The compromise will have to be voted on by the full membership of the carpenters' district council. A meeting probably will be called for Monday or Tuesday night. The carpenters have been on strike since May 1, demanding a 30-hour week and $1.37½ cents an hour.

The agreement is final, so far as the Master Builders Association is concerned. Its labor committee, headed by J. R. Skinker, had authority to effect a compromise, a power which was not conferred by the carpenters on their negotiators. About 400 men are affected.

Meanwhile, Michael J. McDonough, president of the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor, yesterday ordered all affiliated trades on the Labor-I. C. C. job to strike, as the result of a jurisdictional dispute between two rival international unions.

His order was transmitted to the Washington Building Trades Council, local unit of the department. Between 300 and 400 union workmen are not expected to report for work Monday.

That McDonough's edict will be defied by some of the union crafts.

Former District Woman Killed

Virginia Native Is Fatally Injured in Maryland Highway Crash.

Trapped at the wheel of her automobile when it was struck by a Massachusetts car, Miss Lillian Pace, 58, of 300 South Spruce street, Lyon Park, Arlington County, Va., was injured fatally at Rising Sun, Md., early yesterday. She was a retired physics teacher, formerly on the faculty of Central High School here for 17 years.

Officials at Rising Sun said Miss Pace, en route to visit her niece, Mrs. Prescott Willis, in Swarthmore, Pa., attempted a left turn at the time of the crash. Police held Robert H. Burbank, of Pittsfield, Mass., driver of the death car, under $1,000. He later was released after a coroner's inquest held the accident unavoidable.

Internal injuries caused Miss Pace's death, the inquest revealed.

A native of Richmond, Va., Miss Pace had lived for 25 years with Miss Margaret R. Sammons. Four years ago they moved to Arlington County.

Another niece, Miss Lillian Streeter, of Chevy Chase, Md., and a nephew, Dr. Peyton S. Lewis, of Richmond, Va., survive. Her body will be taken to Richmond for burial tomorrow.

Prague, Czechoslovakia, May 25 (A.P.).—Richard Washburn Child, President Roosevelt's economic adviser in Europe, arrived here today by airplane from Vienna. He will call on President Masaryk.

Compromise On Stock Bill Is Due Today

Conferees Believed Ready to Accept Margin Limit Plan.

(United Press.)

Chairman Duncan U. Fletcher of the Senate Banking Committee predicted last night that Senate and House conferees today would reach a complete compromise agreement on controversial sections of the stock market regulation bill.

Usually reliable sources indicated the conferees might accept provisions of the House bill fixing basic margin requirements, while the House would agree to the Senate plan setting up a special commission to regulate exchanges.

Aside from the margin and commission sections, the conferees already have adjusted differences.

The House margin provisions would lay down a general standard that the purchaser of securities should be required to pay at least 45 per cent cash. The requirement, however, would be subject to revision by Government agencies.

The Senate bill eliminated all margin figures and would leave their determination to a new stock exchange regulating commission. The House bill proposed to have the Federal Trade Commission the regulatory body. President Roosevelt expressed preference for both the house margin and commission provisions.

During week-long conferences, the House and Senate seemed so far apart on these issues that it was believed the conferees would have to report disagreement and toss the questions back to the Senate for new instructions.

The reported compromise plan still will be subject to ratification by both houses. It may cause sharp debate in the Senate, where feelings still are ruffled by omission of Senator Carter Glass (Democrat), Virginia, from the list of Senate conferees. Glass was sponsor of the special commission plan.

It was believed, however, that if the conferees report a compromise agreement, it will indicate they have obtained advance assurances that it is satisfactory to a majority in the Senate.

All Labor-I. C. C. Workers to Strike

unwilling to be thrown out of work because two internationals can not agree on setting of acoustical stone in the Labor-I. C. C. auditorium, was clearly indicated by several business agents.

Casting and setting of the disputed acoustical stone, which is being done by plasterers and marble setters affiliated with the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers International Union, will not be interrupted. Neither were ironworkers and electricians employed on the interconnected buildings told not to report for work Monday.

An official of James Stewart & Co., contractors for the monumental $12,000,000 project, said he had knowledge of only the painters being notified they were to join the sympathy strike.

For six months the dispute between the Operative Plasterers and Cement Finishers International and the B. M. P. I. U. over setting acoustical stone in the Labor-I. C. C. auditorium has raged.

In the beginning the stone was cast on the job by members of the operative plasterers' groups and set in place by marble setters, who are in the other international. Then the casters demanded that the setting be divided 50-50 between members of their own union and B. M. P. I. U.

Work Not Interrupted.

The marble setters refused to yield and the plasterers went on strike. After remaining out several days they returned, pending expected arbitration by the two internationals. Nothing was done about it, so the walk-out was resumed May 16.

The stone work was not interrupted, however, for plasterers affiliated with the B. M. P. I. U. were put to work casting the product and the marble men continued to set it. In issuing his sympathy strike order yesterday, McDonough is said to have referred to the working plasterers as strikebreakers, although they are bona fide union men and members of the A. F. of L.

Bone Dry South Carolina Issues 2,400 Licenses

Columbia, S. C., May 25 (AP).—Although South Carolina is "bone dry" under State statutes, approximately 2,400 Federal licenses to retail alcoholic beverages have been issued to South Carolinians.

Officials at the office of R. M. Cooper, collector of internal revenue for South Carolina, said today that 2,400 persons "in all parts of the State" had paid the Federal retailers' tax of $25 and met Federal requirements for dealing in liquors.

Woman Makes Quilt With 9,554 Sections

Battle Ground, Wash. (U.P.).—Mrs. John Jamison, of Battle Ground, had read so much of the large number of pieces contained in various quilts, that she completed a log-cabin quilt with a total of 9,554 pieces.

The center of each 3½-inch block is a piece just one-quarter of an inch square. Quilting has been a hobby of Mrs. Jamison for some time, she said.

300-Year-Old Bible May Go to Museum

Baldwin, Wis. (U.P.).—A 300-year-old Martin Luther Bible valued at $3,000 will be sold to a museum unless one of the two young sons of the Rev. Herman Preus Nordby, of Baldwin, becomes a Lutheran minister.

The Bible was printed in Nurnberg, Germany. It has more than 2,000 pages, nearly 1,200 wood block illustrations and weighs 25 pounds.

ate of an alleged incident at Plymouth, Mich., in which George Woods, an assistant to Abbott, was accused of soliciting contributions for the Democratic party. Vandenberg said that it had been reported to him that Woods, in soliciting funds, has told one prospective contributor:

"You know that all applications for deposit insurance pass over our desk."

He said the deposit corporation apparently was being "prostituted to political cash register purposes." He declared this was one Government activity in which it would be "near treason" for political activity to enter.

Crowley Pledges Justice.

Crowley, in his letter to Vandenberg, said:

"I would not countenance any interference with the operation of this corporation from outside sources, believing that all applications for membership to the fund should be considered strictly on their merits, with fair and equitable treatment to all."

Senator Vandenberg added that H. N. Stronck, who represented the Deposit Insurance Corporation in its Michigan dealings, declared that the only contact which his office had relative to the matter of qualifying banks in that State was with R. E. Reichert, Michigan State banking commissioner. He denied knowledge of any activities by Abbott or Woods relating to FDIC.

Stronck in a report on the Michigan charges said:

"I can safely state that I know of no case where any of the activities of the FDIC in connection with the admission of banks were subject to any form of political censorship.

Politicians Not Consulted.

"That no applications for insurance in Michigan or in any other State were submitted by this corporation to Democratic National committeemen.

"That neither in Michigan nor elsewhere were Democratic National committeemen or any other political officers consulted with or advice asked as to the qualifications of banks for admission to the insurance fund, and that the cases were decided strictly upon technical and legal requirements."

D.C. Hebrews Plan Service

Memorial Rites Sunday to Honor Jewish War Dead.

Leaders of Washington Hebrew congregations and distinguished speakers will take part in memorial services honoring Jewish war dead in District cemeteries.

Conducted under joint auspices of Vincent B. Costello Post of the American Legion; Washington Post, No. 58, of the Jewish War Veterans of the United States, and the Jewish Welfare Board, the services will be held at 1:30 p. m. in the cemetery of the Washington Hebrew Congregation, Congress Heights, D. C.

Speakers will include Representative Robert Luce, of Massachusetts, and Admiral Clark Howell Woodward, U. S. N., member of the Navy General Board. Held annually for the past 15 years by members of Costello Post, the services will be presided over this year by Dr. Ivy Pelzman, commander of the Washington Post of Jewish War Veterans.

Rabbi Solomon A. Metz, of Adas Israel Synagogue, will offer the opening prayer; Rabbi Abraham Simon, of the Washington Hebrew Congregation, will call the roll of the departed; Cantor L. Novick, of Adas Israel, will chant the prayer for the dead; Rabbi Julius T. Loeb will give the solemn prayer for the dead, and Rabbi L. Volkman, of Washington Hebrew Congregation, will deliver the benediction.

Musical selections will be rendered by an Army band and vocal artists.

ministered for the welfare of the producers," Senator Bankhead said.

He declared it "unfair" to refuse powers sought by Secretary Wallace, then hold him responsible for unsatisfactory results.

Meanwhile, it was apparent that any effort to pass the amendments in their present form might result in another adjournment impasse, blocking leaders in their move to get Congress out of town by the middle of June.

At Standstill in House.

Although Senator Smith's Agriculture committee favorably reported the Wallace measure, and it is now pending on the Senate calendar, no hearings have been held in the House.

Chairman Marvin Jones of the House Agriculture Committee will take no steps in the House until the Senate acts, he said yesterday, withholding comment.

It is significant that although Representative William L. Fiesinger (Democrat), Ohio, introduced the amendments soon after they were offered by Wallace, he immediately withdrew them. He said he had not studied the changes and did not realize their scope. Interested primarily in problems of milk distribution, he introduced another bill covering solely this question. So the Wallace amendments are not now formally before the House.

In contrast to the AAA request for clearer and wider licensing powers, no bid has been made by the National Recovery Administration for extension of the unused NRA licensing authority expiring next month. President Roosevelt has hinted the NRA licensing power would not be extended.

Dangers Pointed Out.

Yesterday's conference with Farm Administrator Davis left Senator Byrd cold to modified proposals for strengthening Secretary Wallace's licensing powers. Although unconvinced, he will listen to AAA proposals for revision of the amendments submitted. Just what these might be, Davis did not disclose.

Here are a few of the things the Virginian charges the pending amendments might do:

When a farmer draws Government money for acreage in a particular crop from production, the Secretary of Agriculture could control what he plants and produces on his entire farm.

Wallace would have authority to compel every person handling an agricultural commodity or the producer who processes or distributes the commodity raised on his own land, to come to Washington for a license.

Too Much Like Russia.

Wallace could establish whatever restrictions he desired in distribution of these products, even to the extent of directing the markets to which the products can be shipped.

In the matter of penalties, the courts could not determine the fine, but the Agriculture Secretary could say arbitrarily anyone violating restrictions be penalized up to $1,000 a day.

Said Byrd:

"I regard this authority as un-American and better suited for the Soviet government of Russia than the democracy of America, where we still have, at least in theory, a written Constitution."

Belle Isle Will Have Miniature Railroad

Detroit, Mich. (U.P.).—A survey for a proposed miniature railroad on Belle Isle, haven of recreation in the Detroit River, has been begun by John Ross, chief engineer for the Detroit Street Railways.

The proposed 6-mile route would follow a course through the middle of the island, with stops at the zoo and other places of interest. Engineering problems involved include a number of road and canal crossings.

Traffic Drive Of Merchants Starts Monday

New Downtown Parking Rules to Be Strictly Enforced.

A program of public education to better downtown traffic conditions will start Monday under the joint planning of downtown merchants and trade bodies, the District Commissioners, the director of traffic and the police department.

Yesterday representatives of each gathered in the office of Melvin C. Hazen, president of the Board of Commissioners, and drafted final arrangements for the drive.

In a proclamation the Commissioners called upon all automobile operators "to observe all traffic laws and regulations in the District and particularly the regulations recently promulgated on F, G and Seventh streets in the downtown area.

These regulations provide for one hour parking from 9:30 a. m. until 4 p. m., and for no parking between 8 and 9:30 a. m. and 4 and 6 p. m., except on Sunday. They also provide spaces for loading and unloading of both passengers and freight.

The proclamation concluded with this statement: "These regulations have been established for the benefit of the public in general in order that they may transact necessary business on these streets. The success of these regulations depends upon compliance by drivers of motor vehicles and the general public."

Among those from the Police Department who attended were Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, Inspector B. A. Lamb, and Lieut. Milton D. Smith. Representing the merchants were Dorsey Hyde, Sylvan King, Wallace Robertson, A. E. Van Hagen, E. D. Shaw, C. D. Kaufmann and A. J. Sundlun. Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer and his assistant, M. O. Eldridge, were present.

The downtown regulations and the additional rule against double parking will be strictly enforced beginning Monday, it was announced. Lieut. Smith declared that 14 extra police officers will be on duty.

The traffic program will be advertised in newspapers and in a series of radio broadcasts next week. In the advertising campaign the public will be instructed as to the new regulations and asked to cooperate.

Britain Fears World Naval Race in 1935

Presses for Agreements Prior to Conference Next Year.

London, May 25 (AP).—Frank realization that Great Britain, France and the United States might be thrown into a naval armaments race is believed here to have prompted the British government to sound out world capitals on the advisability of starting a series of discussions in preparation for the 1935 conference.

While officially the government has taken no notice of the widespread reports that Japan will denounce the 5-5-3 ratio, the opinion in informed circles here was that the only alternative would be building ship for ship if the Nipponese empire should attempt to raise the ratio to 5-5-5.

Although Britain has taken the initiative in sounding out opinion on the outlook, the official view is that preliminary discussions will not go far toward settling problems which will arise within the next year.

Nevertheless, the value of the preliminary talks has been enhanced, Britain believes, by the "favorable" reply through Ambassador Robert W. Bingham to the query as to whether the United States would be willing to take part in preliminary preparations.

No replies have been received from similar inquiries to Tokyo, Paris and Rome.

No plan for a preliminary conference is involved, but rather for exchanges through established diplomatic channels.

Japan Is Willing To Join in Talks

Tokyo, May 25 (AP).—Foreign Office authorities said today Japan will participate in diplomatic exchanges with Great Britain and the United States in preparation for the 1935 conference.

The invitation of Britain to participate in these discussions was accepted, it was said, and Ambassador Matsudaira will present the Japanese viewpoint at London.

Views also will be exchanged in Washington between Ambassador Saito and American officials.

to improve the outlook for the naval conference as much as possible, the Administration turned to another and more immediately threatening cloud upon the peace horizon—the Chaco war.

Armed with Congressional authority to forbid the sale of munitions to Paraguay and Bolivia, officials weighed the advisability of issuing an appropriate proclamation right away or waiting to see if international action will materialize at the special League council meeting in Geneva Wednesday.

Delay Is Foreseen.

Primarily the Administration sought the power to embargo shipments of arms so as to be able to participate in concerted action. It is believed officials intend to wait (though the proclamation is ready) rather than to jump the gun in advance of other countries' embargoes.

Ambassador at Large Norman Davis, due in Geneva on Tuesday to attend a meeting of the disarmament conference, is expected to receive instructions to pledge American cooperation in an international arms embargo at the special Wednesday meeting.

Thirty-one nations have been asked to join the embargo against the Chaco war. They include the producing countries as well as those nations through whose territories arms would have to pass to reach the war zone. Optimism prevails here on the nature of the response to the League's appeal for embargoes.

7,000 Men Working On Mexican Road

Push Drive to Complete International Highway.

Mexico City (U.P.).—Seven thousand men are making a drive to complete the international highway between here and Laredo, Tex., according to Leopoldo Farias, director general of Mexico National Highways.

Until recently only 3,000 men were working on the uncompleted sectors of the road, but the desire to finish the highway at the earliest moment caused the increase.

Farias said that in addition to the new man power 150 trucks and six steam shovels have been added to the equipment for the road.

It is expected that the highway will be available to the average autoist by next spring. The road is passable now, but Mexican officials and W. H. Furlong of the San Antonio Chamber of Commerce, who is closely allied with development of the road, advise against anyone but the most experienced driver attempting it.

Sultan of Sula Suggests Silent Salute Is Snub to a Sovereign

Manila, May 25 (AP).—Once the ruler of an insular kingdom of 500,000 warlike Mohammedans, the Sultan of Sulu, whose power under the American flag has been fading year by year, waited here today for an apology from the government of the British North Borneo for its failure to salute him on his visit there last February.

Still clinging to the belief he is entitled to the honors of royalty, the Sultan recently asked North Borneo authorities why they did not fire the customary 20 guns for him and his adopted daughter, the Princess Dayang Dayang.

North Borneo, once a part of the Sultan's realm, still technically recognizes his spiritual authority, but all the secular power that once was his now belongs to the United States and Great Britain.

In contrast with his days of pomp and power, the aged Sultan, by name and title Hadji Muhamad Jamulu Kiram, Sultan of Sulu, Sultan of North Borneo, Judge of Agama and Appointive Senator of the Philippine Legislature, now lives in modest circumstances.

How many wives he had under the Moslem institution of polygamy is a matter of conjecture, but in recent years he has been credited with three. He is in his seventy-first year and without a direct heir. His affairs are largely in the hands of the Princesses Dayang and Tarhata, the latter a niece who was educated in America.

From the Philippine government, the British North Borneo government and religious contributions, the Sultant receives an annual income estimated at $12,000.

As a member of the Philippine Senate, appointed by former Governor General Dwight F. Davis, the Sultan visits Manila frequently.

In 1915 the Sultan by treaty formally renounced all claims to secular power.

Plane Repaired For Rome Flight

Pond, Sabelli Near London After Breakdown.

Heston, England, May 25 (AP).—Capt. George Pond and Lieut. Cesare Sabelli, transatlantic fliers, turned their orange monoplane over to mechanics at this airdrome on the outskirts of London today with instructions to get it ready for a flight to Rome.

The aviators flew here from Cardiff, Wales, where they were forced down yesterday in an attempted nonstop flight from Dublin to the Italian capital.

Throughout the 120-mile trip clouds of smoke puffed out around the hub of the propellor shaft, and on three occasions the fliers looked around for a place to make a forced landing.

Suit Filed in Crash.

Suit for $25,000 damages was filed against Benjamin W. Bolinger, 627 Franklin street northwest, yesterday by Edith Johnson, 1319 Kenyon street northwest. The suit charges the plaintiff was injured February 24 when an automobile driven by John Bolinger, son of the defendant, collided with another at Thirteenth and S streets northwest.

Two Drinks Made Her a Bride, Says Regretful Heiress

Los Angeles, May 25 (AP).—Merry Fahrney Pickering Van Eiszner, heiress seeking a film career, testified in Superior Court today she drank a brandy liquer and half a whisky highball in a Chicago speakeasy last November and awakened in a hospital, a bride.

Her testimony was given in her suit for annulment of her marriage to Frank Van Eiszner, Rdvertising man.

Van Eiszner is contesting the suit by deposition and was represented in court by Attorney Henry Daugherty.

"I never was proposed to by Frank Van Eiszner," the patent medicine heiress said. "I wanted to marry another man, an Italian, Count Gorgi de Gorgio. I never knew a thing about the ceremony that made me the wife of Frank aVn Eiszner."

Mrs. Van Eiszner testified she had been married once before, to Hugh Pickering.

Troops Lay Down Gas Barrage Against Toledo Strikers

Drivers' Truce Action Waited In Minneapolis

Conference of Truckers to Bring Decision on Strike.

Minenapolis, May 25 (AP).—Peace reigned in the truck drivers strike today, awaiting a decision of the strikers on terms of a proposed settlement.

This conference was expected to bring the latest peace offer in the strike that caused one death, injuries to 100 persons and more than 200 arrests in the 11 days strikers have kept commercial trucks in garages in enforced idleness.

Union leaders have announced they would present the last of a series of settlement plans, drawn up in all-night conferences between truck drivers and owners directed by Gov. Floyd B. Olson, to their membership. They denied they had indicated approval, and said the plan would be submitted without recommendation.

A new point of contention arose today—the definition of a truck driver. Strikers' spokesmen have objected to the code definition, insisting it be broadened to include their helpers and taxi drivers, both groups embraced in the truck drivers' union.

Truck owners' representatives have declined to comment on the present peace effort, which contemplates an arbitration board of seven members with blanket powers to adjust differences between employes and employers, until they receive definite word from the strike committee. The arbitration board would consist of three employers, three employes and a seventh member mutually chosen.

The differences which the negotiations of the last 24 hours have sought to adjust include wages, working conditions, reinstatement of strikers, seniority and no discharge because of union membership.

National guardsmen still were on hand.

Capper Urges District Vote In Senate Talk

Kansas Senator Points Out Capital Population Ranks 8 States.

Voting representatives for the District in the House, Senate and Electoral College was advocated in the Senate yesterday by Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), of Kansas, ranking minority member of the Senate District Committee.

Refusal of Congress to grant the vote to the people of the District, Senator Capper said, is "a glaring violation of the theory of republican government."

"Based upon sound American principles, there seems to be no room for a difference of opinion as to the necessity, as well as the absolute justice, of granting the right of voting representation to these, our fellow Americans, in the National Government, which legislates for them both locally and nationally, which taxes them and sends them to war," Senatro Capper said.

Ton Continue Fight.

Admitting there was no prospect of adoption at this session of his pending Constitutional amendment, providing votes for the District, the Senator served notice he would press a similar measure for action in the next session, and predicted its adoption in the near ture.

The pending Capper joint resolution provides for a Constitutional amendment which would have to be ratified by the States.

"There is no matter affecting the National Capital community which is of as vital importance to the half million inhabitants of the District of Columbia as this proposal, whether viewed from either a local or a National angle," Senator Capper told the Senate.

"The District of Columbia, according to the 1930 United States census, has a population of 486,869, which is greater than that of eight of the sovereign States of the Union—New Hampshire, Idaho, Arizona, New Mexico, Vermont, Delaware, Wyoming and Nevada. The District's population exceeds that of Delaware and Wyoming, combined; Delaware and Nevada, combined; Wyoming and Navada, combined, and Vermont and Nevada, combined. Each of these combinations is represented in the Senate by four Senators, and in the House of Representatives by two Representatives, while the District of Columbia has no representation in either body."

Court Order Ends Ed Mays' Control Of Continental Life

St. Louis, May 25 (AP).—The last of the companies he once dominated today slipped fro mthe control of Ed Mays, one-time Arkansas farm boy, when the Continental Life Insurance Co., with nearly $100,000,000 of insurance in force, was decreed insolvent and mismanaged.

Climaxing a bitterly-contested dissolution suit filed last January by R. Emmet O'Malley, State superintendent of insurance, Circuit Judge O'Neill Ryan ruled the company's capital is impaired and its liabilities exceed its assets.

Judge Ryan said it was his opinion O'Malley may proceed either to dissolve the company or operate and rehabilitate it.

Judge Ryan expressed his belief that the company's condition was such "as to render its future proceedings hazardous to the public and to those holding its policies."

If they accept it, the strike will be ended."

Meanwhile, Card Lind, secretary of the Cleveland Regional Labor Board, reported to the National board in Washington that a settlement plan was being arranged.

Specific points of dispute, he said, will be left to arbitration later.

Seek Raise, Recognition.

The strikers have demanded a 10 per cent pay increase, recognition of their union and seniority rights.

Reports that quantities of dynamite had been smuggled into the city last night brought a careful scanning by police and the troops of any suspicious movements.

"Appeals have been sent to the radical elements in nearby cities to send all available men into Toledo to aid in the rioting," asserted J. Arthur Minch, manager of the Auto-Lite Co.

This information and the reports of the dynamite, Minch said, came to him from a detective agency.

The fourth successive day of rioting found the guardsmen, in steel helmets, taking the barrage of missiles head down. They fixed their bayonets and guarded the strike area with machine gun nests.

Gas Greets Crowds.

Whenever a crowd became too large or unruly, the troops hurled tear bombs.

John Rummell, 23, a spectator, was cut on the head when a projectile exploded. He was rushed to a hospital.

Soldiers temporarily ran out of gas bombs late in the afternoon. They picked up bricks and stones which the rioters had hurled at them and threw the missles back into the opposing lines.

The skirmish see-sawed back and forth near the intersection of Champlain and Elm streets. First one side then the other would fall back, only to advance again.

While the fighting raged, a committee of strike leaders discussed the settlement proposal in a hotel room and the union itself began a meeting in Memorial Hall.

After numerous conferences, Taft reported "real progress," but said negotiations necessarily would be slow.

He said peace could not be achieved in an atmosphere of violence.

Troops to Leave.

Although Adjt. Gen. Frank D. Henderson sent new forces into the city during the day, the commander said a plan was being formulated to withdraw troops as soon as possible. Soldiers first came yesterday, and their number was swelled to the thousand mark today.

It was after troops appeared that the worst of the rioting occurred.

Meanwhile, protests were received at Gov. White's office in Columbus against the use of troops in the situation. White was in Michigan on a fishing trip.

The protests came from various labor groups in Ohio, Detroit, New York, Brooklyn and other cities. In one telegram, the threat of a steel workers' strike in the Youngstown district appeared. A telegram signed by Joe Dallet, secretary of the district board of the Steel and Metal Workers Industrial Union at Youngstown, demanded "your pledge not to use troops against the steel workers when they strike next month."

Newcomers Watched.

As police met trains and buses, military authorities mingled with the crowd near the plant trying to determine the truth of reports that the ringleaders of the crowd were Communist organizers. Maj. D. W. Conelly, after dressing in civilian clothes and circulating among the crowd, expressed the opinion that 90 per cent of those in the crowd had Communist sympathies.

Shouts to the soldiers of "Why do you guys protect Wall Street?" were interspersed with stronger language. But actual physical combat was half-hearted. It lacked the savagery which yesterday resulted in rifle fire.

Officials of the plant said that only a few of those who milled about in the streets were former employes. The plant was closed.

Many of the 53 persons arrested yesterday at the height of the rioting were released today on bond.

The peace negotiations did not halt the threat of a general strike. A total of 51 union groups in the city have gone on record favoring the move.

ing except his necktie and shoes and forced him to lead their parade down the street.

Hundreds of strikers, many of them young girls, jeering and laughing, followed in the wake of the naked youth. The parade was headed past the county jail while crowds of citizens gasped at the shocking scene.

Kardos sprinted away from his attackers and took refuge behind a corner policeman as the parade swept away from the jail. Rioters surged about the patrolman and for a moment it appeared a pitched battle could not be avoided.

Scout Cars Pierce Crowd.

The rioters stepped back, however, when the policeman rang headquarters from a call box. He towered over the shivering youth until scout cars, with sirens screaming, burst through the heavy traffic to the scene.

Squads of National Guardsmen were summoned hurriedly from the plant area to protect the police station from the howling mob. The troops arrived just as patrolmen brought the youth to the station, followed by the crowd.

As the boy was carried into the building by a husky policeman, the crowd began to mutter and Guardsmen were hard pressed to prevent rioters from breaking through the lines.

Low-hanging clouds of gas covered the strike area.

During an unruly gathering at Elm and Michigan streets, one of the riot sectors, a gas bomb was discharged into an alley next to an apartment building. A moment later a man and woman rushed from the building, tears streaming from their eyes.

Woman Pleads for Baby.

The woman ran up to the troopers and cried:

"My baby is near enough dead now without that gas."

She alternately pleaded with and threatened the Guardsmen.

The crowd in the background set up a wild booing and shouting, crying "murderers" and "baby killers" at the Guardsmen.

An old woman and a small girl, living in adjoining houses, were overcome by gas when their homes were used as barricades by brick-throwing rioters. The child was Rita Jane Hille, who has suffered with anemia for some time. The woman was Mrs. Emma Johnson, 60, an invalid for years. She was unconscious four hours. Both were given emergency treatment by neighbors and were expected to recover.

Shanghai, May 25 (AP).—American church and consulate officials sent Bandit General Ho Lung's ransom collector back home empty-handed todya, and looked to the Chinese authorities to effect the release of the Rev. Howard Smith, missionary, who was kidnaped May 8.

The representative of the bandit general demanded $35,000 and $3,500 worth of medical supplies.

'94 High School Cadet to View This Year's Competitive Drill

Brig. Gen. Smith Will Be Aid to Dern at Event Next Week.

A victorious Washington high school cadet captain of '94, now a brigadier general, will take a prominent part in the annual competitive drill of the High School Cadet Corps Monday and Tuesday at Griffith Stadium.

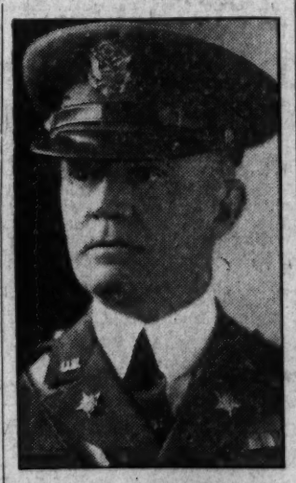
He is Brig. Gen. Alfred T. Smith, assistant chief of staff. He has been appointed by Secretary of War Dern, who will review the High School Cadet brigade, as his aid for the drill. Secretary Dern will present the awards to the winning companies.

Gen. Smith led Company D of Central High School to victory in the competitive drill of 1894. Four years later he was seeing actual service in the Spanish-American War. He was awarded the Silver Star citation for gallantry in action at El Caney, Cuba, July 1, 1898.

Gen. Smith will escort Secretary Dern to the drill field at 4:30 p. m., Tuesday. Within a few minutes after their arrival, the entire brigade will go on parade and shortly afterward the three winning companies will be announced.

The first company in the drill will march into the stadium at 8:15 a. m., Monday. The drill will continue throughout the day until 5:15 p. m. Drilling will begin again at 8:15 a. m., on Tuesday, the last company being scheduled to drill at 3:45 p. m.

Col. Wallace M. Craigie, military instructor in charge of high school cadets, and Lieut. Paul L. Doerr, his assistant, will be in charge of the drill.



BRIG. GEN. ALFRED T. SMITH.

Dr. Young Appointed.

Charleston, W. Va., May 15 (Spl.). Appointment of Dr. Eugene L. Young, of Welch, as assistant physician at the Welch State Emergency Hospital and as consultant at the Denmar Tuberculosis Sanitarium is announced by Gov. H. K. Kump.

500,000 View Clyde Barrow, Girl in Death

Bonnie Parker's Body Lures More Curious Than Her Companion's.

Dallas, Texas, May 25 (AP).—An estimated 50,000 spectators jammed into two Dallas funeral homes today to see the bodies of Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parker, before the burial of the Southwest's No. 1 bad man and his companion.

A privat efuneral at sunset was arranged by Barrow's family, with burial in the West Dallas Cemetery close to the grave of his brother, "Buck." Both were killed by officers' bullets—Buck a year ago in Iowa when he was with Clyde and Bonnie as they shot their way out of a police trap, and Clyde Wednesday when he and Bonnie ran into an ambush in Louisiana.

The burial of Bonnie Parker, who was almost as quick on the trigger as was her companion in crime during their two-year terrorization of the Southwest, was tentatively set for today. Her grave will be in Fishtrap Cemetery, a mile from Barrow's.

The crowds that swarmed into the funeral homes saw Clyde dressed in a new and expensive suit, a pearl stickpin fastened to his shirt. He lay in a wood casket of battleship Gray with a cream-colored, stain plush interior.

Dillinger Hand Seen in Death Of Arch Enemy

Witness in Murder Case Against Outlaw Slain by Machine Gun.

East Chicaago, Ind., May 25 (AP). Police tonight leaned toward the theory that John Dillinger's mob was out to get witnesses in the only murder case pending against the notorious desperado, as they sought an explanation for the slaying of two East Chicatgo detectives.

One of the officers slain was a witness scheduled to have appeared against Dillinger in the killing of Policeman William P. O'Malley, shot down January 15 by robbers of an East Chicago bank.

Detectives Martin O'Brien and Floyd Mulvihill were killed on a lonely road near here last night. They were patrolling roads shortly after Indiana State police had given warning that the NaNtion's No. 1 public enemy was believed roving Indiana highways.

There was no definite evidence to show that Dillinger and his men committed the crime, but police, viewing the ruthlessness of the killers, weer prone to blame the Indiana criminals.

Apparently the two officers stopped an automobile to question its occupants. According to reports of witnesses there was a blast of machine gun fire and the officers were riddled before they had a chance to draw guns.

Scotland Yard Joins Hunt for Dillinger

London, May 25 (AP).—Scotland Yard tonight joined the hunt for John Dillinger, Indiana bad man, it was stated by the Daily Mail.

The newspaper said detectives were making careful checks in London's underworld, after Scotland Yard received a report that Dillinger had crossed the Atlantic.

Dairyman Slain As Kidnapers Get Wrong Man

Body of Wealthy Texan's Neighbor Is Found in Tank.

Mexia, Tex., May 25 (AP).—A theory that kidnapers killed John L. Adams, dairyman, when they learned they had abducted him instead of a wealthy neighbor, intended as their victim, was advanced by police today as they investigated the slaying.

A note received by the dairymen's son Tuesday, the day after the kidnaping, said:

"Your old man is safe—excuse us, we got the wrong man."

Adams lived next door to Joe Morris, wealthy Groesback business man, and police theorized Morris was the intended victim of the kidnapers.

The body of Adams was found in a tank today about a mile south of Groesbeck, his home. A bullet hole was in his temple, a handkerchief gag in his mouth and a belt fastened tightly about his throat. The pockets of his clothing had been turned out, indicating a hurried search by the kidnapers for any valuables.

Sheriff Will Adams disclosed he had under investigation an unidentified man, who, he said, failed to give satisfactory answers when questioned concerning his activities the night Adams disappeared.

Adams' body was found by Fred Herring, tenant on a farm south of Groesbeck, who reported the discovery to the sheriff.

Adams was last seen when he left his home Monday night to mail a letter.

Ickes Launches War on Illegal Oil Production

Court of Appeals Decision for Code Adds Teeth to Enforcement.

With approximately 150,000 barrels of "hot oil" being produced each day, Secretary Ickes yesterday moved to prosecute alleged code violators. "Hot oil" is oil produced over and above the amount fixed as allowable production by the Oil Administration.

Louis R. Glavis, chief of the Division of Investigation of the Interior Department, left for Texas by airplane yesterday to gather evidence against alleged violators. He will meet members of his field force at Dallas today.

Action to prosecute alleged code violators follows a decision of the Court of Appeals at New Orleans upholding the constitutionality of the oil code. The decision reversed that of Federal Judge Randolph Bryant, of Texas, who had issued a permanent injunction prohibiting the Oil Administration from inspecting the records of the Amazon and the Panama Refining companies.

Ickes Eager to Enforce Code.

Ickes expressed himself as particularly eager to see that the oil code provisions are enforced to prevent a drop in the price of crude oil. Crude is now selling for about $1 a barrel. A year ago it was 10 cents a barrel. It is estimated that 80,000 barrels of the so-called "hot oil" are produced daily in Texas, while the remaining production is scattered in several States. It is estimated that most of the "hot oil" is produced by about 30 operators, against whom action is expected.

"The complete and sweeping nature of the opinion of Mr. Justice Sibley (of the New Orleans Court of Appeals) not only restores all the teeth of the oil code but it provides sharper teeth," Ickes said. "We have ample evidence of repeated and continued violations of the oil code by various gentlemen in east Texas, who relied upon the decision of the Federal District Court to the effect that the oil code was unconstitutional.

"Glavis will gather around him all of our special agents in Texas. He will instruct these agents to prosecute relentlessly every producer and shipper of 'hot oil' who has flouted the code and endangered the stability of the oil industry. There will be criminal prosecutions wherever the facts warrant."

Others' Oil Stolen.

Ickes said that some of the operators in east Texas "have not only stolen the oil of their neighbors who have observed the oil code for the general good, but they have stolen their markets as well."

"It is my intention that these men shall feel the lash of the law which they have so long and brazenly flouted."

Meanwhile, the Associated Press said it was reported that the Administration might agree to a major revision of the oil production control bill, foregoing a proposed grant of power to the petroleum administrator to set production quotas for individual properties and pools in Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas.

An authoritative source said some proponents of the bill already had agreed to the amendment and that the Administration itself stood ready to accept it if it became necessary.

Administration officials said no such amendment had been accepted.

Carl Estes, Tyler, Tex., publisher, and advocate of the bill in general, yesterday began an attack on the section on the claim it was unnecessary and violative of the rights of the States.

Two opponents of the bill, Jack Blalock, of Marshall, Tex., and Ellwood Fouts, of Houston, said the revision proposed would not satisfy them.

$8,972,650 Low Bid On Oregon Spillway

Portland, Ore., May 25 (AP).—The Columbia Construction Co. of Reno, Nev., was low with a bid of $8,972,650 today for the construction of the main spillway for the Bonneville Power-Navigation Dam on the Columbia River.

Maj. Charles F. Williams, district engineer, said he was advised that the Columbia Construction Co. is composed of five of the six contractors who bid on the Boulder Dam project as the "Six Companies, Inc."

Miss Lenroot Heads U. S. Social Workers

Kansas City, May 25 (AP).—Miss Katharine F. Lenroot, assistant chief of the United States Children's Bureau, will head the National Conference of Social Work for the next year.

The election to the conference presidency of the former Wisconsin woman was announced tonight at a general session of the sixty-first annual meeting.

Police Chief Charged With Slaying Brother

Gate City, Va., May 25 (AP).—Clifford Davidson, chief of police here, was charged today with killing his brother, whom he had sought to arrest.

The chief said he had gone to arrest his brother, Cecil Davidson, for fighting. An argument followed and the police chief fired. He said his brother had a gun. After the shooting Chief Davidson surrendered to Sheriff O. B. Darnall and was released on $1,000 bail pending a hearing June 2.

Appendix Gone; Life Brighter

Life's gayer for Allen Budd, 11-year-old mountaineer child of Delaplaine, Va., since the doctors have removed his appendix. The operation was performed at Children's Hospital, through the efforts of the Kiwanis Club, which brought him from his home here by automobile.

Night Session Threat Limits Tariff Debate

Harrison Obtains Agreement in Bitter Fight; Early Vote Assured.

(United Press.)

Threat of continuous night sessions that would interfere with Congressional dinner parties forced the Senate to an agreement last night to limit debate on the reciprocal tariff bill after next Wednesday noon.

The agreement, assuring a vote on the bill Wednesday or Thursday, was obtained after repeated efforts by Chairman Pat Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, of the Finance Committee. Irritated by long Republican speeches, he threatened to keep the Senate in session every night.

A trade pact with Colombia, negotiated last fall but never sent to the Senate, almost blocked the agreement to cut off debate.

Hatfield Fights Limit.

Senator H. D. Hatfield (Republican), West Virginia, insisted through the day that he would not permit limitation of debate—which requires unanimous consent—until the State Department revealed terms of the treaty. Finally at 6 p. m. he withdrew his objection and Harrison agreed to a recess until this morning.

Previous to the agreement Chairman Harrison asserted:

'This bill is going to be passed. I know some Senators would like to remain here through the summer heat, as has been suggested. Perhaps some are afraid to go home."

Senator Hatfield snapped back:

'Let me say to the distinguished Senator from Mississippi that I'm one Senator who isn't afraid to go home."

Harrison Comes Back.

Harrison then threatened prolonged daily sessions until a vote is taken.

"I've seen no signs of a filibuster thus far," he declared, "but if there should be, there will be action on this side of the chamber to check it."

Republicans continued a general attack on the bill which would empower the President to raise or lower tariff rates 50 per cent in the negotiation of reciprocal trade agreements.

Senator Roscoe C. Patterson (Republican), Missouri, criticized the measure as "viciously un-American."

"If such a measure can stand the test of our courts," he said, "then the Constitution has become a dead letter."

The trade bargaining proposal, said Senator Frederick C. Walcott (Republican), Connecticut, is "ill-timed and can not be made to work to our advantage."

The prospect of thousands being added to the rolls of unemployed was advanced by Senator Hamilton Kean (Republican), New Jersey, who insisted that present tariff rates are not excessive.

Last of Seldon Kidnap Gang Sent to Prison

Los Angeles, May 25 (AP).—Les Bruneman, last of the Ralph Seldon gang of kidnapers to face the courts, was sentenced today to serve ten years to life for the abduction for ransom of E. L. "Zeke" Caress, wealthy race track official and bookmaker, in 1930.

Five other Sheldon gangsters, including the leader, Ralph Seldon, previously received identical sentences.

Mix Hearing Is Delayed In Horse Embezzlement

Newkirk, Okla., May 25 (AP).—An old "horse" embezzlement" case against Tom Mix, Western movie star, was continued today until June 9 by District Judge Claude Duval on agreement of both parties.

Mix is accused of embezzling a gelding from the 101 Ranch before he joined the Hollywood motion picture colony years ago. The charge was revived recently.

Olive Hatch, Swimmer, Divorced.

Los Angeles, May 25 (AP).—Hubert Voight, movie studio publicity writer, obtained a divorce today from his famous swimmer wife, Olive Hatch. Voight testified they quarreled almost constantly.

Appendicitis Sufferer Is Brought to Hospital From Virginia.

The pot of gold at the rainbow's end, has restored health for Allen Budd, 11-year-old mountaineer child of near Delaplaine, Va.

He found it in Washington, at Children's Hospital yesterday—thanks to the Kiwanis Cub, of which Louis P. Breuninger is president.

During a recent trip to the country above Warrenton in his automobile, Howard Leapley discovered Allen, bedridden with an attack of appendicitis. Returning to the Capital, he told Martin Wiegand, of the Kiwanis Club, about Allen's plight, and Wiegand, a Kiwanian as is Leapley, relayed the information to Robert E. Fleming, chairmanman of one of the club's committees.

Fleming got in touch with a surgeon, who arranged for Allen and his mother to come to Children's Hospital for an operation that might mean life or death for the mountain child.

When everything was ready, Leapley and Mrs. Leapley drove to the Budel cabin. Young Allen was encased in ice packs and sent, with his mother, to the hospital.

The operation was performed successfully yesterday.

Allen looked out on a brighter world from his hospital cot. The Kiwanis Club had made one youngster fitter for the battle of life.

County Carriers Meet at Rixeyville

Culpeper, Va., May 25 (Spl.).—The rural mail carriers of Culpeper and adjoining counties yesterday held their annual business meeting, conjointly with the ladies' auxiliary, comprising rural carriers' wives, at Rixeyville.

Officers elected are J. F. Shell, president; O. E. Burke, vice president; I. F. Sullivan, secretary-treasurer. Lester Yates, L. A. Kibler and Charles Compton, for the carriers, and Mrs. O. E. Burke and Mrs. A. L. Kibler for the auxiliary, were named delegates to the State convention in July.

Brief talks were made by R. G. Roberts, postmaster of Culpeper; W. J. Carley and D. D. Douglas.

Six VERA Projects Indorsed in Alleghany

Covington, Va., May 25 (Spl.). Six projects, three for Alleghany County, two for Covington, and one for Clifton Forge, have been approved by the works division of the VERA, according to J. M. Ribble, State engineer.

It is estimated that the county projects will employ 74 men at a cost of $5,457.83, of which $785 will be furnished by this community. Approximately 50 men will be employed on the local projects at a cost of $4,562. The Clifton Forge work is expected to require 49 men at a cost of $3,349.

Court Holds Planter In Shooting at Luray

Luray, Va., May 25 (Spl.).—Simon Foster, 60, was released under bond of $500 last night, following a preliminary hearing before Trial Justice John H. Booton, in which he was held for the grand jury on a charge of feloniously shooting Harry Gochenour, 19, on Wednesday night.

Gochenour said that he was in Foster's strawberry patch, but only meant to take a few for his children.

Cameraman Told to Pay Wife $12 Each Week

Los Angeles, May 25 (AP).—Pending their contested divorce suit, Paul A. Lockwood, film cameraman, today was under court order to pay his wife, Marjorie DeHaven Lockwood, daughter of Carter DeHaven, actor, $12 a week.

Lockwood brought the divorce suit and also a suit for $150,000 damages against Victor Fleming, film director, who, he alleged, alienated Mrs. Lockwood's affections.

Fleming since has married Mrs. Lucille I. Rosson.

Hospital Paid in Fire.

Lynchburg, Va., May 25 (Spl.). The Lynchburg Hospital has received a Federal check for $2,400 for care for men who were burned or otherwise injured in the transient bureau fire in March.

Airline's Bid Of Eight Cents Is Low Record

Average for All Routes Slashed as 60 Seek Jobs.

Fighting for air-mail business, the American Airlines, reputed to be controlled by the E. L. Cord interests, yesterday bid 8 cents a mile for the Chicago-Fort Worth route. The lowest previous bid for carrying mail ever received by the Post-office Department was 17½ cents a mile.

American Airlines recently submitted bids on a number of routes, but failed to be low on all except one. At the time it submitted its 8-cent bid, American Airlines bid 39½ cents for that portion of the Newark-Fort Worth lines which extends from Washington to Fort Worth. Its bid for the entire run from Newark to Fort Worth was only 13 cents.

Altogether, 60 bids were received on 13 routes. Many of them were lower than any that had been received before. The average received yesterday was only 20.27 cents an airplane mile. Three sets of bids now have been received. The average for the first set was 28.8 cents and of the second 38.5 cents.

18 New Bidders.

Eighteen bidders, Postmaster General Farley announced, who previously had not submitted proposals, participated in the bidding yesterday, and some of the companies which had been reorganized bid much lower than they had on the two previous occasions.

"The annual air-mail pay for the new system with its 3,300 additional miles will be $7,700,238, as compared with $19,400,264 in the fiscal year 1933 and with approximately $14,000,000 for the present fiscal year, which ends June 30," Farley said.

The bids opened yesterday covered 8,221 additional miles. The highest submitted was 43½ cents per mile. Among the new bidders whose offers were lowest on certain routes were the Delta Air Corporation, the National Airways, Inc., the Varney Speed Lines and a joint bid by D. K. Franklin and G. T. Baker.

Passengers Included.

"With one exception," Farley said, "passenger service is required on all of the 13 routes and the low bidder on this one route has announced its intention to operate passenger service thereon."

There were 10 bidders on the Cleveland-to-Nashville route and 9 on the Daytona Beach-to-St. Petersburg route.

All low bids are being analyzed by attorneys of the Postoffice Department and the Department of Justice and officials of the aeronautics branch of the Department of Commerce and their financial responsibility is being checked by the Comptroller of the Postoffice Department. As soon as low bids are approved, contracts will be let.

Air mail on the route from Fargo, N. D., to Seattle will commence today. Service will begin on the Atlanta-New Orleans run Monday.

Culbertson On Bridge

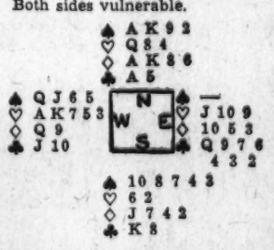
The Double That Tells Too Much.

I sometimes think that Bridge players might be classified upon the basis of their Penalty Doubles. There is a certain type, particularly obnoxious as a partner, who refrains from doubling when he should, and then doubles contracts which permit his adversaries either to make the contract or to minimize losses.

The hand below is a case in point. West, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The bidding: (Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

West	North	East	South
1♡(1)	Dbl.(2)	Pass	1♠
Pass	4♠(3)	Pass	Pass
Dbl.(4)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—West's hand is strong enough to justify an Opening bid of one.

2—Of course, the Takeout Double is obvious. North hopes for a spade response, but in any event the hand is too strong not to demand active and affirmative action.

3—Three spades would be a better bid. A double Raise, vulnerable, after a forced response to a Takeout Double, shows a powerful hand. This old would protect a very weak response. South, holding good distribution and a King, has a sound Rebid.

4—This is an extremely bad Double. In the first place, West is far from sure that he will be able to win two heart tricks, and in the second place, certainly the spade Ace or King and probably both are clearly marked in North's hand on the Double and his four spade bid. The Double can only assist South in the proper play of the cards. Without the Double the proper play of the trump suit would not be marked.

West opened the heart King, and when the Dummy was spread, shifted to a club. South won this trick in his own hand and played the Ten of spades, which West covered, hoping that South did not have another entry card for a second lead through his spade strength. The trick was won in Dummy, and the heart 8 led. East won with the Ten and returned a club, hoping, in view of his seven-card length, that West had no more. This trick was won with the Ace, and the heart Queen led from Dummy and ruffed in the closed hand. The Declarer now led the spade 8, and West's hope of a trump trick vanished in thin air. In consequence of the favorable break in the diamond suit South made not only his contract, but an overtrick as well. In all probability the hand would have been made in any event, but the overtrick was a needless sacrifice upon the altar of unintelligent greed.

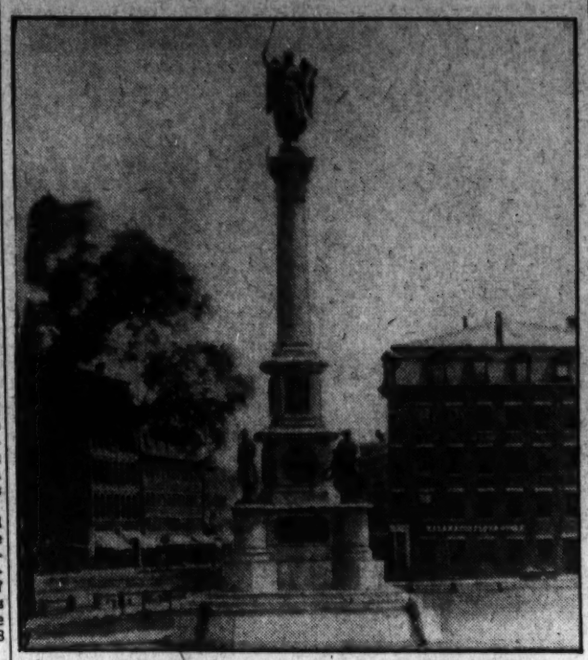
Boy, Page Sherlock Holmes To Locate This Monument



Have you ever seen this monument before? The Fine Arts Commission would like to hear from you if you can recognize it. The building in the background bears two signs, one reading "Kalamazoo Flour Store" and the other "Houghton Boot Factory." The memorial, however, is not in Kalamazoo, Mich., and never was, according to officials in that city.

Fine Arts Commission Would Like to Know Where It Is.

The Commission of Fine Arts, which usually knows all about monuments, is in need of help.

Dr. Leicester B. Holland, chief of the Library of Congress' fine arts division, recently received a stereoscopic picture of a monument from a correspondent in New London, Conn., who wanted to know where it was located. Dr. Holland could not identify it so he sent the picture to Dr. Charles Moore, chairman of the Fine Arts Commission.

Now the commission is a treasury of pictures, descriptions and other data on statues and monuments not only in the United States but all over the world. But this one stumped even Dr. Moore and H. P. Cammerer, executive secretary.

They agreed it was a Civil War memorial in some American city, but where? And by whom? Dr. Moore, whose home is in Detroit, thought he had the mystery solved when he observed a sign reading "Kalamazoo Flour Store" on the building in the background. Telegraphic inquiries to Kalamazoo, Mich., however, disclosed no record of the monument in that city.

There weren't any more Kalamazoos to query either, because Michigan's is the only one in the postal guide.

So the Fine Arts Commission gave up in despair and requested that the mystery be put up to the public. If you can identify the monument it will be taking a load off the mind of the anonymous gentleman in New London. Just send your theory to the Fine Arts Commission, Navy Building.

Roanoke Jobless To Get New Work

Roanoke, Va., May 25 (Spl.).—Relief work for several hundred jobless is expected to be provided next week by the Virginia Emergency Relief Administration following approval of the local school board of a proposal to bear a part of the expense of repairs and painting of school buildings.

Approximately $11,000 of inventoried materials were left by the Civil Works Administration, which started the project, later halted by abandonment of the CWA. A total of 39,760 man-hours of labor will be needed to complete the job. The VERA will pay more than $20,000 in wages over a period of about 12 weeks.

A clean-up of public buildings, providing four weeks' work for 18 persons, has been approved by the Federal Emergency Relief Administration. White and colored women will be employed.

Alumni at Martinsburg Present School Tablet

Martinsburg, W. Va., May 25 (Spl.).—A bronze tablet was presented by Martinsburg High School Alumni Association, at its annual meeting tonight, to the school. The tablet is to be placed in the library and will indicate the section of reference books presented by the association as a memorial to the late Martin Luther Wachtel, former principal and leader in the movement for the formation of the alumni association.

Attorney J. Nevin Kilmer was in charge of the ceremonies.

Pastor to Address School.

Princess Anne, Md., May 25 (Spl.).—The Rev. J. Paul Trout, pastor of Manekin Presbyterian Church, this city, will deliver the baccalaureate address to the graduates of Washington High School, at a union service of the town's four churches, Sunday evening.

Mellon Asks U. S. to Refund $139,045 Tax

Contests Added Penalty of $1,978,621, Hits Attorney General.

Andrew W. Mellon, former Secretary of the Treasury, filed a petition with the Board of Tax Appeals yesterday asking a redetermination of his income tax liability for 1931 and claiming a refund of $139,045.17, which, he asserts, was an overpayment.

Mr. Mellon is contesting additional income taxes and penalty amounting to $1,978,621.35, which, the petition asserts, was set up at the instance of the Attorney General. Recently, Attorney General Cummings had the case laid before a grand jury in Pittsburgh, seeking criminal indictments, which were refused after a brief deliberation.

At the same time the Department of Justice revealed it had settled its income tax case against Thomas S. Lamont, of New York, a Morgan partner. The amount involved was not revealed. A number of other cases were settled by agreement, it was stated.

Others Involved.

Some weeks ago Attorney General Cummings announced that district attorneys would be authorized to lay evidence before grand juries concerning the Mellon and Lamont cases and others involving Thomas L. Sidlo, law partner of Newton D. Baker, and James J. Walker, former mayor of New York. The Sidlo case recently was settled. No action in the Walker case has been announced.

At the time the Government sought a criminal indictment against Mr. Mellon, he charged that political motives were behind the move and that instead of underpaying the Treasury he had overpaid and intended to seek a refund.

Mr. Mellon's petition to the board sets forth some 18 different assignments of error on the part of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. Among the items protested are losses claimed on the sale of the stock of Pittsburgh Coal Co., Western Public Service Corporation and other stocks which are stated to have been sold in the ordinary course of business and in good faith. Mr. Mellon claims an ordinary loss of $5,766.30 on the sale of stock of Pittsburgh Coal Co., and a capital loss amounting to $5,672,-164.80 (stock held more than two years); an ordinary loss of $24,100 and a capital loss of $352,500 on the sale of stock of Western Public Service Corporation.

Gifts Are Listed.

Other contested items include deductions for charitable and other contributions and gifts made during 1931. He lists gifts to various charities in the total amount of $3,821,-178.29, which he contends entitle him to the deductible percentage provided in the revenue act.

Another error which Mr. Mellon alleges is that the commissioner treated stock and securities of Bethlehem Steel Corporation distributed in connection with the reorganization of Bethlehem Steel Corporation and the McClintic-Marshall Corporation as taxable income, whereas he says that under the law and the commissioner's own regulations, such stock and securities are not taxable until disposed of by him.

Mr. Mellon's petition recites that he filed his income tax return for 1931 with the Collector of Internal Revenue at Pittsburgh and paid taxes amounting to $647,559.36. He says that in the spring and summer of 1923, agents of the Bureau of Internal Revenue made investigations of his returns, books and records, and their report to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, in September, 1933, contained no charges of any kind, but on the contrary stated that his taxes had been overpaid in the amount of $7,507.74.

Losses Once Allowed.

He further charges that the revenue agents allowed the losses now questioned by the commissioner, and also treated the stocks and bonds distributed to him in connection with the reorganization of McClintic-Marshall Corporation and Bethlehem Steel as a tax-free distribution.

The petition further states that the Bureau of Internal Revenue, having represented that a final audit and determination of Mr. Mellon's tax liability for 1931 could not be reasonably and fairly made before March 15, 1934, Mr. Mellon, in order to give the bureau additional time in which to review the agents' report and re-examine, if necessary, the petitioner's return, books and records, voluntarily field a waiver extending the statutory period of limitation upon assessment of additional incomes taxes until June 30, 1935. In this respect, the petition avers, he was not given the same treatment accorded other taxpayers under the commissioner's regulations.

Mr. Mellon contends that the Commissioner of Internal Revenue is a quasi-judicial officer and has no power or authority to determine a deficiency of tax liability against any taxpayer unless there has been a judicious consideration of all the facts relating to such liability, and after full opportunity is given to the taxpayer to be heard, and that there has been no such determination of his tax liability.

Given No Notice, He Says.

Mr. Mellon also declares that he is without notice of any kind of the grounds for the assertion by the commissioner of a penalty, and that there is no basis for such a penalty. The petition charges that on March 11, 1934, the Attorney General announced publicly, without previous notice to Mr. Mellon, that he was referring his 1931 income tax return to the United States Attorney at Pittsburgh, for investigation by a Federal grand jury. The petition asserts that "the public announcement also stated that this action was taken in pursuance of a new Governmental policy of submitting to Federal grand juries, instead of to the appropriate Government officials, the determination, in the first instance, of the innocence or guilt of a taxpayer in cases of alleged income tax evasion. Prior to this time, it had been the consistent policy for the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to make such determination; and only after the most careful consideration of all the facts and circumstances and after affording the taxpayer a hearing would he certify the case for presentment to a grand jury."

Liquor Dealers Get Stamp Schooling

Forger, Once Convicted, Is Under Arrest Again

Danville, Va., May 25 (Spl.). Oscar Lee Vaughan, who two weeks ago was sentenced to serve six months in jail by Judge Henry Leigh in the Corporation Court for forgery, was under arrest again today charged with forging the name of John Witcher, coal dealer, to a check for $4.

Vaughan was given credit for the time spent in jail at the time he was sentenced and as that period exceeded the six months term was immediately released.

Murchison Gets Final Approval

Senate Indorses Commerce Bureau Aid to Take Thorp's Place.

The Senate yesterday confirmed the nomination of Prof. Claudius Temple Murchison, of the University of North Carolina, to handle the affairs of the Commerce Department's Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

He will gather in the reins once held by Dr. Willard Thorp, of Amherst, and Dr. Julius Klein, who resigned a professorship at Harvard. The latter was instrumental in organizing the bureau while President Hoover was Secretary of Commerce.

Dr. Murchison was appointed Thursday after President Roosevelt withdrew Thorp's nomination, following the Senate Commerce Committee's refusal to approve his name after several months of deliberation. The committee placed its approval on Dr. Murchison's nomination within 24 hours after it left the White House.

The North Carolinian will relieve Dr. John Dickinson, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, whom President Roosevelt assigned to take over the bureau following accepting the resignation of Dr. Thorp.

Coach Companies Face Charter Loss

Richmond, May 25 (AP).—The State Corporation Commission today entered orders authorizing the dissolution of the American Securities Corporation at Danville, and the Crewe Amusement Co., Inc.

The commission ordered the White Transportation Co., operating between Petersburg and Baltimore and Culpeper and Orange, and Thomas Copeland, operating a motor passenger line between Portsmouth and Gilmerton, and Portsmouth and Fentress, to show cause why their respective certificates should not be revoked.

The order in the White Transportation Co. alleged the company failed to file required bond or insurance, and the order in the Copeland case alleged failure to pay taxes.

Roanoke Milkmen To Air Plaint First

New State Commission Will Meet June 5.

Richmond, May 25 (AP).—Roanoke milk producers, distributors and consumers will be the first to lay their case before the new State milk commission, Chairman J. S. Agnew of the commission announced today.

He set 10 a. m., Tuesday, June 5, as the time for the session, which will be held at the commission's offices in the State capitol.

The dairy business in the Roanoke area has been in a disturbed state, it was revealed at hearings on the bill creating the commission, and most of the opposition to the bill seemed to be centered there.

She Operates Colorado Coal Mines

Josephine Roche inherited six Colorado coal mines when her father died in 1927. Deeply concerned about laborers' problems, she recognized an opportunity to improve working conditions. So she ran the mines herself, hewing social betterment and a profitable business out of coal.

Virginian Plans Research on War

Dr. Hale to Study Part of Press and Radio.

Charlottesville, Va., May 25 (Spl.). Dr. Oron J. Hale, professor of history at the University of Virginia, has been asked by the American Academy of Political and Social Science to make an exhaustive study of the relations of newspapers, radio and motion pictures to the war menace.

The results will be published in September.

Dr. Hale will conduct most of his research work in the Hoover Library, Stanford University, Palo Alto, Calif. He already has observed in Europe the influence newspapers exerted on the World War and has completed a book on this subject.

Richmond Cashier Escapes 3 Bandits

Richmond, May 25 (Spl.).—Four armed bandits made an unsuccessful attempt to hold up the cashier of Baughman Stationery Co. here today.

R. M. Thomas, cashier, was returning from the bank with $1,500, the weekly payroll. As he approached the corner, four men told him to stick his hands up. Instead, Thomas ran to the stationery company, only a short distance away.

The bandits pursued, but were unable to overtake Thomas. They they drove off in a sedan.

Mrs. Fenton Love Dies at Hamilton

Hamilton, Va., May 25 (Spl.). Mrs. Gertrude Woolfe Love, 81, died at her home here today following a long illness.

She was a native of Fauquier County. Surviving are her husband, Fenton M. Love, and four sons, Ernest Love, of New York City; Oscar Love, of Albuquerque, N. Mex., and Morris and F. M., jr., of Hamilton.

Funeral services will be held at the Hamilton Methodist Church Sunday, with interment in Lake View Cemetery.

West Virginia Bishop Opens Sex Film Fight

Wheeling, W. Va., May 25 (Spl.). Bishop J. J. Swint, head of the West Virginia Catholic diocese, has started throughout West Virginia the crusade against "salacious" motion pictures by the Catholic bishops of the United States.

The bishop has dispatched letters to all West Virginia Catholic priests and Protestant ministers, asking their cooperation in the movement, declaring that "sex" and "gangster" pictures are a big factor in the demoralization of youth. The priests are directed to distribute pledges of cooperation to the people of their parishes for their signatures.

Governor's Ball Opens District Rotary Parley

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., May 25 (Spl.).—The annual governor's ball tonight featured the twenty-fourth annual district conference of Rotary International, comprising all West Virginia clubs. The meeting got under way here this morning with delegates from all leading cities.

Participants include Donald Adams, of New Haven, Conn., past international president, and Ed. R. Johnston, of Roanoke, Va., first vice president. Kenneth S. Kurtz, of Weston, is in charge as district governor. Election of officers is on tomorrow's program.

Jury Acquits Woman In Restaurant Slaying

Summersville, W. Va., May 25 (Spl.).—Acquitted by a jury on her plea of self-defense after a trial lasting all week here, Mrs. Susie Hamilton, 38, of Fenwick, today was free of a charge of slaying W. O. McCoy, 45, proprietor of a Fenwick restaurant.

McCoy was shot the night of January 2 in his restaurant, where Mrs. Hamilton was employed.

Rain Helps Crops In Eastern Virginia

Corn, Tobacco, Grains Hit Sturdy Growth.

Richmond, May 25 (Spl.).—A heavy rain throughout last night brought eastern Virginia's quota of rainfall almost up to normal and put growing crops in excellent shape. The rain came with the earth still moist from showers early in the week.

Corn, tobacco, summer grains, garden truck and flowers all are reaching the stage of sturdy growth. Early tomatoes have started to bloom. During the last week the wet earth has been a bit rough on roses, which have a tendency to mildew and suffer from other diseases, but other flowers have been thriving.

The rains have been somewhat difficult to highway travelers because many of the roads are undergoing repairs, and long stretches become so muddy that they are impassable to cars and trucks without the aid of tractors.

Virginia University Yearbook Honors Norfolk Historian

Charlottesville, Va., May 25 (Spl.).—The forty-seventh edition of Corks and Curls, University of Virginia yearbook released yesterday, is dedicated to the memory of Dr. Phillip Alexander Bruce, of Norfolk, Va., venerable author of many works on Virginia history.

Prior to his recent death, Dr. Bruce completed a centennial history of the university, the result of many years of collecting hundreds of scattered historical documents. His work appeared in five volumes.

The annual carries memorials for the late Dr. John Staige Davis, for many years a member of the medical faculty; Thomas Lyons Fishburne, prominent student athlete from Charlottesville, and Christopher Quarrier Smith, a graduate student from Charleston, W. Va., all members of the Seven Society, the highest honorary society at the university.

The staff of Corks and Curls includes Donald Q. Taylor, of Montclair, N. J., editor; Charles S. Adams, of Lynchburg, Va., assistant editor, and Carles K. Woltz, of Salem, Va., business manager.

Mount Airy Road Projects Planned

Mount Airy, Md., May 25 (Spl.). Construction of two sections of highway in this community is contemplated by the Maryland State Roads Commission.

Bids are asked for building 1.14 miles of macadam highway along the Mount Airy-Watersville road, and the M. J. Grove Lime Co., of Limekiln, recently submitted $17,371.80 as the lowest of four bids for the construction of a feeder road between Poplar Springs and Watersville.

Civil War Veteran, 89, Dies at Keyser, W. Va.

Keyser, W. Va., May 25 (Spl.).—Benjamin T. Hyde, 89, a Union soldier in the Civil War, died at his home here yesterday.

Mr. Hyde, who was born in Strasburg, Va., served under his brother, Capt. Jacob S. Hyde, in Company E, Sixth West Virginia Cavalry. He is survived by his widow, who was Miss Lydia Miller, of Rowlesburg, W. Va., and three daughters, Mrs. Ida Smith, Akron, Ohio; Mrs. J. W. Clair, Rowlesburg, W. Va., and Miss Lucia Hyde, at home.

Three More Inebriates Given Work on Streets

Hagerstown, Md., May 25 (Spl.). The street force of city prisoners, sentenced to work by magistrates for intoxication was augmented by three additional men today, who were given three days work.

Magistrates a week ago warned inebriates that fines and jail terms would be dispensed with and they would be put to work. Seven are now cutting weeds and cleaning up debris about the municipal pool.

Century Club Picks Leaders

Mrs. De Grange President of Organization in Winchester.

Winchester, Va., May 25 (Spl.). Mrs. H. Clay De Grange has been elected president of the Winchester Century Club, succeeding Mrs. Bryan Conrad, who held the post the last two years.

Other officers include Mrs. John S. Scully, jr., and Mrs. Lewis M. Allen, vice presidents; Mrs. B. B. Dutton, secretary; Mrs. Melvin Green, corresponding secretary and Miss Sophye Baker, treasurer.

It was decided to hold the annual dinner at Thornhill Manor, the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Baker, June 1. Admiral Louis McCoy Nulton, U. S. N., retired, now residing here, will be the speaker.

The Winchester branch, American Association of University Women, also held its election of officers this week, selecting Mrs. Stewart O. Elting, Vassar College, as president. Other officers included Mrs. Parsons P. Bilcher, Westhampton College, vice president; Mrs. McSherry Lupton, Wellesley College, secretary; Miss Edith Light, Woman's College, University of Chicago, treasurer. Mrs. Herbert S. Larrick was the retiring president.

Cockrell Elected In Charles Town

Beats Russell for Mayor in Lively Fight.

Charles Town, W. Va., May 25 (Spl.).—Frank R. Cockrell, local Baltimore and Ohio passenger and freight agent, was elected mayor yesterday after a lively campaign against Mayor J. Richard Russell, 564 to 458.

In the First Ward A. Vernon Garney was elected councilman over Alvin Ennis, 473 to 460. Bernard Johnson received 688 votes in the Second Ward against 317 for Charles F. Reininger, incumbent. C. Edward Miley was defeated by W. Dale Webster, in the Fourth Ward. The vote was 493 to 462. Robert D. Early, N. & W. passenger agent, was unopposed in the Third Ward.

Mr. Cockrell, the new mayor, and the four councilmen will be installed the first week of June.

CCC Forest-Fire Work Commended

Clarksburg, W. Va., May 25 (Spl.). Forest destruction in West Virginia would have been heavy this spring had it not been for the aid of C.C.C. workers, H. W. Shawhan, of Charleston, State conservation director, told West Virginia Wild Life Leaguers today at their annual meeting at Jackson's Mill.

As it was, he said, the loss was the greatest since 1930, although as many as 1,000 fire fighters worked at a time.

The reason, Shawhan said, is the low wage of 12½ cents an hour paid by the State for fire fighters, making it almost impossible to get men for this work.

Methodist Meeting Scheduled June 13

Westminster, Md., May 25 (Spl.). The fifth Maryland annual conference of the Methodist Protestant Church will convene at Western Maryland College June 13 for a six-day meeting.

Following the Maryland annual conference, the Young Peoples Conference of the District of Columbia will begin a two-day session on June 22. The Young Peoples Conference is an interdenominational organization under the leadership of Page McK. Etchison, religious work director of the Central Y. M. C. A., Washington.

U. S. Judge Restrains Slot Machine "War"

Roanoke, Va., May 25 (Spl.). Roanoke city's war on slot machines flared up again with the issuance of a preliminary injunction by Judge John Paul, of United States District Court, restraining police from interfering with the operation of the machines unless it shall appear that tokens are being cashed or exchanged for other articles of value.

Recently city council banned the operation of slot machines here. They refuse to comment on the injunction.

Power Lines Blasted At Virginia Strikes

Lebanon, Va., May 25 (AP).—Dynamiters in the Clinchfield coal mining area near here yesterday bombed the power line serving mines at Dante and Clinchco. The blast was the fourth since the outbreak of labor trouble here several weeks ago.

Wednesday night bombers wrecked eight poles carrying high-tension cables, charged with 88,000 volts, near Saltville. Line crews immediately began repairs to the power system while power was supplied through a lead-in line from the north.

Thief Gets $27 Proceeds For Colored Hospital

Danville, Va., May 25 (Spl.).—Providence Hospital, a local colored institution, will not collect the $27 which was raised for it at a benefit performance by colored children a few nights ago.

A thief broke into Westmoreland School, where the benefit was given, and stole the proceeds.

4 Veteran Groups Plan Memorials

Romney, W. Va., May 25 (Spl.).—Four Memorial Day services will be held in Hampshire County this year.

The American Legion is sponsoring one observance May 30. Former State Commander McGinnis is to make the address at 10:30 a. m., immediately after the salute to the departed at the monument in front of the court house. Members of the Legion and Boy Scouts will then go to the cemetery for their memorial at the grave of Harry Shawen. A parade will be held at 2 p. m.

The annual Confederate services will be held June 2 at 11 o'clock, at Indian Mound Cemetery, where Attorney J. Sloan Kuykendall, of Romney, will make the address. The Levels Church memorial service will be held May 30, with the Rev. A. M. B. Sapp, W. C. Sanpp and W. C. Talbert speaking. Kirby Camp, No. 12608, M. W. of A., will hold a service June 30 at Mount Zion Cemetery.

Limits of Constitution Urged for Recovery

Richmond, May 25 (AP).—C. L. Bardo, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, told a joint National and Virginia Association meeting here last night that manufacturers should "utilize their vast experience in pointing out the dangers they have recognized in some parts of the National legislative program attempted in the name of recovery and emergency." He is president of the New York Shipbuilding Corporation.

There is, he told the Virginia manufacturers, "sufficient freedom for economic reconstruction within the safe bounds of the Constitution without departing from the upward swing under the spur of personal initiative."

De Seversky Will Seek New Amphibian Record

Hampton, May 25 (Spl.).—Maj. Alex P. de Seversky, who holds the world speed record of 175 miles in an amphibian plane, will attempt to break his own record within the next few weeks, it was announced today at the Hampton Aero Club.

William R. Enyart, chairman of the contest committee of the National Aeronautic Association, is making ararngements for the test. The flight will be over a course between Buckroe Beach and Clear View.

Mrs. Knight Reelected Brethren Group Head

Clarksburg, W. Va., May 25 (Spl.).—Mrs. J. M. Knight, of Charleston, was re-elected president of the West Virginia United Brethren Women's Missionary Association today at the closing session of its annual convention.

Other officers elected include Mrs. R. E. Francis, Clarksburg, vice president of the east district; Mrs. K. J. Scott, of Middlebourne, vice president of the west district; Mrs. A. W. Westfall, Parkersburg, secretary, and Mrs. A. J. Lowther, Parkersburg, treasurer.

Church Festivals Postponed.

Westminster, Md., May 25 (Spl.). The second annual interchurch festivals of religious drama, scheduled to be this month under auspices of the Carroll County Council of Religious Education, has been postponed until fall, it was announced today.

Middletown Parley Is Held by W.C.T.U.

Frederick County Session Attended by 125.

Middletown, Md., May 25 (Spl.). Approximately 125 delegates from Woman's Christian Temperance Union organizations at Frederick, Walkersville, Buckeystown, Feagesville, New Market, Urbana, Woodsboro, Yellow Springs and Middletown attended the forty-eighth annual convention of the Frederick County union in the Lutheran Church here yesterday.

Mrs. Mary Haslup, Baltimore, the principal speaker, urged the members to take an active part in the September election on the question of liquor sales in the county.

Atlee Kepler, Middletown, was awarded first prize in a county-wide temperance essay contest among school children. Mrs. Jennis Kidd, of Urbana, who has headed the organization for more than ten years, was reelected president. Other officers chosen were Mrs. Nora McKinney, Walkersville, first vice president; Mrs. J. G. Shawbaker, Monrovia, second vice president and recording secretary, and Miss Catherine M. Bartgis, Frederick, treasurer.

3 Women Collapse At Bigamist's Fate

Two Shriek When Husband Is Given 5 Years.

Baltimore, May 25 (Spl.).—Three women collapsed in court here today, two of them shrieking hysterically, when Rosby M. Carr, alias Robert Green, 28, was sentenced to five years in the Maryland House of Correction on bigamy charges.

Carr was accused by two women of having married them when he already had one wife. When he was sentenced, the first wife, Mrs. Catherine Carr, nearly fainted and began crying, "I want to see my husband."

Miss Julia D'Alesandro, who said Carr married her in Ellicott City in February, 1933, started screaming and was carried from the courtroom nearly unconscious. Her sister, Mrs. May Bateman, also became hysterical, but did not faint. She declared to prosecuting officers that Carr's sister had whispered a threat to her.

Carr also was accused of marrying Miss Avis Haney, of Pittsburgh, last July 5, but she was not in the courtroom when sentence was pronounced.

Virginia Trial Justices Scan Accounting Plan

Richmond, May 25 (AP).—Trial justices from various counties as well as justices of juvenile and domestic relations courts met here today with the auditor of public accounts to discuss the uniform accounting system and uniform docket for use in all such courts of the State.

Both the system of accounting and the new dockets go into use next month when the trial justice system is extended to all counties in the State under the terms of a bill passed by the last Legislature.

Garden Club Group Reelects Mrs. White

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., May 25 (Spl.).—Mrs. Kemble White, of Clarksburg, has been reelected president of the West Virginia Federation of Garden Clubs at the State convention here.

Other officers are Mrs. C. Lloyd Ritter, of Huntington, vice president; Mrs. W. E. Blake, jr., of Ronceverte, secretary, and Mrs. W. A. Cracraft, of Wheeling, treasurer.

Merchant Marine Struggle Revealed

Cone Urges Its Support in Norfolk Speech.

Norfolk, Va., May 25 (Spl.).—Speaking at a mass meeting in connection with Maritime Week observance tonight, Admiral H. I. Cone, former chairman of the Shipping Board, declared the American Merchant Marine is here to stay.

He cited figures showing the amount of tonnage being carried in American ships to what it was before the Shipping Board began operation. He urged the American people to stand behind American shipping so that greater tonnage could be obtained, asserting there were influences at work to deprive American ships of their rightful share in sea commerce.

Joseph D. Weaver, deputy administrator of the shipping code, also urged action to keep American ships on the high seas by supplying them with freight. The meeting was presided over by R. Arthur Jett. Mayor W. R. L. Taylor delivered the address of welcome.

Retiring Professor Honored by Faculty

Danville, Va., May 25 (Spl.)—Prof. J. W. Cook, head of the commercial department of the high school here, received a gift from members of the faculty of the school, who entertained him at a dinner.

At the end of the present session he will retire after 52 years of work in public education. He will go to Hazard, Ky., to live.

Staunton Drops Usual Parade

Confederate Celebration Feature Abandoned; Units Fall Out.

Staunton, Va., May 25 (Spl.).—For the first time since the Civil War, a Confederate Memorial Day will be observed here on Monday without a parade.

The only exercises will be held at 10:30 a. m., in the Confederate section of Thornrose Cemetery. James M. Feagle, Staunton insurance executive and a son and grandson of Confederate veterans, will make the address.

Maj. Charles S. Roller, jr., commander of the Stonewall Jackson Camp, Sons of Confederate Veterans, chairman of the Memorial Day program, states that this year it is impossible for several units, usually in the parade, to participate.

Stonewall Jackson Camp, United Confederate Veterans, once with a membership of nearly 200, now has on its rolls only nine names, and of these probably only five veterans will be able to attend the exercises.

Judge to Address Liquor Foes.

Danville, Va., May 25 (Spl.).—Federal Judge Johnson Hayes, of North Carolina, has tentatively accepted an invitation to address a mass meeting here under the auspices of the organization which is opposed to the opening of a liquor dispensary in Danville. The date remains to be set.

Three Murder Clews Blasted In Short Order

Phone Calls, Screams, and Note Are No Help in Teacher's Death.

me," led to belief that the murdered woman had guarded a secret for which she might have been slain. But Sheads yesterday revealed that his cousin had written the note four or five years ago. She had feared death through a stroke, and kept the note always by her bed.

Neither the coroner nor the police last night had fixed with any certainty the exact hour of Miss Sheads' death. It was ascertained that her murderer descended from the lower ladder of the apartment house fire escape at 10:35 p. m. At about 10 p. m., occupants of an apartment below Miss Sheads' thought they heard a woman screaming, and the sound of a thud. But it seemed to come from below their suite, rather than from above, and after a brief search they gave it no further thought until the uproar following discovery of the murder.

Talked on Phone at 9 p. m.

An attempt to fix the time of the murder at a few minutes before 9 o'clock was made by Miss Lynina Sheads, youthful and attractive third cousin of the slain woman, who had been conversing with her on the telephone at that time.

The younger Miss Sheads told yesterday of how their conversation terminated abruptly, that the former teacher did not respond to her "good night" greeting, and that after a lengthy silence the receiver in the murdered woman's apartment was replaced "softly." But investigation showed that the slain Miss Sheads, after talking with her cousin, had called her family physician, Dr. Mary Parsons, and chatted for 20 minutes.

From the gist of these telephone conversations, and from the slain woman's only Washington relatives, it was determined definitely that she had no known enemies and no reason to fear attack by anyone. The coroner said yesterday there was no evidence of other criminal attack.

Robbery, therefore, is believed to be clearly the motive that led her murderer to enter her apartment.

Professional Thief Indicated.

That nothing of value was taken, police believe, points to a professional thief, who would be wary of being apprehended in the possession of anything belonging to Miss Sheads after the murder.

As nearly as could be ascertained last night, the events immediately surrounding the tragedy were:

Miss Sheads, who at first had anticipated attending a reception of the Sons of Union Veterans at the Hamilton Hotel Thursday night, had announced her intention of remaining at home and resting, instead.

"I am tired out, with painters here all day," she told a friend Thursday afternoon. "I believe I'll stay at home and lie down."

In the course of the evening, she telephoned to Miss Lynina Sheads and to her physician, chatting with them at some length over unimportant matters.

The telephone call to Miss Sheads at her father's Kansas avenue home, one end of which was followed with the customary family interest by several relatives of the younger woman, was from 8:50 to 8:55 p. m. That to Dr. Parsons was from 9 to 9:20 p. m.

Woman's Screams Haerd.

At 10 p. m., Mrs. Georgia Dowl, who occupies a fourth floor apartment beneath that of Miss Sheads, summoned John Bethan, colored elevator boy in the Balfour, and told him she had heard a woman screaming, followed by the inevitable "dull thud," on the third floor. A search, in which they were joined by Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Winship, other residents of the Balfour, revealed nothing.

Comparative quiet was restored in the apartment house until 10:35 p. m. At that hour, several first floor residents called Bethea to say they had heard the creak and clang of the lower section of the fire escape as it was lowered onto the alley pavement. Rain was falling in a steady downpour, and when the elevator boy reached the outer door in the rear o fthe apartment, the murderer—if it was he who had descended the fire escape—had disappeared.

Climbing the escape to determine whence the intruder had gone, Bethea found the window and screen of Miss Sheads' bedroom open. He did not climb in. Instead, he clambered rapidly down.

Policeman Discovers Body.

To Bethea's relief and that of other startled tenants of the now thoroughly aroused apartment house, Motorcycle Policeman M. G. Randall happened along. To him was left the task of taking to the fire escape again and discovering the body.

Investigation then revealed that the murderer undoubtedly had entered through the window. Miss Sheads for years had been in the habit of interrogating callers through a transom before opening her apartment door.

An apartment on the floor above that occupied by the slain woman was found to be vacant. Its door was open, as was a window leading onto the fire escape directly above Miss Sheads' apartment.

Police believe a burglar, who had slipped into the Balfour in quest of unlocked doors and unoccupied apartments, had entered that on the sixth floor and had descended the fire escape. If he looked in Miss Sheads' window and saw the furniture in disarray, heaped up to make room for the painters and decorators, he may have believed the suite vacant.

Killer Had Powerful Hands.

At any rate, he surprised, or was surprised by Miss Sheads, felled her with a blow of his fist which blacked an eye and inflicted an abrasion on her nose. Then he strangled her.

As Coroner MacDonald reconstructs the scene, there was not much struggle.

"She had been severely throttled," said the coroner last night. "Her assailant had very powerful hands. Death came quickly.

"There was no evidence that the purpose of the attack was other than to silence the victim."

Where Police Believe Murderer Fled

As police pushed their search yesterday for the murderer of Miss Mary E. Sheads, 65-year-old retired Washington school principal, they were confident her slayer fled by this fire escape at the Balfour Apartments after the brutal killing.

2 Dead Bandits Avenge Bank Guard's Son

a car slowed before the Jefferson Park Hospital on the South Side of Chicago and dumped out a wounded man, who, police said, was one of the South Holland gang.

The dead man was identified as John Cozzi, 21, of Chicago. The fatally wounded man, police said, was Ben Toccio, 19, also of Chicago. He died from loss of blood late today.

South Holland was prepared for the robbers. Shortly before opening time for the South Holland Trust and Savings Bank, Police Chief Leonard H. Lagestee spied a small, fast sedan cruising past.

De Young Bides Time.

"I think it's a stick-up," he told Charles E. Waterman, president. De Young mounted his post, a steel shield on the balcony of the bank, commanding a clear view of the floor below.

Lagestee hurried across the street of the quiet little town, a settlement of Dutch truck farmers, and warned Neal Van Kanegon, garage owner. Van Kanegon got out an elephant gun. Lagestee loosened two pistols in their holsters.

The bandits' car stopped. One man took up a station at the bank door. Another waited in the car. Four went in. All were masked. Four entered, yelling to terrorize the bank employes.

"This is a stick-up!" the leader shouted. He shoved a sawed-off shotgun at the bank president and at the president's son, M. H. Waterman, cashier. Both dropped to the floor behind their counter.

Guard's Big Moment Comes.

Then came the time De Young had been waiting for since they found his son, Peter, 31, dead in the bank last February 10.

He drew a bead on the leader and shot. The bandit buckled and dropped. De Young swung his gun toward the second man, climbing up an 8-foot partition to get at the money drawers. One shot knocked him from this perch.

At the mercy of a sniper they could not see, the remaining robbers fled for the door. De Young caught a third as he reached it. Outside, Van Kanegon and Chief Lagestee opened fire. The outside guard made the car, reached out and grabbed the newest casualty by the scruff of his coat.

Hauling him in, the bandits sped away. The wounded man's legs dangled out of the car.

Two Auto Racers Die in Speed Test

Pete Kreis and Mechanic Killed at Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, May 24 (AP).—A speeding racing car hurtled from the course of the Indianapolis motor speedway today and carried to death its pilot, Pete Kreis, Knoxville, Tenn., sportsman, and his mechanic, Bob Hahn, of Chico, Calif. At 90 miles an hour the car went out of control.

It was the first fatal accident of this year's preliminaries to the annual Memorial Day classic, but it brought to a total of 25 the deaths resulting from a quarter century of racing at the local track.

The accident occurred while Kreis was out tuning up his car preparatory to a resumption this afternoon of the time trials.

Wife of Man Who Sued Fairbanks Asks Divorce

Los Angeles, May 25 (AP).—Jorgen Von Dietz, who brought two suits against Douglas Fairbanks, jr., charging alienation of affections of his first wife and false imprisonment, both of which later were dismissed, was sued for divorce today by his second wife, Helene Kovacs Dietz, known on the screen as Lucy Doraine.

She married Dietz shortly after he filed the two suits, asking a total of $70,000 damages.

Fight to Finish On Bids Is Aim Of Ford Agent

Attempt to Lift Ban on U. S. Sales May Go to Supreme Court.

Denied permission to post a supersedeas bond, which would prevent the Government from rejecting bids on Ford trucks pending an appeal from the ruling of Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue that the Federal Department could not be compelled to act on these bids, Joseph W. Sherier, counsel for the Northwest Motor Co., of Bethesda, Md., announced yesterday that the fight to reverse the justice's decision would be carried to the Supreme Court of the United States if necessary.

"We'll spare no expense or effort to have a showdown on the decision," Richard B. Sabine, president of the motor company said.

The supersedeas bond was asked by Sherier until the case could be heard by the Court of Appeals. It would have required the Government to post a large bond to protect other bidders in case the Appellate Court should sustain Justice O'Donoghue's ruling.

Assistant U. S. Attorneys Harry L. Underwood and John J. Wilson opposed the granting of the supersedeas bond, pointing out that such a step would prevent the Government agencies from carrying out their recovery program.

The motor company contended its bid on the trucks, which was lower than any other submitted, was rejected solely because they were unable to furnish a certificate stating that the Ford Motor Co. would continue to comply with the President's code of fair competition.

them, with a sawed-off shotgun, came up to the second window and covered Mr. Waterman, the president. Another started to climb over the glass partition. And I figured that if I shot the second, the first would have killed Mr. Waterman. So I took aim at the first and shot him through the chest.

Then I got the other one through the stomach and he fell off the partition. I was using a .30-caliber automatic rifle and I fired five shots altogether.

I feel bad when I think of these fellows, but I feel worse when I think of Peter. He was my only son and he left a wife and a baby, and he was just getting ready to take my place. These fellows got into the bank during the night and they shot him down right there in front of the vault as he came in to substitute for me that morning.

It's a disgrace to our government to tolerate these fellows. If they had surrendered, they might have gotten a little jail sentence or might have been resoued some way. But the dead ones can't shoot down anybody any more.

Settle, Stratosphere Flier, Going to China

Lieut. Comdr. Thomas G. W. Settle, holder of the American altitude record for stratosphere balloons, was en route last night to Shanghai, China, where he will take command of the Yangtse River gunboat Palos of the Navy's Asiatic fleet.

Commander Settle, who last November attained 61,237 feet in a stratosphere belloon with Maj. Chester L. Fordney, of the Marine Corps, is leaving the post of executive officer in charge of the training school at Lakehurst, N. J., at his own request, Navy officials said.

Coal Oil Causes Arrest Of Owner in Home Fire

Detection of coal oil on a table in the basement of a residence in the 1500 block of Ninth street northwest, that caught fire yesterday, led to the arrest of Charles Fisher, 50, colored, owner, and James H. Lewis, 39, colored, of the same address, according to police.

Fire in the three-story brick building was confined to the front and middle basement rooms. The pair is being held pending investigation.

"Super Brain Trust" Urged To Solve Nation's Problems

Retired Industrialist, From Europe, Hits "Hanky-Panky."

For the last several days an energetic European gentleman, his pockets stuffed with charts and letters, has been knocking on the doors of Government officials with a big idea.

His idea, he contends, would make this Nation the most efficient in the world. It would do that for any democracy ready to try it out, he believes.

The gentleman is H. Scherbak, retired European industrialist, who turned from a successful business career to the Quixotic mission of working out plans to help the world get along better. His latest idea, on which he spent two years of research, is the one he is offering the Federal Government.

A "super brain trust," he calls it. "Contact station" is another term he uses.

The idea hinges around a central intelligence bureau which would maintain extensive lists of the names of experts on every subject affecting the welfare of the Government. This "contact station" would be established as a sort of clearing house bureau of the Federal Government, and would maintain intimate contact with every other Government department.

Would Cover Wide Field.

From each department it would take the names of all its experts—experts on export monopolies, airplanes, Japanese language, men who know subversive movements of inventions, of the best type of ammunition, of typewriters. From the various trade associations of the country, from the universities, from States and municipalities, it would assemble the names and background of every expert on every subject conceivable.

Then, Scherbak contends, the Federal Government would be in possession of a highly efficient intelligence bureau, in a position instantly to single out expert knowledge to meet any conceivable situation. Should the President want to assemble a committee representing the best learning in the country on European treaties, he would merely phone the "contact station," make his request, and a list from which to select a committee could be produced immediately.

"After all, all this would do would be to tap the latent, unutilized powers of a democracy," Scherbak explains forcefully, his clipped English snapping each word. "We could smash Bolshevism. We could smash terrorism. And just by this simple method.

"The brain trust is a good idea. But the brain trust already is outmoded. It is too unwieldy. This is a super brain trust, and it would work."

Has Demonstrated Plan.

Scherbak has demonstrated his scheme, which he contends is based on elemental principles used by any successful industry, to a number of Government departments and bureaus, including the Commerce Department, the National Emergency Council, the Bureau of Standards and the Library of Congress. Everywhere the dynamic planner appears he has aroused interest.

Planning is no new novelty to Scherbak. Born near the field of Austerlitz, he left home as a lad and has traveled the world. He has erected factories in Japan, in India, in France, in Germany. He produced cheap uniform cloth from wood pulp and wool refuse—literally "spinning dust." He succeeded at what he touched, but tiring of business, he turned to more altruistic activities. With an office at Geneva, another at Paris, and with frequent visits to Washington and other world capitals, he found himself in good position to observe national and international needs.

"Too much hanky-panky," is the way he sums up the world's troubles. And to eliminate this "hanky-panky," he sat down and worked out his brain trust scheme. That, he contends, would substitute directed, controlled knowledge for "hanky-panky," and the world would be that much better off.

Burney Program Set for Tomorrow

Feature Will Be Early English Music.

An unusual program of early English music for viols and voice will be presented by the Burney Club, in cooperation with the music department of the Y. W. C. A. tomorrow at 5 p. m. in Barker Hall. The composers represented are Henry Purcell, Henry Lawes, William Young, William Byrd, John Jenkins and Richard Farrant. With the exception of two numbers, all the music will be heard for the first time in Washington. The concert is open to the public.

Members of the Burney Club participating are Sade C. Styron, Mary Park Clements, Julia Robinson, Helen Foster, Richard Lorleberg, Joseph Kaspar and Meyer Laskin. The club will be assisted by the Madrigal Singers, directed by Mrs. John Milton Sylvester, and the Covenant Quartet, George H. Wilson director.

Miss Styron is president of the Burney Club, of which the other officers are Edward C. Potter, Mary Ware Goldman and LaSalle Spier. The organization, which is named for Charles Burney, the English organist and musical historian, takes particular interest in music of the Tudor period.

Commissioners Oppose Sale of Tenley School

The District Commissioners yesterday declared opposition to the bill now before Congress which would permit the sale of the old Tenley School to St. Ann's Catholic Church. At present the building is leased by the church for use as a parochial school.

In a report to Congress, Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen said that the Board of Education thought that the building might be needed for public school purposes after the expiration of the St. Ann's lease.

The Copyright Treaty.

In its rush toward adjournment the Senate ought not to overlook the copyright treaty. President Roosevelt has expressed his interest in ratification of this agreement in his recent letter to Robert Underwood Johnson. The State Department as well as thousands of American writers and artists are urging action at the present session of Congress.

Ratification of the treaty would make the United States a member of the International Copyright Union, thus extending protection against literary and artistic piracy to a world-wide basis. Authors in 53 other countries now enjoy these safeguards. The United States is one of the few countries which still relies upon outmoded bilateral agreements which afford very incomplete protection.

It is especially important that the treaty giving this country membership in the Copyright Union be approved at this session because another conference on copyright matters is anticipated next year. The American Government ought to be represented at that gathering as a member of the union, to foster any adjustments that may appear desirable.

In a world where culture, literature and art freely overrun national boundaries, and many masterpieces attract world-wide attention, it is anomalous indeed to keep our copyright law on a narrowly national basis. American authors are deprived of adequate protection abroad, and the American public is denied important books from other countries. With the ratification of this treaty, copyright matters will become subjected to a definite body of international law that may be almost universally applied.

Not all of the advantages arising from this treaty are of an international character, however. Together with the Cutting-Luce bill, which is designed to make our statutes conform to the international copyright law, it would afford writers, artists and composers immediate protection everywhere against unauthorized use of their productions. In other words, copyrighting would become automatic with the creation of an artistic production. It would not be necessary for authors to follow complicated formulas to avoid indiscriminate appropriation of their work.

A First Step.

For the first time in 13 years motorists may now drive to Great Falls on the Virginia side of the Potomac without paying a toll. The old Washington, Great Falls and Dranesville highway—the last vestige of the toll road system in this vicinity—has been sold to the Madeira School and opened free to the public.

While this sale appears to be an important step in the development of a suitable highway to Great Falls via Virginia, it is only a beginning. The existing road is narrow and much in need of reconstruction. Indications are that it will be turned over to the State if the authorities at Richmond will agree to put it in proper condition.

Virginia thus has an opportunity to acquire a section of road that will acquire unusual significance when the George Washington Memorial Highway is completed. As a link in the boulevard system that will connect Mount Vernon with Great Falls this road ought not to be left to private ownership and development, even though the toll has been discontinued.

Quest For Utopia.

Undiscouraged by the defeat of his Constitutional amendment to abolish the Electoral College, Senator Norris is preparing to fight for an amendment to the Nebraska Constitution permitting a unicameral body to replace the present two-house Legislature. The attractive yet controversial simplicity of the Senator's political philosophy is revealed by his declaration that the proposed State amendment would take politics out of the Legislature and "do away to a large extent with lobbying."

Apparently many reformers find it hard to realize that the will must precede the way; that there can be no hope of a more nearly perfect democracy, for instance, merely from edicts to that end. Indeed, a somewhat naive reliance upon changes in the mechanism of government to cure evils rooted in the imperfections of men is responsible for a vast amount of misdirected reforming zeal. It is not only in the field of politics that people try to attain perfectibility by reconstructing the machinery of social life, instead of concentrating on improvement in the moral standards of those who operate the machinery.

It would be stupid to decry the value of mechanistic changes which make it harder for men to escape responsibility for their own actions, and more dangerous for them to indulge in antisocial practices. But in our efforts to attain Utopia it is well to remember that a community of philosophers would regulate itself with very few laws, and that an insistence upon corrective political machinery implies that the populace is getting further away from, rather than closer to, the goal sought. Doubtless some children benefit from being spanked. But few would argue that the device of spanking is virtuous in itself.

The Wagner Labor Bill.

Emergency consideration is being given to Senator Wagner's industrial disputes bill on the ground that its passage is imperative to prevent a further spread of strikes and lockouts that are assuming menacing proportions. Under existing conditions of unrest, there is a great temptation to grasp at a remedy without careful consideration of its efficacy. Senator Wagner, for instance, does not show how his bill would provide a solution of the labor problem. He merely assumes that by penalizing those who obstruct certain prescribed forms of collective bargaining, conflicts can be avoided.

The existence of an emergency does not of itself remove the objections in principle to the Wagner bill, nor strengthen the case for its acceptance, unless its form be strongly modified. The arguments against the establishment of a Federal Labor Board, armed with power to enforce its decisions upon employers, are as valid now as they were when the measure was first proposed.

Coercive Federal laws will not assure the successful conduct of collective bargaining nor guarantee the establishment of peaceful relations between labor and capital. The representative character of labor unions can not be determined by legislation. Repression of trade union organization can not be countenanced. But employers similarly can not be threatened into meting out justice to workers by a Federal Board empowered to dictate the form which unionization shall take. The basis for mutual confidence and understanding between labor and capital can not, in short, be legislated into being. It has to grow as organized labor proves that it draws authority from its leadership and discipline, rather than from an act of Congress.

As originally drafted, the Wagner bill would substitute government coercion for voluntary action, under conditions that would tend to perpetuate a type of trade unionism that is perhaps not even adequate to the requirements of present-day industrial development. The scheme has been too much a mechanistic device for assuring a settlement of labor disputes. It would transform a voluntary and flexible system of collective bargaining into governmentally supervised agreements, bearing a dictatorial note.

Unless both labor and capital are willing to "play fair" it is impossible to devise methods for preventing conflicts, short of a rigid state control involving the elimination of independent trade unionism. Certainly an effort to preserve industrial peace by applying coercion to unwilling negotiators offers no promising way out of our present troubles. The representative character of collective bargaining can be assured by the methods adopted for the automobile industry, if both sides are prepared to accept the findings. When the "will to peace" is lacking, industrial conflicts are inevitable.

Mere Inadvertence?

Publication of the President's silver message was followed by a break in silver prices which would, it is said, have been considerably larger if the Treasury had not entered as a supporting buyer. This reactionary movement is ascribed to the proposal to levy a tax of at least 50 per cent on silver trading profits.

The discovery that the Senate could not incorporate a revenue provision in an original bill followed the drop in silver prices. It may have been mere inadvertence that the error was not discovered at the time Senator Pittman introduced the measure. At any rate, the amendment deleting the offending section was not offered until the following day. Senator Pittman admitted that "it has sometimes been held that where a revenue provision is purely incidental to other legislation, such a provision might originate in the Senate." Presumably the House bill will carry the deleted section in accordance with the President's wishes, despite Senator Long's assumption that it has been permanently abandoned. He told Senator Pittman, in fact, that it was a very good amendment, "which makes possible an American market for silver instead of having the price fixed in the London market."

If the silver-buying plan is, as asserted, primarily designed to increase the amount of money in circulation, instead of to bestow subsidies upon speculators, its advocates should firmly insist upon safeguards against excessive speculative profits.

A Nation's Songwriter.

When, finally, the cultural history of the twentieth century is written how much space will be devoted to Irving Berlin? Just at present, as all who heard him on the radio the other evening will admit, it seems that he will deserve far more than a footnote.

Away back in 1910 he sat down at a piano—he was then Izzy Baline, son of a kosher meat inspector—and picked out his first song hit: "My Wife Has Gone to the Country." Since then he has written at least 25 songs that almost every American has hummed, whistled, danced to, or otherwise absorbed into the National consciousness. "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "When I Lost You," "Down on the Farm," "What'll I Do?" "All Alone," "Always," "The Song Is Ended" (but the melody lingers on!) and "Not For All the Rice in China"—these are only a few of the songs that Berlin has written and America has sung.

The secret of Berlin's musical success probably lies in the fact that technically he knows nothing about music. He plays by ear the songs that form in his head, and he writes the words that accompany them. There is nothing pretentious, and much that is purely sentimental, about them all. Many have been written out of his own experience with life. Because of their simplicity, because of their sentimentality, because of their, at times, surface sophistication, they have always "caught on" with the public. If he had studied he would have become ambitious, like George Gershwin; if he had not been brought up on the East Side he might have had less purely popular appeal, like Jerome Kern. Berlin, however, has written music for a quarter of a century for just two important reasons: because he liked to, and because it was his chosen way of making a living.

There are few rhythmic tricks to a Berlin song. Girls and boys and radio songsters can understand and render them. But because they are written out of a knowledge of ordinary folks and their likes and dislikes, they are, like the ballads of old, pretty certain of long survival. The latest proof of Berlin's right to the title of Songwriter for the American Nation is that, although he began his work 25 years ago, in 1934 he wrote the words and music for the biggest theatrical hit of recent years: "As Thousands Cheer." No, the historian of our culture can not afford to neglect this record. For the record is pretty completely the history of popular songs in our day.

Solution Deferred.

One could not escape a feeling of futility as one read in the newspapers on the same day stories of the death of Brand Whitlock and of the riots at Toledo.

Whitlock became mayor of that city back in the muckraking period of our history. His experiences there led him to write "The Thirteenth District," a politico-social novel that attracted some attention when it first appeared in 1902. In that same general period, as Granville Hicks has pointed out, many writers who had achieved success as regionalists or romanticists, or both, followed the lead of the journalists and gave the public what they wanted—namely, "muckraking novels." Mary Wilkins Freeman wrote "The Portion of Labor;" Octave Thanet, "The Lion's Share;" Alfred H. Lewis, "The Boss;" Reginald Wright Kauffman, "The House of Bondage;" Winston Churchill, his political trilogy; Joseph Medill Patterson, "A Little Brother of the Rich;" Leroy Scott, "To Him That Hath," and William Allen White, "A Certain Rich Man."

Politics, sociology and the oppression of labor were the themes of these writers who felt an urge to defend the underdog and expose corruption in high places. The novelists followed the lead of the magazine muckrakers because the former had created, in McClure's and elsewhere, a demand for that sort of writing. But even the novels were at heart journalistic. They pointed out evils; they cried for reforms. Yet, almost universally, they offered no fundamental remedy for the evils written about. Lincoln Steffens was one of the few who seemed to feel that there was "something more involved than the difference between virtuous men and dishonest ones."

Even David Graham Phillips, best of them all from a purely literary point of view and perhaps the most sincere, had no cure for the various political and social disorders which were examined in his clinic. They all agreed with William Allen White that America was money-mad, but they showed no route to a better life, except perhaps a return to the way of their Puritan forefathers. It was an exciting period. The industrial barons were amassing fortunes, and America was making tremendous material progress. They were the "years of hope," which produced many high aims—if very little great literature. And the very day which saw one of the most sincere of these reformer-novelists die, witnessed also fierce industrial warfare in the town where he was once the mayor.

President Masaryk.

In the midst of Europe's welter of dictatorships Czechoslovakia continues to put her faith in leaders who believe in democratic principles. On Thursday Dr. Thomas G. Masaryk was reelected president for his third term, by overwhelming vote of the National Assembly. Next Monday this war-born republic will celebrate the fiftieth birthday of Dr. Eduard Benes, its foreign minister. Together these two statesmen stand as a symbol of liberal and enlightened political leadership.

Dr. Masaryk begins another seven-year term at the age of 84. After 14 years of arduous office he is more than ever the beloved leader of a grateful people, for his statesmanship has truly borne fruit. Though the Czechoslovak Republic is still in its infancy, though it has many unsolved and dangerous problems, it has established and is maintaining an enlightened government that would do credit to a much older nation.

For this heritage Czechoslovakia is deeply indebted to its scholarly chief executive. In addition to being the organizer and leader of the Czechoslovak revolution, Dr. Masaryk has really been the soul of the new government set up at Prague. The people have looked to him for cultural and philosophical guidance as well as political leadership. "I regard politics as the medium of realization of my goal," he once said, "my goal being that of religion and morals. • • • My reasons for believing in the success of democracy lie in my faith in man, my faith in his worth, in his spirituality and in his immortal soul."

So Czechoslovakia remains complacent in spite of Europe's rising tide of dictatorship. And it is clear that much of his country's faith is due to Dr. Masaryk's success in keeping politics on a high moral plane. He is essentially a philosopher, and philosophy to him means a scientific search for answers to the practical problems of life. Constructive politics, he rightly feels, is merely a practical realization of reasoned philosophy.

One of our National weeklies has been barred by officials of Vienna, probably on the theory that they already have enough baloney.

Real Estate Bonds.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a good citizen of the United States, I herewith set forth the following facts relative to the real estate bond situation:

I have some real estate bonds which I bought through exertion and hard toil of the best years of my life. These bonds were purchased as an investment, from an institution which proudly proclaimed "not a penny loss to an investor in 39 years," to support the declining years of my life.

I, and thousands of other decent, substantial and law-abiding citizens gave not only our best years of honest toil, but helped to make this country a more livable one through investment of our hard-earned dollars in real estate bonds.

Today every one of my real estate bonds is in default. Receivers are in control of the various buildings, in which the tenants are paying rent. Some of the receivers are riding around in limousines and just enjoying themselves handsomely at the expense of the deserving equity and bond holders, who are living in misery, desperation and want.

Now these properties do not represent closed banks, but actual physical properties which even the depression has not been able to wipe out. I have done some private investigating on my own account and found that four-room flats are renting at from $35 per month and upward, and the astonishing fact is that in one particular building there are only three vacancies out of a total of 70 apartments! Yet the bondholders are not receiving one penny and the taxes are piling up.

A child can see that some receivers are out to plunder all they can, and with their attitude of "the bondholder can go to grass" something has got to be done about it.

It is evident that locally there exists a "do nothing" attitude toward many thousands of bondholders. If the United States Government adopts a "do nothing" attitude then it will not be long before these buildings will be in the same class as a closed bank.

We bondholders are not asking for something foolish. Just as a matter of fact I have discussed this situation with quite a few of my friends, and we are in agreement that there is no more sensible situation anywhere that demands the most complete investigation and assistance by the United States Government than the real estate bond situation.

After all, we are only asking for a square deal. D. R.

Religious Observance.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When Benjamin Harrison was President, I am informed that out of respect to the religious habits of a number then living in Washington and associated with the Government he changed the day of the White House receptions from Thursday to Wednesday evenings, so as not to conflict with the established hour of midweek worship, which happens to come on Thursday in the city of Washington. A subsequent administration changed it back again. However, no one today would be disposed to register objection to the White House receptions coming on Thursday evenings because of an occasional invitation going to those in the habit of attending their midweek worship in their several churches.

But that is a far cry from what happened in Washington last Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. When one reads that our Government stages a colorful and secular demonstration in the chamber of the House of Representatives in an official joint session at the hour of 11 o'clock on Sunday morning, to do homage to the memory of Lafayette, the Chief Executive being the principal speaker of the occasion, and arrangements being made for a National broadcast, it gives one pause. The memorial service for Lafayette had nothing to do with religion, though religion was lugged in by the ears and the two chaplains of the Senate and House, respectively, were brought into the picture in an official capacity.

But the point of my feeble protest is this: Is our Government to join officially the ranks of those who are determined to break down the religious habits of our citizenry in a day when nothing else is so much needed? This is all of a part with a feeling that so many of us have had since the days of the World War—a feeling that it is difficult to trace to anything in particular, but is due to everything in general, that entirely too many unbelieving men and women, and perhaps some definitely antireligious, and a few raucous godless ones, have entirely too much to say in the direction of the affairs of our Nation, which in spite of all evidences to the contrary has a vast host of God-fearing Christian men and women whose habits our Government might at least respect.

The Major's Holiday.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Gladly do I lend my voice to the chorus of praise for "The Impressionist," who adds spice to many a morning which otherwise might be drear. His friend, the Major, also proves a jolly breakfast-table companion—but does he not err in speaking of "National" holidays?

Have we any such? We may have one, Labor Day, I believe, having been proclaimed a National holiday by Congress; but no other. States have done their duty in this regard, but not the country as represented in the Capitol. Even Thanksgiving would not be a holiday were it not for a special proclamation. Should the President forget to name this day in any one year, or should he deem that the country had nothing for which to be thankful, well, it would be just too bad for the turkey crop.

A tired vacationist once said that a law should be enacted making every day following a holiday another holiday. Perhaps that would please the Major. Or he would enjoy living in Peru, where they rest or recreate 65 days a year, in addition to the 52 Sundays. Perhaps it would be well to have a National holiday code under the NRA. That at least would give more gloomy joy to the splenetic pessimism upon which Clarence Darrow thrives.

A Hint for Mr. Farley.

To The Editor of The Post—Sir: Apropos of Mother's Day, which we have been hearing so much discussed in your paper, why has not someone thought of suggesting an Old Maid's Day?

We might call it for politeness, "Spinster's Day," or "Maiden Aunt's Day," which would be very appropriate. I have yet to see one of the latter who was not struggling or agonizing over someone else's children, without a parent's hope of reward.

As for an appropriate flower, she might be seen gazing wistfully at a vase of Orange Blossms, or a bowl of Bleeding Hearts, as the case might be. This would give us a lovely postage stamp.

By all means, as a matter of common gratitude, and appreciation, let us have from now on, a "Maiden Aunt's Day."

Appreciations.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Post Impressionist column has furnished me, since its beginning, most interesting and delightful reading, and for some time I have intended writing you to say so. The article on Joan Ramsey was so beautifully done that I can no longer neglect telling you how much I appreciate it.

ROLAND WOOD.

Inequality of Values.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Who is to be benefited under the new building program which is now being sponsored by our President? There is no standard of value on real estate. The present home and apartment owners can not carry much longer the burdens resting upon them in the way of interest, taxes, improvements and reduction charges; and builders, those who formerly built to sell, have no encouragement to borrow money to build new homes until some form of stabilization appears on the horizon.

Communities will in some way have to be aided in getting down from the pinnacle which they occupy on account of the wide variance between the conditions under which their present debts were contracted and conditions existing today. They never will be able to pay what they owe under the present rate of inequality of values. Before a building program can be launched successfully, there must be effected an adjustment of the unequal balance between debts contracted under a ficticious and assumed valuation and the purchasing power of the dollar today.

As much as we would like to see a revival of activities in the neighborhood—the lives of a great many of us are vitally interested, and, to a large extent, dependent upon it—yet any thoughtful person must acknowledge there must first come a composure of the conflicting conditions before we can hope to have a substantial movement in the building direction. The country does not need so much an expansion of building as it does an improvised opportunity to improve the property which is rapidly deteriorating for the lack of funds with which to do this very necessary work. Property generally is going down in value to an alarming extent because funds are not readily available with which to make these needed repairs.

Toward Prosperity.

Most bed sheets are 18 inches longer today than they were 5 years ago, according to an official of the Cotton Textile Institute. That extra half-yard has meant an increase of 20 per cent in the amount of material used in the manufacture of sheeting. The next plan is to make a similar drive in Europe. It should be a great help to American cotton planters and cotton mills.

But why stop with bed sheets? Let there be scores of movements all over the land to change the sizes of almost everything which lends itself to such flexibility. Why not smaller holes in doughnuts and longer spaghetti? An inch could be added to bank checks, trolley car transfers and railroad tickets to help the paper trade. Three inches could be added to most restaurant napkins. Cocktail swizzle sticks could be made 2 inches longer. Men's hose and belts and neckties could be lengtheened gradually. Dish towels and babies' bibs could take another couple of inches without protest. But the elongaters should beware of going too far. They can't persuade most men to add an inch to the height of their collars.

The Post Impressionist

The Grand Manner.

Postoffice, Saturday.

OLD things die hardest. Up to five years, a little blow of the fist, and the bother is over; but after middle-age there is a perverse, an almost unwilling, tenacity. It is as if existence were a habit, or life a tree. Having begun cigarettes at twelve, one can't give up nicotine at sixty. There are roots—which survive branches. And literature is like life: the elder forms have the greater endurance. Survival of the fittest may not be survival of the best; but it is indisputably survival of the best fitted to survive.

So with history, considered as literature. There is nothing quite so deceased—not the Egyptian Book of the Dead—as last year's histories in the modern mode, nothing quite so old as those books that are still new books. Whereas, born to the Grand Manner and natural heir to its tradition, George Macaulay Trevelyan finishes, in the immemorial method, the third volume of his "England Under Queen Anne" (Longmans, Green & Co.), and it is as vital today as Clarendon was yesterday and will be tomorrow.

Why?

Stanley Pargellis in The Saturday Review of Literature, asks what the Grand Manner is. But to the answers he himself supplies he is scarcely more attentive than jesting Pilate.

The Grand Manner, says he, is "the art of catching a scene in vivid and romantic words." And he quotes Trevelyan in illustration:

"A hundred thousand men were moving to the attack, while over their heads flapped like sails a forest of huge flags, unfolding the blazonry of a score of the greatest States and Princes of Europe."

Prejudiced, pedantic Gibbon is an admitted master of the Grand Manner. But, save for the one note "blazonry," his organ-voice would never have been guilty of any note in that sentence.

And yet Trevelyan is a master of the Grand Manner, too.

The Grand Manner, says Mr. Pargellis, is "occasional bits of sentimentality." And he again quotes Trevelyan, this time about the old Queen Anne:

"Widowed; without a friend left to whom she cared to unbosom herself, or a statesman whom she any longer felt she could trust; her ears filled, not with the murmur of wise counsels for the safety of the land, but with the shrill invective of servants who thought more of their quarrels than of their duty or of her peace; in pain of body and confused of mind, she awaited her deliverance by the friend of all."

Yes, Gibbon could have said that. Certainly the other Macaulay would have said it—with the name "Azrael" or "Abou-Jahia" added, to explain, or confuse, the meaning of "the friend of all." But even such phrases as "the friend of all" are not all of the Grand Manner.

Mr. Pargellis is getting warmer in his game of hide-and-seek with the Grand Manner when he drops his search with two statements, a question—and an argument that he believes to be an argument about something else. He says:

"Above all other arts used for this grand effect is the art of the dramatist. . . . It takes a vivid historical imagination to produce such effects. But is it the only kind of imagination, or is it indeed the best? There is another kind which sees the destiny of nations writ, no less magnificently, in the growth of customs and institutions or in the ideas and wants of obscurer men than ministers and generals. There is an impish, dissatisfied imagination which suspects that somehow all these fine scenes are nothing but a play."

There he has nearly said it—and shown how far he is from knowing that he was near. "Above all other arts used for this effect is the art of the dramatist," yet there exists a type of mind which "suspects that somehow all these fine scenes are"—drama! In the sense that story is drama, the Grand Manner in history is Shakespearean. The historic Grand Manner is simply the making alive of dramatic facts and causing them to move and have their being in the eternal lure of purple and fine linen.

Marx was partly right, Mr. Pargellis is partly right. "The destiny of nations" is indeed "writ"—to use Mr. Pargellis' grand-manner verb—"in the growth of customs and institutions, or in the ideas and wants of obscurer men than ministers and generals"—although not only there. It is much writ there, but it is not much read there.

If history is not literary material, but is wholly science, then there is no reason why it should not be as badly written as most science is. Yet when it is regarded as science, it does not attract "another kind of imagination." It does not attract any imagination. It attracts the Dr. William Stubbses who write a "Constitutional History of England" and the John Richard and Mrs. John Richard Greens, who write histories of "The English People" and "Town Life in the Fifteenth Century"—not to mention our specialistic economic chroniclers. And the result of such attraction does not attract readers.

This is no discussion of what ought to be—notwithstanding a temptation to make it so. It is a statement of what is, and of what needs only to be stated to be proved.

All the Grand-Mannerists endure—inaccurate Gibbon endures—magniloquent Macaulay endures and George Macaulay Trevelyan continues—because "The Arabian Nights" do, because of one of the oldest instincts in man: the love of a "good story" chiefly about "swell people."

Along the Potomac

With Carlisle Bargeron

Mr. Truax, the Big Help.

I HOPE that when we finally get out of this depression none of us will be so ungrateful as to forget the part played by Representative Charles Truax of Ohio. Insofar as I personally am concerned one of the sustaining influences through all our trouble, through the darkest periods, has been his presence up on the Hill.

The very fact that he was there was in many instances sufficient in itself. Whether he did anything or not you knew that he was there with a helping hand. He has been like a lighthouse to ships in the night, a beacon there he has always been.

BARGERON.

It is one of the absurdities of people that any of them would suggest even a weakness in our democratic institutions with Mr. Truax right up there on the job. How any one could argue for Fascism or Socialism with this man doing his stuff in a Democratic regime is most difficult to understand.

* * * * *

Oh, I know there have been many dark hours during the past four years, times when the hardiest of us despaired and wondered whether our existing form of government could pull us through, but in every moment of doubt I only had to recall Mr. Truax to be reassured.

I don't think he is the speaker or a leader or anything of that kind, but he is there, ever ready to step in. He ought to be called a Gibraltar or something. Certainly he is a bulwark, though against what I am not prepared to state.

It was only yesterday that I read he had once more come to our rescue, had moved to check us from going over a precipice. He introduced a resolution calling upon the House to investigate whether the Darrow board had sought to propagate socialistic doctrines among the members of Congress. If that isn't enough to take one's breath in sheer admiration for him, for his perception and the agility with which he moves, I'll eat my hat.

* * * * *

I'll bet the Darrow board reckoned without him when it hatched its nefarious business. Hah, it's a joke on the board, too. Little did it realize that Mr. Truax is a candidate for Governor of Ohio and that manifestly he would not subscribe to any doctrines that would eliminate him from consideration for this gubernatorial office.

Not that that is the reason Mr. Truax moved so quickly. I am satisfied he would have moved to head the Darrow board off had he no personal interest at all. He has shown his willingness to pull us out of our troubles too many times.

* * * * *

One of the injustices of politics is that men like Mr. Roosevelt and his professors get all the credit for the slow improvement in things. Surely some should go to the Truaxes. Of course, if you ask me to specify one single problem he has solved I am afraid I should be at a loss to reply.

Let's see, there was a banking crisis, the problem of getting men back to work, the problem of turning under the wheat and the hogs, the problem of eliminating the chaos in business when we had no business for there to be chaos in (the justification of the NRA)—I don't believe I would associate him with any of these major undertakings.

But that does not cause me to waver in the slightest in my statement that he has been an upbuilding influence. Why, as the time for his gubernatorial campaign approaches you see his name in the papers all the time—always doing something constructive, too, such as his heading off the machinations of the Darrow board.

If there is any suggestion that he is devoting himself zealously to the gubernatorial campaign it would be because he considers that the outstanding problem before the country today. Who knows? The people have so many things to worry about. Maybe the most important thing in the world is his becoming Governor of Ohio. Very likely it is to him.

City Addition Body Named

Augusta Supervisors to Act With Staunton Men on Annexation.

Staunton, Va., May 25 (Spl.).—The Augusta County board of supervisors has named Chairman J. Frank Harper and W. Ken Smith to represent the board in annexation proceedings with the city of Staunton.

Several weeks ago 60-odd property owners petitioned council to initiate annexation proceedings in a territory embracing about 1,500 residents and having property valued at about three-quarters of a million dollars.

Mayor George A. Cottrell selected Councilmen Jesse M. Bratton and Charles K. Brown to represent the city in the matter. These two appeared before the supervisors, meeting here yesterday in the regular May session, and suggested that the board select two members to act with council's committee. The plan was unanimously approved.

The two committees will meet within a short time. All the land which it is proposed to annex lies in Beverley Manor district, which Mr. Smith represents on the board of supervisors.

Cadets Pitch Tents For S. M. A. Camp

237 Take Part in Annual Winchester Feature.

Winchester, Va., May 25 (Spl.).—The corps of Staunton Military Academy, Staunton, Va., numbering 237 cadets, and 15 members of the faculty arrived here today for their eighth annual encampment at the Municipal Park.

The encampment is in charge of Maj. A. M. Patch, U. S. A., with Col T. G Russell, of the S. M. A. faculty, as quartermaster. Tents were pitched shortly after arrival. An advance echelon had pitched the mess tents, officer quarters and guard tents.

The encampment this year will be known as Camp Thomas H. Russell, in honor of the late superintendent of the institution. Athletic events and competition in the various phases of military field operations will feature the encampment. Regular instruction on the rifle range will be conducted.

Elkton High School Gives 17 Diplomas

Elkton, Va., May 25 (Spl.).—Seventeen graduates received diplomas in commencement exercises tonight at the Elkton High School.

Dr. J. M. Henry, of Bridgewater College, spoke. B. G. Heatwole, principal, presided and presented the diplomas. The salutatory was given by Miss Hazen Glenn, and the valedictory by Miss Margaret Robinson. Musical numbers included a violin duet by Mrs. N. V. Fitzwater and Mrs. A. J. Parr. The Rev. W. H. Smith, of the local United Brethren Church, delivered a baccalaureate sermon to the graduates in services Sunday evening in the Methodist Church.

The ten girls and seven boys who received diplomas included Letha Alger, Virginia Alger, Jean Armentrout, Elizabeth Carrier, Mildred Fitzwater, Hazel Glenn, Audrey Hensley, Frances Lam, Margaret Robinson, Lois Zetty Statten H. Gooden, Williamson E. Hammer, Lewis L. Loker, Lurtie C. McDonald, Charles W. Shook, John F. Stevens and Elwood N. Workman.

Memorial Garden Rites Tomorrow

Tercentenary Exercises at St. Clement's Sunday.

Baltimore, May 25 (Spl.).—Members of three Baltimore organizations will go to St. Mary's County on Sunday to attend the dedication of the memorial garden that surrounds the tercentenary cross erected on St. Clements Island by the State of Maryland.

Organizations to be represented are the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Southern Maryland Society of the Colonial Dames and the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Dedication services, under auspices of the Society of Colonial Dames, will take place at the base of the cross in a 60-acre garden which was planned and planted by members of the society garden committee, under direction of Mrs. Frank J. Parran. The rock garden section of the tract was given by Baltimore City, the soil, plants and shrubs for it coming from historic places in the State.

2 Playmates Save Martinsburg Lad From Drowning

Martinsburg, W. Va., May 25 (Spl.)—Courageous action on the part of two small playmates prevented the drowning of little Victor Shockey, about 6, son of Mrs. N. H. Shockey, yesterday afternoon.

The little heroes were Stewart Davis, 7, and Ralph Shade, a year older. The three were playing in the rear of the Shockey home. Victor toppled head-first into a rainbarrel, filled with water, at the end of the house. Seeing his legs and feet protruding from the barrel, his playmates dragged him from his perilous position and summoned Mrs. Shockey. They had not acted any too promptly, because some time elapsed before the lad was finally revived.

Father Who Lost Own Child Offers Blood to Another

Baltimore, May 25 (Spl.).—Still grieving over the death of his 4-year-old son, several days ago, T. Bernard Heilmann today offered to provide blood for a transfusion for Jeanne Regina Ford, 6, the great-granddaughter of the founder of Ford's Theater here, who lies critically ill in Mercy Hospital from a streptococcus infection.

Heilmann's son died Tuesday from a similar ailment. A transfusion of the father's blood failed to save him. A daughter of Heilmann is ill in the same hospital.

Today Heilmann learned that Jeanne Regina was sinking, despite half a dozen transfusions, and stepped forward with his offer. The child is the daughter of Frank M. Ford, grandson of John T. Ford, who founded Ford's Opera House here and Ford's Theater in Washington, in which Lincoln was shot.

Insanity Defense Of Former Consul

Not Guilty Plea to Larceny of $26,000 Fund.

Baltimore, May 25 (Spl.).—A plea of not guilty by reason of insanity was entered in criminal court here today by Giovanni Schiaffino, 80, former Italian Consul, to charges of larceny in connection with money entrusted to him to be sent to Italy.

The aged man appeared in court, but the court psychiatrist submitted a report in which he said Schiaffino was "incompetent to stand trial." The family physician said Schiaffino is suffering from senile dementia.

Charges against Schiaffino involve $52,000, which Frank Angelozzi, a contractor, says he gave the consul to transmit to Italy to help pay for construction of a church in Angelozzi's home town. Only one-half of the money was sent, the contractor charged.

The personal representative of Presidents Harding, Coolidge and Hoover in care of disabled soldiers, she administered to American troops during World War in France. Educated at Lowell, Mass., and Mme. Julien's School, Paris. Elected to Congress to fill unexpired term of her late husband, John Jacob Rogers. Reelected Seventieth to present session. Active in veterans' and children's legislation, she recently caused small furor in House demanding the floor to cry in a high-pitched voice, "legalized murder" over the air mail debacle. Introduced resolution returning mail to private carriers. Consistently present at sessions, she moves smilingly about attired in vivid green or purple dresses, carrying herself with the Bay State air of a true aristocrat. Aggressive, capable and energetic.

Another Letter From a Dad To His Red-Headed Daughter

By Robert Quillen

My dear Louise: That little incident last night seemed too trivial for comment, yet it was charged with a significance that may affect your whole life.

Your were at home from school for the week-end. A rainy Sunday, largely devoted to sleep, had left you bored and a little lonely for the light-hearted comradeship of classmates.

So at 5 o'clock you spoke up casually and said: "What about taking me back tonight?"

Your mother, as you knew, had planned to drive up next morning on business of her own and thus, without making a special trip, get you back to your classes in ample time.

And yet, prompted by long habit, she answered automatically and without hesitation: "Of course. I'll be glad to."

Well, perhaps so. Maybe she wished to get out and take a little ride in the rain. But, on the more probable contrary, maybe she didn't. The point is that you desired something and asked for it and got it. Which surely is no great sin.

If some kind fairy should offer henceforth to grant every wish and desire of everybody, I suppose nine people in each ten—and probably the tenth, also—would consider it great good fortune.

But I assure you they would be mistaken. It isn't good for people to have everything they want. They soon lose the capacity to want anything, and then they are miserable.

The important thing, though, is that you should learn to deny yourself—to want something very much, and yet without rebellion or self-pity to do without for the sake of somebody else.

That ability is the very groundwork of character, and character is the sum and substance of the "personality" that will make your life or break it.

One of the noblest of the old Romans would do without water until he was very thirsty, then fill his mouth and spew it out without swallowing a drop.

Try something like it, my dear. Self-indulgence is the straight road to ruination. Love,

DAD.

Watkins Wins Peony Prizes

Takes First Individual Flower Place as Well as Collection.

Dr. Howard R. Watkins won first prize for the largest collection of named varieties of peonies at the sixth annual peony show of the Takoma Park Horticultural Club which closed last night. The show, at the Takoma Park branch of the Public Library, opened Wednesday.

Dr. Watkins also carried off the honor of having the best peony in the exhibition. The flower was a beautiful light pink "Judge Berry." Mrs. Edwin C. Powell judged the entries.

Col. William H. England was chairman of the show committee. Other members were Dr. Howard R. Watkins, vice chairman; Dr. Edwin C. Powell, Mrs. E. E. Riley, Clarence G. Carr, E. A. Hollowell, C. M. Purves, Frederick C. Duehring, Joseph F. Rose and Philip Kurz. Herman C. Heffner is chairman of the general exhibition committee, and J. Preston Swecker is president of the horticultural club.

Thursday and Friday the eighteenth annual rose show of the Takoma Park Horticultural Club will be held at the local branch of the Public Library.

Elders to Meet Bishop in June

Parley of Baltimore Area Is Scheduled for Staunton.

Staunton, Va., May 25 (Spl.).—The seven presiding elders of the Baltimore Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church South, will confer here with Bishop Edwin D. Mouzon Friday, June 15, it has just been announced.

Bishop Mouzon was assigned to the Baltimore Conference at the recent quadrennial session of the General Conference of the Southern Methodist Church at Jackson, Miss. He succeeds Bishop U. V. W. Darlington, who was temporarily placed in charge of the Episcopal Area some months ago upon the death of Bishop William F. McMurry.

The conference here between Bishop Mouzon and his seven key men in the Baltimore area, which embraces parts of the Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and all of the District of Columbia, will not be a public gathering, the bishop desiring to meet personally the elders and discuss the work in the conference as the church year draws to a close.

The presiding elders are: Baltimore district, Dr. John Paul Tyler, of Baltimore City; Lewisburg district, the Rev. C. L. DeLong, Lewisburg, W. Va.; Moorefield district, the Rev. H. C. Marsh, Romney, W. Va.; Roanoke district, Dr. J. C. Copenhaver, Roanoke City; Rockingham district, Dr. Selwyn K. Cockrell, Staunton, Va.; Washington district, Dr. J. H. Wells, Washington, D. C.; Winchester district, Dr. W. F. Locke, Winchester, Va.

Daily Talk About Books and Authors.

Three Ways to Write a Novel.

It is interesting to remember that our first three great English novelists respectively used the three methods of composition. Defoe in "Robinson Crusoe" (1719) wrote in the first person, Richardson in "Pamela" (1740) wrote entirely in letters, Fielding in "Joseph Andrew" (1742) wrote as an invisible and omniscient narrator.

Each method has its own peculiar advantages and drawbacks. Writing throughout in the first person gains in vividness and appeal; and this is the manner of "Lorna Doone," "David Copperfield," "Henry Esmond," and "Treasure Island;" the difficulty is that if the hero is narrating, you can not kill him. Even in the wildest excitement of that imperishable romance, "Lorna Doone," we know that John Ridd will survive, else how could he tell the tale? Now Stevenson, when he wrote his masterpiece, "Treasure Island," gained the advantage of the first person singular without losing the element of suspense; for he had the whole story told by a boy, who is one of the least important characters in the novel.

Richardson is the absolute master of the correspondence school of fiction. His three prodigious novels are told in the form of letters; and how he could write! He learned that as a clever child, when the inarticulate girls of his acquaintance all got him to write their love-letters; they told him in general what to say (he knew) and left the composition to him. That is where he got his incomparable knowledge of what is called "the female heart." And this is the method I recommend to all youthful aspirants to authorship. The only difficulty with the letter-method of novel-writing is, that it is difficult to get the whole of human experience into correspondence. Richardson happened to be a genius.

The third method, the one adopted at the start by Henry Fielding, gives its author the widest possible scope. It is the method of perhaps the majority of the great English novels, by Jane Austen, Walter Scott, Thackeray, Dickens, George Eliot, Thomas Hardy, and others. But when I was a boy, I used to wonder how the novelist knew all these things—was he like God in reading human hearts? For example, as I read "On the way home Geoffrey thought" how did the author know what he thought?

I imagine it must be the easiest way to write a novel, because it is the most common.

Labor Condemns Code "Chiselers" In West Virginia

Charleston, W. Va., May 25 (Spl.). — Resolutions condemning violations of the NRA codes and praising the recovery plan have been promulgated by the executive board of the West Virginia State Federation of Labor.

"Recent attacks made upon the NRA," the resolutions state, "have caused a great deal of misunderstanding as to just where organized labor in West Virginia stands upon this matter.

"Violations and chiseling upon the code of fair practices is not the fault of the act, but rather the fault of the dishonest, unscrupulous, law-violating employers who are guilty of this crime.

"Regardless of the attacks made we still believe that the passage of the act was intended to stabilize business and establish fair competition."

The resolution calls upon the entire membership of organized labor in the State to support the celebration of the anniversary of the NRA June 16 in Charleston.

Smithsburg Bank Will Pay $52,000

Peoples Company's First Dividend Due.

Hagerstown, Md., May 25 (Spl.).—The first dividend of 15 per cent of assets of the Peoples Banking Co., of Smithsburg, will be distributed shortly to 900 depositors, A. C. Merriam, examiner, announced today. Approximately $52,000 will be paid.

The bank was one of several taken into the Central Trust Co. of Frederick shortly before that chain of banks closed. Depositors won their fight to have the assets of the Smithsburg bank returned as of the date of the merger. The court ordered nearly all assets returned in March 1933. Receivers were named May 5, 1933.

It was also announced that the plan for reorganizing the bank has been withdrawn by the State Banking Commissioner and liquidation will go forward.

No End of Books

By Theodore Hall

From Centaur to Man of the Trees

IN a new green cover and a handsome inner format, the second number of the Centaur bows itself in with the merry month of May. This, if the name puzzles you, is one of Washington's two or three "little magazines," edited by Diana Kearny Powell, Henrietta Randolph Wirt, and John Dillon at 1528 Eighteenth street. Every two months it prints poetry, a spot of lyric prose, and book reviews.

In general, there seems an over-concern with "literary" topics—"War's duping lure," lichen eating stone, the moon, Salome, Queen Elizabeth, and death. What I shall remember is Helen Barc's cheery quatrain, "Bourgeois Query:"

"Do the gentility
Woo with tranquillity,
Transmuting tremolo
To tennis and polo?"

THEO. HALL.

Best, because most consistent and sure within itself, was James W. Saunders' "A Short Farewell." The editors are doing a commendable job.

Naturally, I looked sharpest at the book reviews. One, signed "G. C.," dealt capably and forcefully with Humbert Wolfe's translation of Ronsard's sonnets. "M. M. E." took up "The Making of Americans" and rather outdid Gertrude Stein herself—thus. "Americans are sometimes very dull being Americans, and when there is a book about them as they happen it can be very dull being a book." Quite. As for a review of James Laver's "Ladies' Mistakes" in the glib sauciness of a certain "T. H.," the less said of him the better.

"The Literary World, a new and valuable little survey of international letters published at 12 Mount Morris Park West, New York, comes out in its second issue with Celine's own explanation of "Journey to the End of the Night." Dr. Destouches (his real name) summarizes his motive in words he jovially imputes to Thomas a Kempis: "But if it's your destiny to croak like a frog, go to it for all you're worth!"

The book and the author are described at length elsewhere in the issue, and Samuel Putnam (who recently did Rabelais into American) accuses John H. P. Marks of a namby-pamby translation. For that quite enough evidence is given.

* * * *

A little unlimbered as yet, but promising to become one of our most entertaining bookish journals, is the first number of the Literary Observer, published by Edwin Valentine Mitchell at 27 Lewis street, Hartford, Conn.

Odell Shepard writes of America's first elephant (brought here in 1796, on a ship whose supercargo was Hawthorne's father). E. F. Benson does a little piece on Shakespeare's sonnets. E. J. Fitzgerald sails into Sinclair Lewis. A good deal of book chat and departments on art, the theater and the screen round out the issue pleasantly.

Now for the start I had while reading that novel yesterday—R. Hernekin Baptist's "Wild Deer." Lulled by fiction, I was following a character on page 237 as he talked of training the natives to conserve trees. Said Colenbrander: "And there's a cranky chap up near the equator tries to get at them through queer tribal methods—secret societies and native dances and such like. Sort of tree worship he's instilling. All to save Africa from being washed into the sea. But by God, Africa needs an army of such cranks!"

Well, I knew who that was, right enough. I met him a couple of summers ago in western New York State—a tall, red-faced, blonde-mustached Englishman named Richard St. Barbe Baker. He was horribly shy, and about as nice a person as one would want to know. His great uncle was that Samuel Baker who discovered the source of the Nile. He himself had served through the War, been "smashed up," as he put it, three times, and then had gone out to the mahogany forests of Kenya and Nigeria as an assistant forest conservator.

* * * *

It was there that he founded the "Watu wa Miti," the "Men of the Trees." More like the Boy Scouts than a form of tree worship, it was an honor society in which the native members swore before "N'gai," the High God, that they would do one good deed a day, plant ten trees a year and protect trees everywhere. Initiates wore a brass disk on the left wrist, had a secret grip and made use of a password—"Twahangwe" (pull together). The whole thing flourished like a prairie fire.

Should you want to learn more of Baker's success, you will find his own account in a big volume, "Men of the Trees" (Dial Press, 1931, $5). But the corner drug store has it for about $1.68. That society, by the way, is now world-wide and fashionable.

I had, the usual idea, of course, that the Englishman is stiff and unimaginative. But one day, as we rowed down Chautauqua Lake, he was telling me about Africa. We turned into a little creek, and there, in the still hot air, among dragon flies and bullfrogs and elderberry bushes, we suddenly knew we were nevertheless in the heart of the Dark Continent.

Stripped to the waist, with towels wrapped around our heads like turbans, we seized the oars and paddled bow and stern. He had taught me a song chanted on Lake Albert.

"Fun-gu-la na-sa-na, Hi fun-gu-la!"

we shouted at the top of our voices. Any minute there would be a herd of hippopotami around the bend.

Well, there were two old farmers quietly fishing for bass. I shan't soon forget the incredulous amazement on their faces.

V. P. I. to Give B. S. Degrees To 303 in June

Head of Hampden-Sydney to Speak; Alumni to Hold Reunion.

Blacksburg, Va., May 25 (Spl.).—Bachelor of science degrees are expected to be conferred upon 303 students at graduation exercises at Virginia Polytechnic Institute June 12.

Of this number, 29 completed degree requirements last September. The others will complete their final examinations the last week in May. Graduate degrees are expected to be conferred upon 48, 3 of whom completed the requirements last September.

Dr. J. D. Eggleston, president of Hampden-Sydney College and former president of Virginia Tech, will make the address to the graduates. Dr. Julian A. Burruss, president, will present the diplomas. M. D. Lockwood, Virginia Beach, will give the valedictory and C. D. Montague, jr., Fredericksburg, the salutatory.

In exercises for honor students and members of the six National honorary fraternities that have chapters on the Virginia Tech campus, former Gov. E. Lee Trinkle, Roanoke, will make the address. This meeting will be held June 11.

Reunion of 13 classes Monday is expected to bring between 400 and 500 alumni back to the Virginia Tech campus. W. N. McAnge, jr., Bristol, Tenn., president of the alumni association, will preside at the annual meeting that afternoon.

The Rev. Dr. Frederick A. Burnham, Richmond, will preach the baccalaureate sermon on June 10. Military formations, dances, receptions and engineers' "open house" complete the program.

Humane Deeds Supreme

Describing Last Day of Judgment, Christ Declares Man's Helpfulness to His Fellow Man Is Greatest Test for Soul.

By William T. Ellis.

"I tell you, there is somebody, somewhere, who gives us our licks!"

That remark is credited to Rudyard Kipling, in a discussion over the ubiquitous and ageless question of the existence and character of God—such a discussion as is raging somewhere every hour of every day; for the theme is humanity's oldest and profoundest interest.

Of late years, in certain circles which call themselves "intellectual" there has been a tendency to water down the idea of God. If such a Being exists, of which they are by no means sure—so runs their reasoning—He is a vague and amorphous Influence, possibly once creative, who is remote from concern in human affairs, and not to be reckoned as a factor in everyday life.

All nature, all history, and the innate conviction of mankind, makes necessary a Supreme Being personally interested in man. Even the atheist's instinctive cry, in a crisis, is "My God!"

If there be any God at all, He must be a great God. There is no room in modern thinking for a tribal Deity, for a small Idol. Only the Almighty and Eternal can be accepted by civilized man as his God.

Inescapable Justice.

Obviously, unless God be an absentee landlord, He must assure that justice be done, either here or hereafter: and with Him "a thousand years are as a day." Otherwise, mortals would be adrift in a meaningless, orderless world. It is inconceivable that there should be a Supreme Authority at work in the universe Who is uninterested in man, the only member of creation with the ability to reason, and to seek after a knowledge of his Creator. As the supreme concern of man is God, so it would also seem that the supreme concern of God is man.

In His own way and time, such a Being must administer the affairs of His creation. It is unthinkable that God should be a mere benevolent Influence, indifferent to those moral qualities in man which are derived from His own nature. Jellyfish minds depict the Almighty as the embodiment of sweetness and light, indifferent to justice (which, as Webster once declared, "is the supreme concern of heaven on earth") and to righteousness.

If a good God is ordering the affairs of this world, it is monstrous to suppose that responsible moral beings should be permitted, without penalty or punishment, to devote themselves to evil, working harm upon their fellows, flouting God Himself, and then in the end receive the same treatment as the sincere seekers after God's will who have nobly served their generation. Eternity must make right what is wrong in time, unless time and life be but a ghastly joke perpetrated by a cruel Supreme Power.

Christ Stern and Strong.

When moderns ponder God, they turn to Jesus as His interpreter. It is the Christian belief that Christ represented God; that the uttermost that the Deity could reveal or express concerning Himself was made plain by the One whom men call the Son of God. If you would know the nature of God, then consider Christ.

Modern mushy-mindedness has been busy with the figure of Jesus also, diluting Him into a sweet, gentle, ineffective Teacher who was defeated in the end. I wonder if the influence of the phrase in childhood's prayer, "Gentle Jesus, meek and mild," has been wholly good? For, while Jesus was love incarnate, He was also righteousness incarnate. From His kindly lips we have the stern picture of the Last Judgment—and, be it remembered, these were among His final words, spoken on Olivet to His disciples, a few days before He was crucified. That setting is important. The Man about to die was gathering up His life message for the instruction of those who were to carry it on to the world.

Under a pastoral imagery familiar to His hearers Jesus declared that the good will ultimately be separated from the evil as the sheep from the goats. Palestine does not love goats. In earliest Hebrew ritual it was the goat, sin-laden, that was sent out into the wilderness. So even Jesus, lover of sheep, made the goats the symbol of the rejected.

Doomsday Without Terror.

Not to press the figure too far, we see that the sheep were friendly and obedient and useful; while the goats were obstreperous and hurtful. And with majestic simplicity Jesus drew this same line of distinction between the ultimately accepted and rejected. In the last Great Assize, the determinative question will not be concerning one's theological beliefs or social standing or financial rating, but only whether, in the spirit of Jesus, we were ministers to men's needs.

To feed the hungry, give drink to the thirsty, entertain the stranger, clothe the naked, visit the sick and the prisoner is to do it all unto Christ Himself. "Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of these my brethren, even these least, ye did it unto Me."

There is a wonderful paradox in the sublime picture of the Last Judgment, wherein nations as well as individuals will stand before the bar of justice. For the Judge is also the Saviour. Justice will be done inexorably; but it will be justice begotten of love. Terror is stripped from the Judgment Day by the knowledge that the Son of Man is Himself the Judge.

BLACKIE BEAR

By D. SAM COX

The Creek Folks Enjoy Sunday Dinner

When the Creek Folks got back to Blackie's house it was good daylight. They had done enough work to be tired, but they were not. The wagon was so full of Uncle Joe's good things that they all, except Jocko, had to walk. Of course Jocko had to drive, but none of the others minded walking. They felt so good that they played all along the way, just like puppy dogs. Even Grandpa Bear played leapfrog, and he did it just as well as Dr. Coon or Billie Possum.

Blackie said that since they had been eating nothing but cold lunches ever since they left the mountain, and because they had plenty of things to eat, they would have a sure enough Sunday dinner. So they cooked three chickens and a pig, and made lots of biscuits and gravy. And they had grapes and apples and lots of other good things. You remember about that big Christmas dinner the Creek Folks had last year. Well, that dinner wasn't even a good lunch side of the one they had this Sunday. It was just an all-day feast,and they certainly did have a good time. They were sorry that Hound Dog wasn't there, but then they were sure Mr. Man and Rover Dog were taking good care of him.

"Blackie, what do you suppose Uncle Joe is going to do to Howler when he finds that he went away and let us go there and get the things for this dinner?" asked Dr. Coon. "I have been thinking about that, and it looks to me like we are going to take another dog with us back to the mountains. I am sure Uncle Joe would beat Howler most to death if he should come back and find that he had gone away and let somebody carry off a lot of things. I don't want Howler to get into any trouble because he let us have a good time, and we will have to ask him to go home with us. We will get Hound Dog to attend to that. Did Jay Bird go over to Mr. Man's, Grandpa?"

"Yes, he went right after breakfast, and he ought to be back by now. I guess he will have a lot to tell us about all those dogs. Don't you know he is laughing himself almost to death to see Mr. Man giving Blackie Bear's dog a big Sunday dinner? Wouldn't I like to peep in on them. Your friend Billie would certainly do him some grinning," said Grandpa Bear.

"Really," said Dr. Coon, "there's lots of fun down here on the creek. Just think how Mr. Man beat his fist down on the well, that day, and said he wouldn't stand any more foolishness from Blackie Bear and his gang, and then the very next day he had to walk home while Blackie and his friends rode in his wagon. And then he had to let his wife plow him like a donkey! And he has to ride on a cow. And now Uncle Joe—poor, dear Uncle Joe—has got to worry along with a few less geese, chickens and pigs and things. Yes, it's right funny, Blackie." And Billy was grinning so wide that his lips almost caught over his ears.

I. C. C. to Share Its Building

Five Federal Agencies Also Will Be Given Space There.

Five Federal agencies will share space with the Interstate Commerce Commission in the latter's new triangle building, Secretary of the Interior Ickes, in charge of Government space, revealed this week.

The I. C. C. will have quarters on all floors and the basement of the new monumental structure on Constitution avenue with a total of 285,762 square feet, the Secretary's announcement said. The Federal Radio Commission will get 2,794 square feet on the seventh floor, and the Railroad Administration will get slightly more than that on the first floor and the basement.

Although the Unit of Government Space Control of the National Parks Service made it known some time ago that "emergency" agencies were not to go into the new triangle buildings, the assignments yesterday showed two emergency administrations will be included in the I. C. C. structure. These are the Subsistence Homesteads Division of the Interior Department, to go on the seventh floor, and the Tennessee Valley Authority, which will be on the first floor.

The Soil Erosion Service of the Interior Department will have 10,199 square feet on the first and sixth floors.

Community House Will Hold Celebration.

A special anniversary week will be held at the Jewish Community Center from May 30 until June 5, in commemoration of the laying of the cornerstone of the institution in May, 1925, Morris Cafritz, president, announced yesterday.

Open house will be held at the institution on May 30, with an exhibition of the various activities carried on in the establishment. A symposium of all phases of the Center will be held on the following day, and on June 2 there will be a special athletic program. The concluding program, on June 5, will be presented by the Music Study Club, starring Betty Baum, Katherine Hertzberg and Frank Gorel.

The cornerstone of the Center was laid by the late President Coolidge in May, nine years ago. All of the anniversary week exercises will be open to the public.

Thrift Shop's Carnival Postponed Until Today

Rain yesterday forced postponement until 3 p. m. today of the Thrift Shop Carnival to be held in a roped-off section of Q street between Connecticut avenue and Nineteenth street.

An old, horse-drawn fire engine is to be one of the features of the carnival, for which Mrs. J. Borden Harriman has been designated head fireman.

The Century of Progress Fair Usurps Show Prerogative of National Capital

Inaugurates a Novel Theater Of Folger Type

Revives Elizabethan Drama About National 'Revolt;' News of Amusements.

By Nelson B. Bell.

A bulletin from Mr. E. C. Edson, well known publicist and lecturer, whose talks were enjoyed by Washington audiences last winter, advises from Chicago that the Century of Progress Exposition, about to launch its second summer of startling the natives, seemingly has usurped what many conceived to be a Washington prerogative with the completion of the Folger Shakespeare Memorial Library. That is the presentation of Shakespeare plays in the truly Elizabethan manner.

The presentation of Shakespeare plays in the Old Globe Theater of Merrie England will be inaugurated tomorrow at the Century of Progress.

One suspects that it would be difficult to substantiate Mr. Edson's opinion that "for the first time in this country a real Elizabethan stage and entire practical theater, such as was used in Shakespeare's day, has been designed and erected by the architects, Holabird & Root, and the contractors, S. T. Schless, Inc., from specifications based on historic contracts for the Fortune Theater, built in 1600, which refer to the original Globe Theater, constructed in 1599."

Folger Library Theater.

If a complete, detached theater building is meant, Mr. Edson no doubt is wholly correct. Within the walls of our own Folger Library, over on Capitol Hill, however, there is an exact replica of an Elizabethan theater of Shakespeare's day in which, many will recall, it was the ostensible purpose, from time to time, to hold Shakespeare festivals of one sort and another, during which his works might be presented in their original form and manner. Nothing has ever come of this potential impetus to a revival of interest in a form of theatrical performance presented with success a quarter-century or more ago by the Ben Greet Players, although Ian Keith—a Shakespearean actor at heart, despite many engagements both on the boards and in pictures, of an utterly different sort—when he was here a year ago this spring expressed a keen desire to participate in some such resuscitation of a classic tradition under the Folger roof.

Interesting Project.

While the Century of Progress' Old Globe Theater may not be the first of its kind ever to be constructed in America, plans for its operation are none the less interesting. Under the direction of Thomas Wood Stevens and his associates, B. Iden Payne and Theodore Viehman, abbreviated versions—not merely scenes and acts—of Will Shakespeare's plays will be given every hour in the afternoon, starting at 2 p. m., and in the evening on the half hour, beginning at 7:30. These abbreviated versions of the Bard's dramas will be so constructed and enacted as to preserve the highlights and motifs of the originals.

Four plays have been selected for the first week. These are "A Comedy of Errors," "A Midsummer Night's Dream," "Julius Caesar," and "The Taming of the Shrew." The last-named has been chosen for the gala invitation performance tomorrow night at 9, because of the fact that it possesses a robust aliveness not found in many plays of any period.

Is it in contemplation, I wonder, ever to make use of the Elizabethan Theater in the Folger Library for purposes of a practical performance of any of Shakespeares plays? Or isn't it, after all, a practical theater?

Takoma Park's first edition of "Komic Kapers," a complete, two-hour, novelty vaudeville show, created and executed entirely by the members of the Trinity Young People's Society, will be presented tonight in the Parish House, Piney Branch road at Dahlia street, Takoma Park, D. C. The society is offering this as its annual spring presentation. The bill will consist of 13 acts, included among which are "The Vanity Girls," "Three Little Pigs," an old-fashioned "Mellerdrammer" and a "male ballet." The show is under the direction of Miss Luella Lackman. The proceeds will be devoted to charity.

Shouts and Alarums!

Considerable turmoil has been engendered in show business by the simple matter of the cancellation of Maxwell Anderson's "Both Your Houses" at the National next week, and the substitution therefor of Myron C. Fagan's "Jimmie's Women," as authentically reported in this space on Wednesday.

The New York theatrical press, or rather that part of it supposed ordinarily to be best informed, reported that Romaine Callender "threw down his part" and refused to play in "Both Your Houses" on a Washington stage. It was made to appear, in substance, that the National Theater Players had gone on strike and defied the management to do anything about it.

To any one familiar with the usages of the theater, this is, of course, pure pish, tush and pother, not to say rubbish and balderdash. A member of a stock company is under contract to his or her management to play "as cast." Otherwise it would be impossible for the "leading woman"—or "leading man"—to be assigned to the stellar role of a play one week and a "bit" part the next. There could be no such thing, under any other arrangement as, for example, the Abbey Theater Irish Players of Dublin.

Amicable Battle!

The conference among Manager Stephen E. Cochran, of the National Theater, and impresario of the National Theater Players, and the members of his troupe, as a matter of fact, was wholly amicable. "Both Your Houses" was abandoned by mutual consent because that seemed the best "box office" and smartest "theater." There was no strike. Mr. Callender, nor anybody else, "threw down his part" and refused to go on.

Had any done such, he would have been in the bad graces of Equity for contract violation and of show people in general for not having "done his bit."

They are having a good laugh, incidentally, down at the National over the tempest of rebellion that has been stirred up in a teapot. There just ain't no rebellion!

So now you know.

As may have been suspected from divers not too subtle hints dropped here from time to time these past few days, this is the last week of burlesque at the Gayety Theater. Beginning on the Sabbath, Manager Jimmie Lake will inaugurate his new policy of sensational sex pictures and living embellishments. One on a cursory hunt for items gathers that the first of the new bills will be draped around a cinematographic offering bearing the provocative title of "One Girl's Mistake." For the first week, the bill will be presented to exclusively masculine audiences. Alternating audiences of segregated genders, however, will be the rule.

At RKO-Keith's.

Since we have gone in a little of late for the bookings at the National, in the Warner houses and so on, it may be of interest that Master Hardie Meakin, manager of RKO-Keith's Theater, also has some bookings up his sleeve that he is willing to pull down sufficiently to be glimpsed by the inquisitive.

Perhaps we may skip over "Finishing School" blithely, to get to the seemingly more important consideration that Jimmy Durante and Lupe Velez, two of my favorite people, are to inaugurate their joint goings-on on Fifteenth street on Memorial Day itself. This seems to be the tip-off on Master Meakin's shifting his opening day to Wednesday these past two or three weeks.

Howard and Maughm.

On June 6, Leslie Howard will be Keith's pictured star in "Of Human Bondage," in which Bette Davis plays opposite. This, naturally, would be the film version of the W. Somerset Maughm fiction.

The new Howard vehicle will be followed by RKO-Radio's sequel, in a manner of speaking, to "Flying Down to Rio," another musical production called, significantly enough, "Down to Their Last Yacht"—which, obviously, would be pretty tough; "When Sinners Meet," formerly "The Dover Road," with Diana Wynyard and Clive Brook, who once did an inconsequential little thing known as "Cavalcade"; Wheeler and Woolsey in "Cockeyed Cavaliers," and H. B. Warner in "Sorrel and Son," in which he achieved so substantial a triumph in the silent version some years ago.

Looking Backward Note.

But do you remember him in Paul Armstrong's "Alias Jimmy Valentine," the play in which he sandpapered his fingertips to the quick to feel the tumblers in the safe drop?

That, of course, would be out now. Since repeal nobody has kept a tumbler in his safe—nor a drop!

Rialto

"AFFAIRS OF A GENTLEMAN," Universal picturization of a play by Edith and Edward Ellis, featuring Paul Lukas and Dorothy Burgess, with Lillian Bond, Leila Hyams, Dorothy Libaire, Joyce Compton and Patricia Ellis. Directed by Edwin L. Marin. Reviewed Thursday morning by W. A. Whitney.

With a fascinating title, a cast of players of merit and a story somewhat out of the ordinary, "Affairs of a Gentleman" offers full-value entertainment, revolving around an author whose lady friends of today make the heroines of his tomorrow's novels.

Only a single regret may be leveled at the picture. The closing shot is of Paul Lukas slumped over his desk, dead—and this, remember, is the Rialto's last show of the 1933-34 season! What a note on which to end!

Indeed, the picture opens with the same shot, from which point the story flashes back to explain the details of the tragedy which "looked like suicide." But here lies the wonder of it all: All the suspects, and there were six, are the fair ladies in the author's past, all of whom had served the admirable purpose of furnishing the writer with material for his best sellers.

Groundwork of Mystery.

The ladies are assembled, and any one might have done the job, for each had been wooed and won and tossed away under much the same circumstances. Although several men, irate husbands and otherwise, could have been implicated, little points to them as the actual culprits.

It would not be fair further to divulge the plot—but rest assured that it is ingeniously devised and the guilty party is very well masked until the denouement. You may guess the right one—and you may not; yet, whether or no, you will find "Affairs of a Gentleman" well worth a viewing.

In the stellar role, Paul Lukas is every inch a gentleman. Although his treatment of the six charming ladies (Dorothy Burgess, Lillian Bond, Leila Hyams, Dorothy Libaire, Joyce Compton, Patricia Ellis) may seem to belie it, Mr. Lukas was not the crass toyer with human hearts that might be at first supposed. True, his were strictly affairs de coeur, but through them all he still maintained his reputation of being a polished gentleman.

In Minor Roles.

Others appearing, adding minor embellishments to the story, include Richard Carle, the publisher; Philip Reed, his press agent; Murray Kinnell, the butler; Wilfred Hari, the cook; Charles Wilson, the inspector; Sara Haden, the secretary.

The subsidiary attractions are much better than usual and are headed by "There Ain't No Justice," a marital farce, with Herbert Corthell and Paul Hurst. Oswald Rabbit goes musical with "Annie Moved Away," a cartoonal version of the suggested ditty. In "Cyclomania," a World-of-Sports issue, the thrills of motorcycling are depicted in an exciting manner. A release of the Universal News, with the spectacular Chicago stock yards fire, makes up the complement of auxiliary attractions.

Gary Cooper Compromises by Giving Up Beloved Ranch; Bluebird Is Taken for a Ride by Pet Scottie; Echoes of Hollywood Boulevard.

By Grace Kingsley.

Hollywood, May 24.—A famerette's life doesn't appeal to Sandra Shaw, otherwise Mrs. Gary Cooper. And she has persuaded Gary to walk out on the ranch he lately bought in the San Fernando Valley, and to take a house in smart Beverly Hills, where doubtless she will become the arbiter and one of the leaders of film social life.

CLAUDETTE COLBERT.

But the gossips say that Sandra isn't having everything her own way; that in fact, one of the conditions under which Gary, who loves ranch life, consented to move into the social whirl center was that Sandra, like a good little wife, would go with him to Alaska for some more Kodiak bear, or to Africa for another lion or two.

An Unhappy Bluebird.

Bluebirds are supposed to be harbingers of happiness, but the one which Dorothy Mackaye and Paul Kelly found the other night needed a bit of cheering up itself.

In their back yard they discovered a fledgling bluebird that had failed to make the flying grade with its brothers and sisters and which had broken its wing.

Dorothy and Paul have a Scottie, whom they call Miss McNasty, and the Scottie adores having the bluebird, sardonically named Ace, ride on his back. But it now looks as though Miss McNasty may have to surrender her burden of love, for the parents of Ace have decided that their child is unsafe with the dog, and at every opportunity they swoop down and try to transfix Miss McNasty with their sharp bills.

Worried—And Why Not?

Dixie Lee—Mrs. Bing Crosby to you—ill at her home, as she awaits the coming of the stork—August is the time . . . Sally Eilers all upset because the Lurlie couldn't sail until later in the week on account of the dock strikes . . . Claudette Colbert mysteriously absent on vacation, after giving out various reports that she was going to New York, Yosemite, Mazatlan and Lake Arrowhead . . . Expected to be present tonight at the opening of "Playboy of the Western World," starring Douglass Montgomery . . . Carl Laemmle, jr., Erin O'Brien Moore, James Whale, Gloria Stuart (after she has removed her "Juliet" make-up) . . . William Powell looking for a 65-foot sailing boat . . . Bing Crosby always having kidded Dick Arlen for being such a talker, the party who met Dick and his wife at the station on their return from Europe, which included Bing, Al Rogell and his wife, together with others, all wore mufflers over their ears!

Barry Norton told Alice Terry a funny story. She laughed so heartily, that Barry had to retell the story for the benefit of those who only heart Alice's laugh. Here it is. Barry said he once knew a man who claimed to be the laziest man in the world." One day, on a park bench, this man yawned and stretched and repeated his doubtful claim to fame. "I'll bet ten dollars that I'm the laziest man in the world!" A fellow bench-holder beside him yawned and replied: "You lose, bo; put the tenner in my pocket!"

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Evans giving a cocktail party at their Uplifters home, on occasion of Mrs. Evans' birthday—only she did not tell anybody beforehand about the birthday. Grace LaRue, Hale Hamilton, William Collier, sr., among those present. . . . Plenty of stars at the prizefights Friday night: Oliver Hardy, waving to everybody, and how the gallery did sing out at one poorly landed blow in the fights: "S-a-a-y, even Oliver Hardy could do better than that!" . . . Adrienne Ames and Bruce Cabot, Adrienne looking very much bored, as if she wondered why she had come. . . . Al Jolson and Ruby Keeler, Charlie and Wesley Ruggles and Arline Judge. . . . Seen at the Gold Room, Beverly-Wilshire, dancing and dining—Don Alvarado, a lone wolf; Spencer Tracy and Loretta Young, Edgar Selwyn with another man and a blonde; William K. Howard with a party.

Court Recess Deays Hearing Of McLean Case

Attorney Fox Witness in His Suit to Recover $22,700 in Fees.

Albert W. Fox's story of how he rendered legal services to Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean was interrupted yesterday when Chief Justice A. A. Wheat adjourned court and continued the attorney's suit for alleged $22,700 unpaid fees until Monday.

Still on the stand when court adjourned, Fox had related how he had been paid but $12,300 of a $35,000 fee for representing Mrs. McLean in divorce proceedings and negotiating with Gaston B. Means in the latter's hoax to recover the kidnaped Lindbergh baby.

Fox claimed he conducted a portion of the negotiations at the request of Mrs. McLean, who paid Means $104,000 to secure the return of the Lindbergh infant. Means is serving 15 years for defrauding her.

When E. B. McLean, her husband, sought a divorce in Mexico and later in Riga, Latvia, Fox said he drafted an injunction, forbidding McLean to pursue action anywhere in the world except Washington. He detailed steps taken to protect her interests during these suits.

Mrs. McLean is represented by Wilton J. Lambert, Rudolph Yeatman and Charles Baker. Her former attorney's case is presented by William Sullivan.

Washington Will Get Social Work Meeting

Washington will be the scene of the next biennial convention of the National Conference of Social Work, the greater National Capital committee announced yesterday.

Word of the decision was received in a telegram from Thomas F. Lockard, of the staff of the committee, who is in Kansas City, where the 1934 convention of the organization now is in progress.

The invitation in behalf of the Capital was presented by Robert Bondy, of Washington, director of disaster relief for the American Red Cross; William Savin, of the Associated Charities of Washington; Herbert Willet, of the Washington Community Chest, and Sanford Bates, president of the Washington Council of Social Agencies.

Radio Waves and Ripples

THERE was a time, away back in the dark ages of radio—as far back as 1923, no less—when a lion's roar and a hyena's laugh—when not mistaken for static or the rumble of your next door neighbor's electric auto charger—were pretty hot stuff.

Though for the most part we are now enlightened people to whom radio is no more a novelty than modern plumbing, none of us would go so far as to call Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars, curator of reptiles at the New York Zoological Park, reactionary, or the designers of C. B. S. entertainment who are thinking of putting him and a couple of snakes on the air next Saturday.

Yet, considered in this light, Dr. Ditmars and the C. B. S. program makers may be offering our growing social consciousnesses a welcome attachment to a period when no one was thinking very much about regimenting anything and when every rugged individual was buying a radio.

Dr. Ditmars' guest artists this night will be a rattlesnake and a puff adder, whose articulate limitations may be overlooked in view of a diverting alternation of rattle and puff.

Rattle and puff—Dr. Ditmars and a snake once slept together in a Pullman berth.

Arch McDonald was surprised. So was everyone who happened to be listening to his baseball broadcast. But practically no one was pleased except the WJSV executives.

They stole into the studio while McDonald was working, and sang. That always pleases executives. They sang "Happy Birthday." That always surprises people who have been having birthdays for 33 years and are more or less used to them.

Five South American compositions never before heard in the United States are on the Army Band's program for the opening of the Pan American Union summer concert series, a half hour of which WRC is broadcasting Monday night.

The vocal portions of the program will be sung by Juan Arvizu, Mexican tenor.

Ted Husing is supposed to be fond of saying: "Believe you me."

Fats Waller—"I'm terrific."

Uncle Bob Sherwood—"Now, in the old circus days."

Bing Crosby—"You said something when you said Dixie."

MARION McAFEE is writing the history of love in song every Wednesday and Sunday on N. B. C.

Kate Smith—"Golly."

Admiral Byrd—"Think nothing of what I have done."

Speaking literally, Columbia will open the World's Fair in Chicago tonight with fireworks.

Alone at the Antarctic, Admiral Byrd will press a telegraph key. The impluse will travel to Chicago by way of station KFZ at Little America, Buenos Aires, Riverhead, Long Island, and New York. That will set off the fireworks.

Of greater interest to radio listeners, probably, will be the playing of a William Daly Orchestra, the singing of a 1,500-voice chorus and an opera quartet from the Italian Village and the speaking of Chicago Mayor Edward J. Kelly. It's from 9:30 to 10 p. m., WJSV.

Miss Wright Now Bride Of Mr. Carey

Wedding in Bethlehem Chapel of Interest to Capital Society.

Couple Sail Today for Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

A wedding of interest to Capital society took place yesterday when Miss Margaretta Bayard Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Price Wright, became the bride of Mr. Reginald Shober Carey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis King Carey, of Baltimore, Md.

The ceremony took place at 3:30 o'clock in Bethlehem Chapel of the Washington Cathedral, with Canon G. Freeland Peter officiating, in the presence of the members of the two immediate families and a few close friends. The chapel was decorated with a profusion of spring flowers and palms.

The bride, who was escorted to the altar by her father, wore a gown of white mousseline de soie made on long lines with the skirt flaring out from the knees and ending in a medium length train. Her veil, which was edged with lovely old lace, fell from a cap of rare lace, and she carried a sheaf of calla lilies.

Miss Ekengren, Attendant.

Miss Elsie Wolcot Ekengren, daughter of Mme. Wilhelm A. F. Ekengren, of Washington, was the bride's only attendant. She wore a gown of soft watermelon-pink chiffon, made on long flowing lines with a short train, and a large picture hat of a rich brown straw. She carried an arm bouquet of pink snapdragons and blue delphinium.

Mr. Richard Cromwell Riggs, of Baltimore, was the best man for Mr. Carey. A small reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, on Twenty-third street, when the couple were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Wright, mother of the bride, who wore a gown of brown net, with a large straw hat to match, and a shoulder corsage of gardenias. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Carey, also assisted.

Later Mr. Carey and his bride left Washington for New York, and they will sail today for Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, where the former has been appointed Vice Consul. Mrs. Carey traveled in an ensemble of dark blue sheer with white accessories.

Out-of-Town Guests.

The out-of-town guests here for the wedding included the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carey, of Baltimore; Miss Elise Bayard, aunt of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. W. Morgan Churchman, Mrs. Edgar Wright Baird, Mr. and Mrs. Percy C. Madina, jr., Mr. Percy C. Madina 3d, and Miss Eleanor Madina, all of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. George L. Nicholas, jr., Mrs. A. Coe, Mrs. J. Bannister Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Andrews Galbraith Carey, Mr. and Mrs. Francis James Carey, Mr. Frank R. Kent, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Riggs, Mr. George Finney, Miss Miriam Poe, Mr. John J. Hurst, Miss Mary Clare Cottman, and Mrs. A. Warrington Cottman, all of Baltimore; Mr. Stuyvesant Bayard Wright, brother of the bride; Miss Elizabeth Marsden Smith, Mr. Kingsley Mabou, Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Rosett, brother-in-law and sister of the bridegroom; Mr. Francis King Carey Rosett, Mr. Samuel L. Shober, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Shober, Judge James Polk-Gooter, Mr. Charles Morris Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel R. Randal, Mr. Fletcher Reston, Mr. Lyttleton B. Purnell, Mr. and Mrs. Horatio Whitridge, and Mrs. I. Ridgway Trimble, all of New York.

Nuptial Rites Held for Miss Reichenbach

Bride Wears Ensemble of White Crepe, With Picture Hat.

The wedding of Miss Doris Reichenbach, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Suter Reichenbach, to Mr. Robert Pearce Bennett, son of Mrs. George Bennett and the late Mr. Bennett, took place yesterday at 4 o'clock at Aloysius' Rectory, the Rev. Father Fink performing the ceremony in the presence of members of the two families and a few friends.

The bride wore a becoming ensemble of white crepe, made on long, graceful lines, a large white picture hat and white kid slippers. She wore a shoulder bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley. Miss Virginia Tehas, the bride's only attendant, wore a brown georgette ensemble, with a large picture hat and shoes in blending shades. Her shoulder bouquet was of gardenias.

Mr. Robert Yorkdale acted as best man.

Following the ceremony a small reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. Reichenbach, the bride's mother, was in silver black georgette made on long, flowing lines, and Mrs. Bennett, mother of the bridegroom, was in dark blue crepe with hat to match.

Mr. and Mrs. Bennett will be at home after June 15 at 1321 Thirtieth street. Mr. Bennett is connected with the aeronautics branch of the Department of Commerce.

A Rural Trend Seen as Cure For Working Wives Problem

Sociologist Prophesies America Won't Go Italian or Russian Extreme in Attitude Toward Women; We Don't Need the Increased Population.

The old theory that man is the head of the house has broken down in the past two decades. Women in increasing numbers are entering every field of endeavor. Because they often work for lower wages than men, they have been able to obtain employment when men could not.

Will this condition be corrected? Will women be forced back to the home so all men can be employed? This is the last in a series of articles dealing with these questions.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

WOMEN of the United States will not follow either the German-Italian trend back to the home, or the Russian trend away from it.

American women, however, may return to the home of their own volition when certain Nation-wide projects, now under way, are brought to pass.

These are convictions of Dr. Dudley Willard, head of the Sociology department of George Washington University, who prophesies many startling changes in our new economic order. This prophecy offers a hopeful solution of the working wives' problem.

"There is little reason to believe the United States will ever follow the plan either of Germany and Italy or of Russia," said Dr. Willard. "The back-to-the-home movement sweeping Europe and threatening this country is the result of a number of factors nonexistent in America."

Need Population.

"European nations are usually within earshot of enemies. Military prowess means safety and a big army is the only sure means of protection. Naturally then, since such countries as Germany and Italy lay heavy emphasis on military power, and because they are dominated by religious convictions favoring the domestication of women, the importance of a German or Italian woman depends largely on how many children she can bear and rear.

"In this country, however, large families are unfashionable. This is not because so many of our women have entered public life, but because the standard of living has been raised to such an extent large families can not be supported.

AMERICAN WOMEN won't be forced back into the home, predicts Dr. Dudley Willard, sociologist at G. W. U.

"The ultimate result of the falling off in the size of families will begin to be felt in 15 or 20 years when our population will start decreasing. Then, we shall probably be confronted with the problem of how to limit the decrease. What steps we shall take then will depend to a great extent on the standard of stabilized economy we have attained."

Dr. Willard pointed out there are several ways in which this stabilized economy can be secured.

"Unemployed persons in the city may move to subsistence homesteads—a house and a plot of ground on which they will raise products for their own consumption. Each family can have a garden, a cow and chickens. If this project is carried out, women will naturally stop seeking outside work, as they will be needed in the home almost as much as women were needed back in the weaving, spinning and candle-making days.

Dr. Willard further explained it is a matter of common knowledge many women work to supplement or to provide the family income. With the expansion of old industries and the creation of new ones, he said, men now walking the streets in search of work will be provided with jobs.

"This will lead to a stabilized economy," he asserted, "in which men will make enough to support their wives and children. As a result of this, women who now have to work to provide bread and butter for themselves and their dependents will be able to give up their jobs and return to the home, or to find self-expression in more pleasant types of endeavor than ever before. This situation will take care of all women industrial workers, who constitute the largest group of women wage earners.

"As far as the restriction of married women to the home is concerned, I think that subject will be less discussed and less considered as unemployment decreases. The future will probably bring women more equal opportunities with men, but it will also bring them more security and more reasons for staying at home of their own accord."

Shakespeare-Bacon Controversy and Rum-Running Figured Prominently in This Cryptanalyst's Life

Mrs. Friedman, Code Expert, Has One For a Husband.

Through The Washington Post's "First Ladies of the Capital" interviews, twice weekly the radio searchlight is turned upon interesting feminine personalities in the National Capital. In society, official circles and unusual branches of Government service are many challengingly interesting women who are making their bow to National radio audiences over the National Broadcasting Company network. Today's story reveals how one woman is performing one of the most unique jobs in Government service.

By Margaret Santry,
(The Radio Reporter).

FROM Shakespeare to rum-running is a far cry, but how they both figure in the unique career of Elizabeth Smith Friedman, crypt analyst in the United States Coast Guard service, was explained by the petite personality to radio listeners yesterday.

Mrs. Friedman, who concerns herself with the cryptic codes and ciphers, spelling out the secret Government communications, made her radio debut at 2 p. m. yesterday. Over WMAL and a National Broadcasting Co. network. She talked about the unusual job she fills in Government service. She spoke in The Washington Post's "First Ladies of the Capital" series in an interview with the radio reporter.

It was really her curiosity over the controversy as to whether Sir Francis Bacon was really Shakespeare's "ghost writer" that inspired Mrs. Friedman to the highly scientific study of codes and ciphers. In vain, after her graduation from Wooster College in Ohio, where she majored in English literature, did she try to find anything convincing about the cipher found in the plain and fancy lettering of the Shakespearean manuscripts that would reveal the Bard of Avon as just a literary "stooge" for Sir Francis Bacon.

And Into the War.

In Mrs. Friedman's opinion the cipher which Baconians claim as proof of their theory doesn't hold up under scientific analysis.

When the World War revealed the fact the United States had no code intelligence service the immediate need for such service caused Mrs. Friedman to leave her Baconian ciphers for the military codes of a world cataclysm. With her husband and one assistant she began learning new tricks as they taught others crypt analysis.

Prohibition, for which the Government once more importuned the services of Mrs. Friedman in the Coast Guard's combat with rum smugglers, precipitated amazing developments in the field of secret code communication. With millions to be made in evading the forces of law, the cunning and ingenuity of organized rum rings developed crypt analysis from simple mathematical form to calculus.

But repeal didn't end Mrs. Friedman's tasks for the Coast Guard. These highly organized smuggling rings are now functioning in other fertile fields. Narcotics, perfume, jewelry, and even pinto beans on the Texas border.

Miss Santry: "I understand one of your biggest jobs was the Holmwood. How did that rum ship get through the port of entry and half way up the Hudson River with 25,000 cases of liquor aboard without anybody discovering it until their secret radio messages were intercepted?"

Gives the Low-Down.

Mrs. Friedman: "That plot was a cleverly devised piece of timing. The 'Holmwood' was masked as the 'Texas Ranger,' a legitimate ship due in the harbor. The port authorities let it through as a shipment of oil. The 'Holmwood' disguised as the 'Texas Ranger' beat the real ship into port and was half way to its destination at Albany when its secret messages were intercepted, deciphered, and the ship and crew siezed by the combined efforts of the customs and the Coast Guard. Those twenty-five thousand cases of liquor never got to Albany."

Major William Friedman, her husband, is chief of the Signal Corps Intelligence Service in the War Department, in charge of military codes and communications. He is an internationally known expert on crypt analysis and telegraphic communications and has represented the United States in international telegraphic conferences abroad.

Miss Santry: "With your husband a code expert in the Signal Corps of the Army and you a code expert in the Coast Guard, does the habit of thinking in code ever creep into your family life?"

Mrs. Friedman: "I guess its bound to, its so much a part of our life."

Child Expert, Too.

Miss Santry: "And are your children experts in code too?"

Mrs. Friedman: "Our daughter Barbara, who is 10, is quite an expert for her age. When we were in Spain last year she sent us messages in cipher all the time."

However, Barbara wishes to be a professional dancer when she grows up instead of a crypt analyst. The young son, John Ramsay, age 7, expects to follow his father's footsteps although at present his major interest is in boats and guns.

Concerning her success in running a home, family, and high-powered job all at the same time, Mrs. Friedman modestly commends her highly efficient housekeeper who attends the mechanics of housekeeping while the mistress of the house is at her desk in the Coast Guard headquarters in the Treasury Building.

Her unique career was not premeditated, Mrs. Friedman maintains. She had no plans about being a career woman. It just happened. Each time she has finished a job for one branch of the Government, sighed in the contentment of a good job complete and returned to her needlework in the charming English Tudor home the Friedmans occupy in Chevy Chase, some new emergency has arisen that has catapulted her once more into a busy office routine. For the number of code experts is very limited. The Government needs many more than it has. Until that supply is filled Mrs. Friedman expects she will continue to be "importuned" to keep on in her unusual profession.

Tune in on WRC Monday at 11 a. m. and hear Mrs. Daniel Calhoun Roper, wife of the Secretary of Commerce, over a National Broadcasting Company coast-to-coast network.

CURIOSITY AS TO WHETHER Sir Francis Bacon was really Shakespeare's "ghost writer" inspired Mrs. Elizabeth Smith Friedman, above, to become a crypt analyst. Now she's a code expert with the Government.

Women's Crews Take to Rivers Enthusiastically

An English Tradition Goes—Oxford-Cambridge Girls Fill Shells.

By Ware Torrey and Janet Owen.

THE sacred tradition of the Oxford-Cambridge crew race has been taken off the monastery shelves. Now, women of the two universities fill the rowing shells.

The Oxford Women's Rowing Club won in the recent half-mile race on the River Cam, defeating Newnham College, Cambridge, by 3:35 seconds. University men had shown their approval by coaching the teams.

Gone are the days when sisters and sweethearts waved their parasols from the river bank at the toiling men on the water. This year, a record crowd turned out to watch the girls; more spectators, in fact, than have watched some of the men's races. The crowd stayed for the finish, in spite of the fact that a thunderstorm broke just as the crews got away.

In America crew has been a popular sport in colleges and schools for some years. The Wellesley tradition dates far back. At Smith College, crew competes with tennis for first place in popularity, and it holds its own well among the Cornell girls. This year sees growing interest in the sport.

A highly skilled sample of noncompetitive rowing is given by the girls of Woodrow High School, Long Beach, Calif. They train on the Olympic rowing course for form, but not for speed.

Preparation begins deep in the winter for the present races. Rowing machines in the gymnasiums provide everything but the water. Strict training here is well matched by the English crews.

Kissing Club For Marrieds Huge Success

TIRED of having their wives gaze in rapt wonder at the torrid love making of movie heroes, a group of husbands in Oklahoma have decided to do something about it. Banded together in the Husbands Gratitude Club, 30 men in Oklahoma City tried kissing their wives at least once a day for a period of two weeks.

At the end of the trial period both husbands and wives were fully convinced that what this country needs is more conjugal kissing.

"We are strongly in favor of the idea and hope the club will continue," said all 30 wives after two weeks of daily kisses.

The husbands not only promised to continue the club but took the following pledge:

"I solemnly pledge myself to kiss my wife and tell her I love her at least once each day. I will compliment her daily on some dish she has prepared for my meals. I will perform at least one unexpected, kind deed for her each day."

After reading this pledge who will dare say the American man is a poor lover or that romance is dead?

CREW IS BECOMING a progressively popular woman's sport in America. Here we have the Woodrow High School eight of Long Beach, Calif.—one of the best women's crew in the country—training for form on the Olympic rowing course. It's a tradition at Wellesley. Crew competes with tennis for first place at Smith, and is popular at Cornell.

Summer at Bluemont.

"WHO DO you suppose is the latest to buy a place at Bluemont?" asked a friend. It was one of those questions that always make the victim feel even dumber than usual.

"I haven't any idea!" was the obvious retort.

"Anne Hard!" said the informing friend in full-blasted triumph.

• • • •

Bluemont, if you don't happen to be familiar with that delightful Virginia spot about 60 miles from here by automobile, is a place of divided allegiance to two charming valleys.

• • • •

Many distinguished residents of Washington have lovely homes in or near Bluemont. The Carl Droops, former Representative Martin A. Morrison of Indiana and Mrs. Morrison; Josef Kaspar and his lovely, white-haired wife, whose Mont Salvat is a haven for young violinists each summer, and Dr. and Mrs. Huron D. Lawson, who have just completed a home near Bear's Den.

The Singing Reporter.

MANY newspaper people here will remember Johnny White, who did his cub reporting in the sports department of a local daily. Then he went to New York and did various things outside the newspaper field, and now, the latest news is that he is writing a book on cowboy poetry.

• • • •

When John went to New York about 1927 he was the first to sing cowboy songs over the radio, playing his own accompaniment on the banjo. This was a hobby, his regular job having to do with road maps for autoists put out by a leading American concern.

• • • •

It is pleasant to recall sitting in the little sound-proof room of Station WABC and watching Johnny White sing. He had authentic material, his big brother has one of the most successful dude ranches of Arizona. And many is the summer John has spent working with the cowboys and collecting their songs.

Just Another Triangle.

THERE is a certain long-haired Senator who is even more famous than the baking potatoes which seem to grow larger in his State than anywhere else.

The other day two Government clerks were taking a drive after office hours and were discussing this gentleman from Idaho.

• • • •

"Have you heard about Senator Borah's triangle?" said the driver, turning from Calvert street to cross the Taft Bridge.

"Why, no!" gasped her companion in excitement. "Who is it?"

• • • •

"Who?" The driver, pausing for a change of light by the little park near the Dresden Apartments, was puzzled for a second. Then she laughed. "See there!" she pointed, gesturing across her companion to the little park. "There he is now, sitting on that bench."

"Oh!" her companion sniffed with disappointment, as she saw the leonine head appearing in solitary grandeur above a newspaper, and the equally unmistakable snuff-colored trousers below it.

She had to admit, grudgingly, the shape of the little park was definitely triangular.

Queen Mary's 8th Namesake To Receive Royal Welcome

Some Baby Girl Born Today at the Queen's Maternity Hospital Will Have an Elaborate Layette Given Her by Montreal Sewing Circle.

LONDON, May 25 (Spl.).—Some baby girl born today at Queen Mary's Maternity Hospital, Hempstead, will find a royal welcome awaiting her. She will be the namesake of the Queen of England and will be provided with an elaborate layette, sent by Queen Mary's Sewing Circle of Montreal, Canada.

The baby born today—the Queen's birthday—will be the eighth little Mary in the hospital circle of the Queen's namesakes. A tea party for the seven little girls born on the Queen's birthday was given recently in London by Mrs. D. F. Forbes Angus, of Montreal, president of the Montreal circle that provides the layettes.

LUCKY IS THE BABY girl born on Her Majesty's birthday in Queen Mary's Maternity Hospital, Hempstead.

Founded by the Queen.

The maternity hospital at Hampstead was founded by Queen Mary at the close of the World War to care for the wives of soldiers, sailors and airmen. In her capacity as president of the Needlework Guild of London, Queen Mary at the outset of the war organized the members to sew for the hospitals in the war zone in addition to carrying on their work for the poor. Branches of the Guild sprang up throughout the Empire. The one in Montreal is now designated as Queen Mary's Sewing Circle and its original traditions have been altered to meet peace-time needs.

During the winter the members of the circle, all prominent in Montreal society, meet once a week to sew for the Hampstead Hospital, and the box containing their winter's work is sent to England timed to arrive on May 26, the queen's birthday.

The trousseau for the baby to bear the queen's name is the prize package in the box. With it comes a specially designed pin for the tiny royal namesake.

Mrs. Angus' Idea.

The idea of preparing for the May 26 babies and naming them for the queen belongs to Mrs. Angus. A frequent visitor to London, Mrs. Angus keeps closely in touch with the hospital work.

Queen Mary gives freely of her time to the hospital and takes a deep personal interest in the patients.

During a visit to the hospital patients, the Queen noticed one with tear-filled eyes. Knowing the young mother must be receiving every physical care, Queen Mary at once sensed there was a mental cause for her distress, so she inquired of the woman "if anything was worrying her." The story came out.

The unhappy woman made a mother-confessor of the Queen, and told of her anxiety over the small child she had been obliged to leave at home in the care of two other children, only slightly older.

The result of this incident is that no mother is now perplexed as to what to do with the toddler who is only a year or so old when a new baby comes on the scene. Queen Mary lost no time in having a wing added to the hospital, containing day and night nurseries. Thus mothers who are patients in the institution are assured that not only the tiny babies, but the older children, are receiving every care.

Neighbors Do Honor To Country Doctor

SHELBY, Mich., May 25 (U.P.).—A typical country doctor beloved by his patients and neighbors for 46 years who has brought more than 3,500 Oceana County babies into the world was honored at a public community reception tonight.

At the side of Dr. William L. Griffin during the ceremonies stood his wife who has helped the doctor in providing a home and education for 52 young men and women during their residence in Shelby.

A feature of the program arranged by appreciative fellow citizens was a grand march led by as many of the 3,500 "babies" as could attend.

These Bathing Suits Possess Fashion Appeal

They Also Make Wearers Pretty Appealing at Same Time.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

WHEN Kipling wrote "The uniform he wore wasn't very much before, and a little less than half of that behind," he unwittingly gave an apt description of many of the novel swim suits on sale in a downtown store.

Their slogan might be: "We conceal, reveal, and appeal!"

Their appeal does not lie solely in their style, but partly in their price. Bathing suits of such individual cut and high quality fabric are seldom $2.95.

Some of these have sporty little trousers, and semibra top that ties around the neck with a sailor cord. One of these in brown and white is particularly attractive.

There are however, in the same batch some patterned on more conservative lines with only a low sun back in the way of decolletage. All the suits are beautifully finished, diaphragm fitted.

Refillable Knife.

A refillable pocket knife, scarcely larger than a razor, is just another little convenience featured by a local shop. It can be carried in a vest pocket or lady's purse and pulled out on sundry occasions for cutting string, opening letters, clipping flowers, &c.

The little knife is pretty, as well as practical. It is neatly gold-plated in perfectly plain fashion.

• • • •

Something Clever.

A clever uplift brassiere attached to a very small and dainty garter belt which holds the hose with invisible grip garters is not widely known. Many women who feel the need of something like this to wear under low-backed evening dresses and sport frocks should inquire about it.

The back straps are arranged so they are held down by the belt, at the same time holding the hose. Being backless and utterly compact, it is the ideal garment for decollete dresses and the coming hot days.

• • • •

Those Old Softies.

No matter how many expensive hats a woman's wardrobe has, there is always room and need for a "softy." It can be carried in the coat pocket, tossed around at random, and still be as wearable as before.

There is a table full of them in a downtown store, and not one costs over a dollar. White ducks for a trip to the beach, silk prints for a morning's shopping, and silk knits for any occasion.

There seems to be no age for them. High school girls or matrons find softies to suit their fancy.

• • • •

Waffle Swaggers.

There are two prices on the waffle coats displayed now in a local shop, $2.79 and $3.95. And there are three color schemes, solid white, black and white, and brown and white.

There are numerous reasons why they should be popular. In the first place they are designed in a loose swagger style. In the second place they are light enough to wear comfortably all summer long. They will fold neatly and be a light little coat to carry on a trip. They're adaptable to all kinds of day-time frocks. They're comfortable and attractive.

Don't forget about them! They're worth a trip down to see.

• • • •

Another Cosmetic.

Another new cosmetic! And what a one. For five years their creator has been at work on the idea. He wanted a lipstick with colors to harmonize with the eyes! Not blues, and greens, and browns, but scarlets and reds that bring out the color of the eyes and act as a flattering complement.

The products he has recently put on the market are the result of intensive research and experiment. But they are the fullfillment of all he hoped.

The new lipsticks are both indelible and automatic. They will last under ordinary circumstances for hours, even in swimming. They may be opened easily with one hand.

A stunning case embossed with blue, red, black, white, or green enamel, and the aristocratic symbol of their creator makes them a charming accessory.

Most amazing of all is their price. Only one dollar!

• • • •

Triple Compact.

Dollar bargains are more than popular as the season advances. Outstanding is the triple compact on sale in a downtown shop. Judging from the flat pancake shape one has difficulty believing it can hold rouge, lipstick and powder. But the problem explains itself when the little enclosures in the top and the main section are opened. It is arranged for loose powder to make it more adaptable to summer.

As the season progresses women should remember to change the shade of their compact powder just as they do that in their dressing table powder box.

Bakers Do It; You Can Banish Pastry Not Hard

Cooks Must Take Care With It, However; Butter Must Be Washed Thoroughly and Pastry Folded and Rolled Expertly.

By Ann Barrett.

DANISH pastries have been a leading special of every good baker for years. So when the singing Bing Crosby lifts up his voice for plenty of these crispy, nutted delicacies, he is likely expressing a preference of millions.

Most of these millions are still willing to let the baker do the Danish on their pastry. But for the sake of those who like to keep the home-fires burning, here's the story. Making Danish pastry is easier than making puff paste, but harder than making ordinary yeast rolls. Because the butter must be washed and the pastry must be carefully folded and rolled. The basic recipe goes like this.

Basic Recipe.

First put 1½ cups butter (well packed) into a bowl. Set bowl under running cold water and work butter with the hands until it turns waxy. Then work out all the water with a wooden spoon. Make the butter into a flat cake and set it in refrigerator to harden.

Meanwhile, crumble 2 cakes of compressed yeast into 2 cups of milk (first scalded and cooled to lukewarm). Add 1-3 cup granulated sugar and let dissolve. Meanwhile sift ¾ teaspoon salt with 8 cups of sifted bread or general-purpose flour. Then rub 1-3 cup of butter (unwashed) into this with a fork. Add 3 eggs (well-beaten) and the yeast mixture. Work mixture smooth, then turn it out on lightly-floured board and knead till smooth and elastic (about 5 minutes). Then roll it out in an oblong (twice as long as it is wide). Beginning at one end of this oblong, put all the washed and chilled butter on 2-3 of the pastry in small, flat pieces.

Next, fold the unbuttered end of the pastry halfway over the rest of the pastry. Then fold the other end over that end, making three thicknesses. Next, roll out ½-inch thick. Then fold and roll twice more. Last, cover with a towel and stand in warm place for 30 minutes.

Danish Almond Rolls.

Then—for Danish almond rolls—roll ½ the pastry out into an oblong about 8 by 12 inches. Spread this with 1 cup ground almonds (mixed with ¾ cup granulated sugar and 1 well-beaten egg). Then roll pastry up like jelly-roll, cut in ½-inch slices, place these (cut-side down) on greased baking sheet and let stand in warm place 30 minutes. Bake at 375 F. about 15 minutes. Just before taking from oven, brush with 1-3 cup sugar boiled 3 minutes with 1-3 cup water.

Danish Braids.

For Danish braids, roll ½ the recipe out ¼-inch thick as directed above. Cut it in strips about ½-inch by 6 inches. Braid three strips together, place braids on greased baking sheet, brush with one egg slightly beaten, and sprinkle with ½ cup finely-chopped nuts mixed with ¼ cup granulated sugar. Stand 20 minutes in a warm place. Then bake at 375 degrees Fahr. about 20 minutes.

"Gemini."

If May 26 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 to 9 a. m., 1 to 3 p. m., and 7 to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 10 a. m. until noon, from 4 to 6 p. m. and from 9 to 11 p. m.

This May 26 will prove a very unsatisfactory day for business engagements, but a delightful one for social entertainment. There will be more money spent than earned, so the wise will watch their expenditures. You probably will be surprised by receiving either a visit or telephone message from one you hold in highest regard, and this will later on lead to an invitation. Accept any invitation extended, for it will prove delightful. Hearts will be susceptible to love's sweet refrain, and more than one engagement will result from this day's woings. This is a bad day to engage in religious or political controversies, or giving public expression of adverse personal opinions.

If you are a woman and May 26 is your birthday, this will prove a very delightful one, so make up your mind to enjoy every minute of it. One person may, quite unintentionally, give occasion for justifiable irritation, but overlook it and do not allow it to ruffle your good humor. Having quite a definite line of thought, almost unique in its originality, it will be a mistake to try and force it upon others or take umbrage if they disagree with your views. You will be happiest in a home of your own and married. Your capability, however, will enable you to be successful in any line of business undertaken.

The child born on May 26, as it grows up, will be inclined to be self-opinionated. This must not be allowed. Conceit is bad enough in a grown person, but it is insufferable in the very young. Having a loving disposition, a more than pleasing personality and a high degree of intelligence, there will be no difficulty in starting this youngster off on the right track. A professional career may be advisable. If the child proves to be studious and deeply interested in one of the professional lines.

If a man and your natal day is May 26, there has been, and still is, only one stumbling block in your road to success. This obstacle can be easily removed by yourself. Your great hindrance is an exalted faith in your own opinion and a disinclination to even treat with tolerance, other people's opinions. An exchange of ideas is always helpful. A small boy may have a mighty practical one to offer, if listened to. Open your mind to other people's suggestions, and your progress will be rapid. Indications are you will acquire money. May 26 is not an auspicious day on which to start new deals or negotiations.

How to Keep Well

Hot Weather Troubles.

The human animal can stand a great deal of heat. A comparison in rather common use for a century and a half is the one between the ability of a live, breathing, and sweating man and a piece of beefsteak to go unchanged through an exposure to a high temperature for a few minutes. A man can withstand exposure to a temperature of 250 degrees—nearly 40 degrees higher than that of boiling water—for 15 minutes. A beefsteak exposed to that temperature for 13 minutes is medium rare. The man will breathe rapidly and sweat profusely, his face will be flushed, and his pulse will beat rapidly, but he will survive the ordeal with nothing to complain of except discomfort.

When the building of Boulder Dam was inaugurated, it was found that the men worked at low efficiency, had poor appetites, and were below par generally. After considerable research on the effects of sunlight, great heat, low humidity, and very little wind movement it was decided that in spite of man's great adaptability and wonderful capacity for withstanding heat it would be profitable to make more provision for modifying the weather.

The State of Arizona is large and the weather is pretty well fixed. The rainmakers were not called into consultation. Air conditioning, meaning air cooling, humidifying, and circulation, was installed in the living quarters, dining rooms, and and rest rooms wherever such installation was feasible.

It is well known to physicians that the sunlight and heat of the summer season in other parts of the country as well as in Arizona severly tax the vitality of those exposed to it in spite of all man's vaunted capacity for adaption. For several years Dr. G. C. Shattuck has been studying the effects of summer heat on the inhabitants of Massachusetts. He has limited his study to sunstroke, heatstroke, and heat exhaustion—the more palpable and immediate effects.

In Massachusetts there are many cases and some deaths due to summer heat. The most important causative factors are prolonged spells of hot weather and improper clothing, diet, beverages, and housing. The age of the sufferer and the condition of his heart and circulation have much to do with determining what will be the result of the exposure.

Three Winning Contest Recipes Are Presented

Strawberry, Potato, Dahlia-Daisy Salads Splendid Cold Dishes.

FIRST prize in the Summer Salad contest, announced last week by The Washington Post, has been awarded for a recipe that excels because it is light, fresh and appetizing, a perfect hot-weather combination. The prize winners follow:

Mrs. Blair Morgan, 1627 Nineteenth street northwest, $3, for strawberry salad.

Miss Edna Zemer, 1940 Calvert street northwest, $2 for an unusual potato salad.

Miss Elizabeth O'Brien, 1361 Irving street, $1, for a salad that is nutritious and at the same time decorative.

Honorable mention is awarded to five women whose recipes ran through all the preliminary judging and rated among the last eight: Miss Kay Smith, 1223 Vermont avenue; Miss Alice Eudora Nixon, 2100 Nineteenth street northwest; Mrs. Molyneaux L. Turner, Berwyn, Md.; Mrs. E. Scmidt, 1413 Nineteenth street northwest; Miss D. Merrick, Northumberland apartments, Washington, D. C.

Since this is a "recipe exchange," designed to give Post readers an opportunity to know what other women are doing to solve the hot weather food problem, these honorable mention recipes will be published by Susan Mills in "The Capital Kitchen" next week.

The three prize winning recipes follow:

Strawberry Salad.

Combine 2 cups halved ripe strawberries, one-half cup broken pecans, one cup diced celery and one teaspoon finely chopped mint. Moisten with slightly sweetened French dressing, arrange on lettuce and top with whipped cream. Serves six.

• • • •

Picnic Potato Salad.

12 medium sized potatoes
2 medium sized onions
¼ pound almonds
½ cup finely chopped parsley

Boil the potatoes with the jackets, starting them in cold water with a lid on the pot and no salt in the water.

Blanch the almonds and cut into fine slices. Cut or chop the onions very finely.

Remove skins from potatoes when done and break the potatoes up with a large spoon until like very coarse mashed potatoes; then make French dressing and pour over the potatoes while still warm.

• • • •

French Dressing.

1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon pepper
8 tablespoons olive oil
6 tablespoons vinegar

Mix the dry ingredients together; then add oil and stir thoroughly; add the vinegar and beat with a spoon or shake well in a seal jar. Then make the following boiled dressing:

3 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon mustard
1 teaspoon paprika
3 egg yolks
1 cup hot milk
¼ cup hot vinegar

Place butter in a bowl and stir until creamy. Add the salt, mustard and paprika; then separate three eggs and drop the three egg yolks into this mixture, stirring until thoroughly mixed. Heat one cup of milk and pour into this mixture, stirring constantly while adding. Return to double boiler and cook until thick. Remove from fire and add the hot vinegar. Stir this into the dressing and pour into potatoes, and also add the almonds, onions and parsley. Mix well and chill. You may find a little more salt is needed.

• • • •

Dahlia-Daisy Salad.

This is for an individual serving:

Place two lettuce leaves on plate, breaking rib so they will lie flat. In the center of one place a small mound of grated carrot, on the other a mound of riced hard-boiled egg yolk. Slice cold boiled or pickled beets in half circles and arrange around carrot mound. Cut hard-boiled egg whites in lengthwise strips and lay around mound of egg yolk.

Cut a green pepper lengthwise. Place two long strips of the pepper under the flowers as stems. Cut a small oval piece of green pepper, notch on one end, insert a bit of beet and egg white to simulate buds.

Tuck small stems of watercress around the flowers, as a florist trims a bouquet with fern.

The remaining scraps may be finely chopped and added to a French dressing to be served separately.

Many fine recipes had to be discarded because they were duplications or for other reasons, and to the women who submitted them Miss Mills offers her thanks and the hope they will try again in future contests, and perhaps win a prize.

Picnic Food Champions Are Wanted

What shall we have for a picnic luncheon? There's a timely topic for the next contest! Any type of "open air" recipe is eligible. By this is meant some particularly good combination to be cooked over a camp fire, or a sandwich that keeps moist and tempting for several hours when the family goes for a long drive, or a dainty salad that is suitable for a party picnic when guests are invited.

There are no formal rules to make this contest difficult. Simply write out the recipe and mail it in time to reach this office by Thursday morning. Address the letter to Susan Mills in care of The Washington Post, and watch for next Saturday's Post for announcement of the winners.

The Talking Sparrow Murders

BY DARWIN TEILHET

The Story So Far.

"A sparrow down there spoke to me. It said distinctly, 'Help! I'm caught.'" With these words Kohlmann, the big industrialist, fell dead at Tatson's feet on a Heidelberg street. Tatson was an American engineer, in a hurry to get home to a job which wouldn't wait. Of course Kresch, chief of police, didn't believe his story; held him as a material witness; wouldn't let him leave Heidelberg. Then a man sneaked into Tatson's room and tried to shoot him. Tatson identified this man later as Taubek, the Nazi commander, scheduled to deliver the oration at Kohlmann's funeral. Tatson determined to attend the funeral and make sure. Passing through a park on the way, he met Spalger, his assistant plant manager, drunk and confessing his love for a girl who sometimes came to the park restaurant. She was, Spalger said, the mistress of Geigen, to whom the plant was being sold. When she drove by a short while later, Tatson had to rescue her from the drunken Spalger. Then he drove away with her in her car, and they spent two delightful hours at an inn outside of town. But when the American returned to his pension he was placed under arrest. Spalger, it seemed, had been killed. Tatson had already told the police that at the time of the killing he was at Kohlmann's funeral, but the police knew better. Where was he, really? Tatson was stumped. He couldn't say that he was with Geigen's mistress, since to do so might kill the sale of the plant. So he went to jail instead. When he was temporarily released, for lack of any evidence against him, he learned the disturbing fact that there was a big shortage in Spalger's accounts. Also, that Spalger had paid over ten thousand dollars to Taubek, the Nazi leader, as a "contribution to the party."

Now let Tatson himself go on with the story:

WHEN he was out of the room, Carlson rubbed his nose and frowned at the desk. "I don't like it, Bill. What do you make of it?"

"Think Taubek and Spalger worked together and Taubek's got the three hundred thousand?"

"I wish I knew, Bill." He let out a cloud of smoke. "Thank the Lord the New York office instructed me to turn over all the details to Spalger, so we're cleared of responsibility."

"Except for the trifling detail that I'm under suspicion for killing Spalger."

"You should have done it before he took the money." He stood up and walked to the window and said, without looking at me, "Just between us, Bill, what the hell were you doing last Saturday afternoon?"

"I went to the funeral."

"All right. Forget it. Stick to your story and I'll stand by you. Call in my secretary, will you? We've got to get a cable off before lunch. Then I have to go over the terms with our lawyers. I'll meet you at Geigen's offices a little before 4. Don't forget. Geigen is not going to like this about Spalger."

"Geigen pays this afternoon?"

Financed by Girl.

"He signs, God willing. I heard from our lawyers that this girl—what's her name?—the old man's ward?—Elaine Edrich was partly financing him. Geigen had a telephone call from her Sunday morning in Munich and made the agreement with me that afternoon; so I imagine our lawyers are right about the rumor that she's inheriting from the old man—from Kohlmann."

Then he asked, "You knew Geigen was marrying her?"

"From the best of authorities. She practically ruined the romantic life of a plant engineer."

"The hell she did! You asked her?"

"I didn't send her a cable. I'll see you a little before 4."

Geigen's suite of offices were in the Karchen Building, on the corner of the Haupstrasse and the Marstallstrasse. I went up to the second floor. The girl at the switchboard told me to go down to the third floor on my right for the meeting. I knocked at the third door. No one answered. I assumed it was all right to step in. It was a long, empty room. The walls were lined with steel files. There were two narrow, shuttered windows at the rear.

Corner Was Visible.

I tried to open the door to go back out into the hall and found that the spring lock had caught. There was another door down at the right end of the room, presumably opening into the offices of Geigen's staff. Although he owned the Geigen brewery in Mannheim and many of his interests were in Mannheim as wel as Munich, he still retained the offices in Heidelberg where his father had originally started business.

I passed the two narrow windows. One window shutter was partly open. A couple of sparrows were flying around outside and I stopped to look at them. I found that I was looking almost directly across from the corner where Kohlmann had been shot. The rear of the Kirchen building was built on the Plockenstrasse. The sparrows had built a nest just above the window and were having a lovely time house cleaning. The room was dark and somber and a cold wind from the Neckar River, just a block or so away, rattled through the narrow Plockenstrasse and made the old window shutters groan.

The wind closed the shutter. I reached out to open it and my left hand cut against a splinter. There was a tiny, grooved furrow on the edge of the shutter frame. The furrow was like an exclamation mark. The dot was nearest me—a small, powder-stained smudge which showed evidences of having been hastily wiped.

Shot Furrowed Shutter.

I glanced over my shoulder but the room was empty. I examined the furrow more carefully. The rest of the exclamation mark slanted down toward the Plockenstrasse. I pulled the shutter almost shut and sighted near the groove. It pointed directly to the corner of the Plockenstrasse where Kohlmann had sat down, holding his stomach with the blood coming through his fingers. Whoever shot Kohlmann had shoved the gun through the shutter opening!

"What kept you so long?" asked Carlson, as he admitted me into the meeting. "We've been waiting nearly 15 minutes."

"I went down to the wrong room and lost my way."

He turned to the men gathered around the long teakwood table. "This is Herr William Tatson, who is the plant engineer and efficiency expert sent out from our New York offices to make certain that the General Porcelain Tank Manufacturing Co. at Schwetzingen was in perfect order.

Geigen was sitting at the head of the table. He bowed with careful courtesy and introduced his two lawyers. "Herr Naubring, Herr Tatson"—and he pronounced my name correctly. "Herr Federling, Herr Tatson."

Sale Discussed.

Geigen was smiling. Imagine a fairly square face, good looking as the very devil, cast out of steel, fitted with the bluest of eyes, a small nose, a tight, firm mouth with square white teeth when the mouth opened to laugh. He had blond hair and he brushed it back with his hand as he stood up and inclined toward me. He was about 1 inch shorter than I was, 10 pounds or so heavier—190 at the most.

Carlson and the lawyers went over the final details of the sale. Carlson made it clear that the payment was to be made in American currency.

"I understand Spalger bought supplies and materials for over a year and took advantage of the credit facilities to avoid payment. Is that correct?" asked Geigen.

"Unfortunately, it is."

One of the lawyers immediately got the wind under his tail. "The credit is in the name of the Schwetzingen property, Herr Carlson," he protested excitedly. That means the Schwetzingen property will be responsible for the money owed."

"Not at all. The debt was contracted when our organization owned the property. We still have to be responsible for paying it."

There was silence. The second lawyer, Federling, tapped on the table with his fingers. At last he stated, "This may be regluar, Herr Carlson, but I personally will recommend, if my colleague agrees, that you cable to your New York office for a new contract with the clause inserted in the contract proper and have them sign it and mail it to you for your signature and ours."

Geigen looked at his watch, declared his lawyers were to make whatever agreements they thought advisable and apologized for leaving the meeting with the explanation that he had another important business engagement. The meeting broke up after that.

China Calls on Women to Curb Luxury Buying

Peiping, China, May 25 (U.P.). China's women, especially of the middle and upper classes, have been appealed to as able to reduce this country's staggering adverse trade balance. By discontinuing the use of cosmetics, perfumes, chewing gum, wearing apparel and other luxuries imported from abroad the women could greatly improve the country's economic position, the Chen Pao, Peiping vernacular newspaper, believes.

U. S. Senator Still Silent About Race

Goldsborough Is Being Urged to Enter Ring for Governor.

Bruces Are Undecided as to Which Will Run for Senate.

Senator Phillips Lee Goldsborough (Republican), of Maryland, will make public his political intentions "before long," it was announced yesterday at his office.

Questioned as to what "before long" meant, those close to the Senator's official family said they felt an announcement would be forthcoming "shortly after June 1."

An early announcement from the Maryland Senator, however, is contrary to rumors prevalent in Baltimore, to the effect that Goldsborough will probably withhold his views in expectation of a party split.

Should the party split over the already problematical county votes, according to the rumor, Mr. Goldsborough will attempt to "take" the primaries as candidate for Governor. It is generally understood that he is anxious to regain the governorship, which he held from 1912 to 1915.

Asked what the Senator's views were along this line, attaches at his office stated that "it was logical for Mr. Goldsborough to announce himself for reelection, but a great deal of pressure has been brought to bear recently by prominent Marylanders, who desire him to seek the governorship.

Meanwhile, William Cabell Bruce and his nephew, Howard Bruce, one of whom is expected to be the main Democratic threat for the Senatorship, are restive. Although it is understood by those in authority that Howard Bruce will be the candidate, Bruce has announced that he will not run against his uncle, should the latter desire to enter the race.

William Cabell Bruce, however, desires to be aligned with the Ritchie forces. The Ritchie forces, so far, have shown no enthusiasm for such an alliance. Democratic leaders expect this situation to end in the announcement of Howard Bruce.

Rural Pastors' Session Is Set

School at V. P. I. to Weigh Knotty Problems of Ministers.

Blacksburg, Va., May 25 (AP).—Knotty problems confronting rural ministers will be considered at the fifth annual summer school for rural ministers to be held under the auspices of the Virginia rural church conference board at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, July 18 to 27, B. L. Hummel, sociologist of the agricultural extension division here, announced today.

Dr. John Q. Schisler, secretary of the local church department of the general board of Christian education of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, will give a credit course on "Religious Education in the Country Church" every morning.

"County Trends and Conditions of Social Significane" will be presented by Dr. W. E. Garnett, rural sociologist of the Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station, who has been gathering data on rural conditions in Virginia.

His data will be discussed by Dr. M. M. Dawber, superintendent of the department of rural work, Methodist Episcopal Church, Philadelphia, showing the effect such conditions and trends have upon the work of the country church. The morning schedule will be completed with an hour's round-table discussions led by various country ministers.

The executive committee of the Virginia Rural Church Conference Board is composed of Dr. H. W. McLaughlin, chairman; Bishop F. D. Goodwin, vice chairman; Prof. B. L. Hummel, secretary-treasurer; the Rev. William C. Shaven, director of the 1934 rural ministers' summer school; Dr. William Archer Wright, chairman of the school's program; the Rev. Minor C. Miller, Dr. George T. Waite, Dr. John A. Tate, the Rev. Jesse Stanfield, Dr. J. J. Scherer, Dr. V. O. Phillips.

Hopewell, Va., Rayon Strike Vote Is Called

Layoff of 300 and Alleged Discrimination May Bring Walkout.

Richmond, May 25 (AP).—A strike at the Tubize-Chatillon plant at Hopewell, Va., appeared as a possibility tonight after R. T. Bowden, special representative of the Virginia Federation of Labor, received reports that a strike vote would be taken, probably Monday, by members of the Textile Workers Union local at the plant.

The federation official said it had been difficult to avert a strike since the local was formed on March 31.

"Now that the management has laid off about 300 workers in the past week, it would naturally be difficult to restrain them," he said. "The Federation of Labor, in session at Roanoke this week, gave warning to employers that they must cease union discrimination or it would no longer attempt to curb strikes in Virginia industry.

"We still are doing our best in Hopewell to prevent a strike, and last night no mention was made of a strike in the addresses of Mr. Kelly or myself." Bowden explained that he, with William J. Kelly, vice president of the United Textile Workers of America, attended a meeting of the Hopewell local last night.

If the union voted for the strike, the federation would still try to avert it, Bowden said.

Another opportunity to prevent the walkout was seen in an announcement by the National Labor Board that it had assumed jurisdiction and set 10:30 a. m. on June 1 as the time for a hearing in the Commerce Building in Washington.

Meanwhile, conversations are to be held between Kelly and Raymond S. Burrows, manager of the Tubize plant. Burrows has informed the union that he would receive Kelly and talk the matter over with him.

The plant manager said the layoff of employes was a general one, due to seasonal declines in the demand for rayon, and that all sections of the plant had been affected. Plant officials deny any discrimination against union members.

100 Virginians Plan to Attend U. C. V. Parley

Special Train Will Carry State Delegation to Chattanooga.

Richmond, May 25 (AP).—Approximately 100 United Confederate Veterans, Sons of Confederate Veterans, United Daughters of the Confederacy, sponsors and maids of honor will represent Virginia at the Confederate reunion to be held June 5-8 at Chattanooga, Tenn.

The Confederate reunion probably will be the last to be held.

A special train will leave from Richmond, connecting with cars from Norfolk at Petersburg where Commander in Chief Gen. Homer Atkinson will board the train, and picking up additional delegations at Lynchburg, Bedford, Waynesboro and Roanoke.

Lieut. Gen. William McK. Evans, of Richmond, will command the Army of Northern Virginia and Gen. Arthur S. Bell, adjutant general, chief of staff, of Richmond, will head the Virginia Division, United Confederate Veterans. R. M. Colvin, of Harrisonburg, will command the Virginia division, Sons of Confederate Veterans.

Elaborate preparations have been made for the convention, at which the principal speaker will be Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi.

A parade will feature the reunion exercises. The entertainment includes two formal balls.

2% Is Called Home Loans' Handling Cost

3,287 Applications Sent to Washington, Virginian Tells Parley.

Charlottesville, Va., May 25 (AP).—Less than 2 per cent has been spent in handling $10,000,000 in home owners' loans in Virginia, Senator John J. Wicker, of Richmond, told members of the building and loan associations gathered in convention here.

Senator Wicker explained to the delegates the operation of the Home Owners Loan Corporation, which he heads in the State. Approximately 100 representatives of 50 associations heard his address.

Senator Wicker told the convention yesterday that the Virginia loan organization had completed and forwarded to Washington 3,287 applications for a total figure of $10,515,250. The loans were secured by property assessed at $15,209,201, he said.

Of the loans placed, 845 were handled in Richmond and 684 in Norfolk, while the fewest number, 252, were filed from the Bristol district.

Bonds amounting to $1,281,379, or 14 per cent of the whole, were to go to the building and loan associations, Senator Wicker explained.

Criticism of the Home Owners Loan Corporation on the ground too much time is consumed in putting a transaction through was met by the speaker with the assertion that the infinite amount of detail work necessary prevented speedier action. He quoted the record of the organization during its eight months of life and showed how the cost was apportioned between field appraisers, title attorneys, surveyors and court clerks. He promised a still greater reduction in the overhead charges.

Another speaker at yesterday's session, J. M. Rountree, of Washington, general manager of the Federal Savings and Loan Division, made a plea for Federalization of building and loan companies. His Virginia aid, John H. Randolph, of Richmond, also spoke.

U. of Va. Language Professor To Be Italy's Guest During Tour

Government Invites Dr. Rinette in Recognition of His Work in Developing Department; Dr. Lambeth Also Is Honored.

Charlottesville, Va., May 25 (Spl.).—A special committee of the Italian government has invited Dr. Oreste Rinetti, professor of Italian at the University of Virginia, to be the guest of the government this summer on an extended tour of Italy.

The invitation was accorded Dr. Rinetti through Augusto Rosso, the Italian Ambassador. Four other outstanding teachers of Italian in the United States have been honored in like manner.

Dr. Rinetti inaugurated the study of the Italian language and culture at the University of Virginia five years ago, and has developed a department which presents a stronger appeal for the romantic languages.

The recognition is the second time within the week that the Italian government has honored a University of Virginia faculty member. Dr. William A. Lambeth, professor of hygiene, was decorated with the Cross of Commendatore of the Crown of Italy for his furtherance of cordial relations between Italy and the United States.

The cross was presented to Dr. Lambeth by Dr. R. C. Ruggieri, Italian consul in Norfolk. Dr. Lambeth first visited Italy 45 years ago and has made a trip almost annually since that time. The Italian room in the Romance Pavilion is largely furnished with antiques and art objects which Dr. Lambeth brought back, and he had much to do with the inauguration of the teaching of Italian at the university.

3 Dead, 51 Hurt Toll of Virginia Bus-Truck Fire

Holiday Vehicle Driver Fails to Recall Start of Fatal Trip.

Richmond, May 25 (AP).—Careening across the rain-swept Petersburg turnpike, 3 miles from Dutch Gap, near here, a bus loaded with holiday-making colored people collided with a tobacco truck shortly after midnight last night, overturned and burst into flames.

Three persons are dead, while 51 nursed injuries tonight. Twenty-two are still in hospitals here and at Petersburg.

Geneva Johnson, of Richmond, died in a hospital here early today. Two other bodies were taken from the ruins of the bus, but had not been identified today. Eleven of the injured, including one white man, remained in Petersburg Hospital, while the drivers of the two machines, one delirious, are in Memorial Hospital here.

Paul C. Rand, 26, driver of the bus, said he was unable to remember taking it from the garage last night. He gave disconnected answers to questions about the accident and asked, "Were there any passengers aboard?" when a friend visited him at the hospital today.

Willie G. Whitlock, 20, driver of the tobacco truck, said he believed that "the bus driver locked his brakes and skidded into my path." So great was the impact that the front wheels and hood of the truck cut into the body of the bus, in which were more than 50 persons.

The crash occurred during a blinding rainstorm, which hampered rescue workers. Police commandeered passing automobiles and sent the injured to hospitals. Investigation of the crash continued today as authorities sought to fix the blame for the accident.

Beer Enforcement Officer Is Named

H. O. Merricks, Roanoke, to Have Charge of Area.

H. O. Merricks, of Roanoke, Va., will have charge of the beer enforcement board of the alcoholic beverages wholesade code in the region comprising Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia, the Associated Press reports.

Merricks' appointment as regional chairman was announced yesterday at the Federal Alcohol Control Administration. Other Virginia members of Regional Board No. 5 are: C. W. Withrow, Newport News; O. C. Jones, Richmond; F. G. Yeary, Coeburn, and D. E. Bennett, Clarendon.

Maryland members are: John F. Martin, Annapolis; B. K. Miller, Clinton; A. Krause and Jesse Rosenfeld, Baltimore; J. V. Hastings, Salisbury, and Charles Dillon, Frostburg. A. D. O'Connor, of Washington, is the member of the general beer group code authority from the region.

Barn and Live Stock Burn at Cumberland

Cumberland, Md., May 25 (Spl.).—A large barn, owned by Robert Stickley, was destroyed by fire yesterday.

Mr. Stickley, who lives near here, was awakened by the smoke from the burning barn. A lot of hogs and other live stock in the barn were saved, but a large number of chickens in an adjoining building were burned.

Attack Victim Clings to Life, With Girl Dead

Police Without New Clews in Fredericksburg Park Mystery.

Fredericksburg, Va., May 25 (Spl.).—With Miss Fannie Kurz, 20-year-old Fredericksburg Battlefield Park attack victim dead, Milton Brown, her fiance, continued unconsciousness today with little change in his condition since his arrival at the hospital Monday.

With a fractured skull and other head and facial injuries, Miss Kurz had fought for four days tenaciously for her life. She lived many hours more than physicians expected, but never emerged from the deep coma in which she was discovered in an old Confederate trench Monday afternoon.

Dr. W. S. Harris, Spotsylvania County coroner, rendered a verdict of "killed by severe head injuries" at an autopsy this afternoon.

Brown, fed milk by nurses, occasionally mumbles incoherently.

County, city and Department of Justice operatives have investigated every clew without coming to any satisfactory conclusion. Police today stated that it has never been established that Brown had $25 with him, as reported. Brewer Beckwith, for whom Brown worked, revealed that Brown drew $4 in advance on his pay a day or two before the crime. Though most authorities consider robbery the most probable motive, police continue to work on the jealousy theory, as Miss Kurz was very popular.

It was learned today that the object yesterday of Commonwealth's Attorney W. B. F. Cole's airplane investigation of the park was to determine the exact course of several roads leading into the woods in the section where the crime was reported.

Physicians today held out little hope that Brown will soon be able to throw any light on the case. They state that even should he recover his mental condition might not be sufficiently strong for weeks as to make his memory dependable.

Funeral services for Miss Kurz will be conducted at 2:30 p. m., Sunday from Falmouth Baptist Church by the Rev. P. H. Clements.

The daughter of Gus Kurz, well-known farmer, she was born in Stafford County and has lived there all her life. Her father, a native of Germany, came to this country with his parents while a boy. Settling first in Fauquier County, he moved to Stafford 40 years ago. In addition to her father, Miss Kurz is survived by three brothers, Gus Kurz, jr., John and Gilbert Kurz; one sister, Mrs. Pauline Burton, and an uncle, Jacob Kurz.

Burch Pays Fee To Enter Primary

Representative at Large to Change Status.

Richmond, May 25 (AP).—Representative Thomas G. Burch today paid State Treasurer John M. Purcell the $200 fee which qualifies him as a candidate for renomination by the Democratic primary in August.

Mr. Burch, who comes from Martinsville, is now a Representative at Learge from Virginia. If renominated and reelected this year he will represent only the Fifth Congressional District.

Representatives Bland, Woodrum, Smith and Drewry already have paid their primary entrance fees, as has also United States Senator Byrd. Representative Flannigan, who was nominated by convention, will not have to pay a primary fee.

Washington Courthouse Costs County $14,000

Hagerstown, Md., May 25 (Spl.). The new addition to the courthouse, erected by CWA workers, will cost Washington County $14,000, it was estimated today as the work neared completion.

The county had to meet the expense of materials for the addition. The costs to the county were about $4,000 more than estimated.

Virginia Aids Differ on Cuts In Relief Work

Questionnaires on Slashes for Summer Bring Many Varied Opinions.

Richmond, May 25 (Spl.).—A variety of opinions exist as to the necessity of continuing the Federal Emergency Relief program in the rural areas of Virginia during the summer and early fall months.

This statement came today from William A. Smith, Virginia administrator, after examination of the first batch of returned questionnaires, sent by VERA to members of boards of supervisors in all counties of the State. The queries sought to ascertain to what extent the relief program may be modified during the summer and early fall.

"Some counties report that there will be just as great a need during these months as before," Mr. Smith said. "Other counties declare modification would be satisfactory, while still others report that it would be agreeable to remove the relief offices altogether, as they did not want them in the first place."

When all the questionnaires are returned, Walter P. Smith, chief clerk of VERA, will present the report to Administrator Smith.

The questions asked the supervisors follow:

Do you think relief should be discontinued or modified during the summer months?

If modified, to what extent? Do you suggest this action be taken, effective July 1? If not, on what date? If discontinued, or modified, on what date in the fall do you think the program should be resumed? Are there any sections in your county which should be excepted and relief continued? If so, please name them. If continued, do you suggest any change in the present methods?

Wine Dealers Ask Overhaul Of Sales Plan

Virginia Board Intends to Cut Red Tape as Much as Law Allows.

Simpler Permit Forms, Lower Nuisance Tax Are Urged.

Richmond, May 25 (Spl.).—Virginia wine dealers went before the ABC Board today and asked for a complete overhaul of the State's wine distribution plan. The board, announcing that it intends to simplify distribution as much as the law permits, took the proposal under advisement.

Nimmo Old, jr., president of the wine dealers' group, was told by Chairman S. Heth Tyler that the board's present restrictions were laid down pursuant to opinion of Attorney General A. P. Staples.

"We must follow the law as interpreted for us," Maj. Tyler said. "Had we written the law it would not contain so many restrictions."

R. McC. Bullington, member of the board in charge of merchandising, expressed the hope that Virginia-made wine may be generally available before long at as little as 25 cents a bottle.

The board was asked to reduce the mark-up from 21 per cent to from 6 to 10 per cent, to abolish fees which now constitute a "nuisance tax" of about 88 cents per case of wine, to discontinue handling wine in the State warehouse and State stores in competition with licenses, and to clarify the on-premise and off-premise rules.

The dealers strongly recommended major amendments to the present "clumsy system of handling wine orders," and "an immediate change of the present complicated process of having your inspectors attach stamps on each container."

They offered in lieu of the present system, the following plan: A mark-up of from 6 to 10 per cent, simpler permit forms, wholesalers to assume responsibility for securing State stamps, passing on responsibility for affixing stamps to retailer.

Chairman Tyler promised the closest consideration and a reply later.

"We are required to buy all wine sold in Virginia—required by law," he said. "And we are willing to stretch our consciences to the limit in an effort to induce people who must drink to drink the lighter beverages rather than spirits. We wish to make the distribution as simple as the law permits."

Wes Ferrell, Reinstated, Is Traded to Red Sox Along With Porter

Weiland and Seeds Sent To Tribe

$25,000 Believed Sum That Boston Included in Transaction.

Landis Approves Trade; Pitcher Storm Center of Cleveland Club.

CLEVELAND, May 25 (U.P.).—Wesley Ferrell, recalcitrant Cleveland pitcher who was suspended this spring for refusal to report to the Indians, today was reinstated and traded to the Boston Red Sox.

Dick Porter, Cleveland right fielder, was traded to the Red Sox along with Ferrell. In return the Indians will get Bob Weiland, big left-handed pitcher, and Bob Seeds, hard-hitting outfielder and former, Indian, together with an unannounced cash consideration believed to be $25,000.

Landis Approves Deal.

Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, czar of baseball, approved the transaction, including reinstatement of Ferrell, it was announced.

Trading of Ferrell ends the stormy career of the big right-hander under Cleveland colors. He is now at his home near Guilford, N. C., and will report to the Red Sox as soon as he is officially notified of the trade.

Raines to Wrestle Marshall Thursday

Browning and McMillan Held Over.

A slightly revised but none the less colorful rassling card will be offered Washingtonians Thursday night when Promoter Joe Turner presents his rained-out card of last Thursday.

Fortunate in holding over Jim Browning and Jim McMillan in his main event, Turner has been forced to substitute Dick Raines as an opponent for Everett Marshall in a bout now scheduled as his semi-final, dropping Earl McCready and Harry Fields to a 30-minute spot.

Turner promises Washingtonians a surprise attraction in a special event, having drafted a high calibered and colorful newcomer into this attraction.

Tickets purchased for last Thursday's show will be honored.

V.M.I. Athletic Council Names Burgess as Head

Lexington, Va., May 25 (AP).—John J. Burgess, of Fort Worth, Tex., was elected president of the Virginia Military Institute athletic council today. William T. Downey, of Richmond, and Curtis Burton, of Hopewell, were also named to the council.

Burgess is a letter man in football and wrestling, Downey is captain-elect of basketball and Burton is captain-elect of the school's boxing team.

Non-voting members elected to the council were: Marlin B. Bair, Etters, Pa.; and Robert W. Evans, of Lynchburg.

Berger Is Fielding Sensation in South

The fertile greensward of baseball's promised land is beckoning "Bozie" Berger, and the former Maryland ace is in such a receptive mood that it will not be surprising if the Cleveland Indians recall him from his second base post in the New Orleans infield and place him on their own roster.

Berger is the fielding sensation of the league. In his first 24 games "Bozie" gobbled up 171 chances—an average of seven a game. He has prodded his batting average well up into the .300 class.

American Net Stars Defeated In France

Josephine Cruickshank and Wilmer Hines Lose to Foreign Players.

PARIS, May 25 (AP).—Two more Americans fell before stinging foreign racquets today in the third day of the French hard court tennis championships.

Josephine Cruickshank, fifth ranking American player, was put out in the second round by Joan Hartigan, Australian woman champion, 1—6, 7—5, 6—3. Wilmer Hines, former North Carolina Collegian, was defeated by Max Ellmer, Swiss Davis Cup player, in the third round of men's singles, 8—10, 6—4, 6—0, 5—7, 6—3. Both Americans seemed on their way to victory when their games deserted them.

Dorothy Andrus plays Rene Mathieu, ranking French woman, and Carolina Babcock meets Marie Horn, Germany's second-ranked star, in singles tomorrow, while Helen Jacobs and Sarah Palfrey will play their first matchc in women's doubles against Morel Deville and Jacqueline Horner, French junior title holder.

3 Homers Aid Nats to Win By 9 to 3

Stone, Cronin and Myer Bat First 4-Baggers of Season.

Whitehall Hurls for 9 Innings to End Jinx of St. Louis Club.

By Shirley L. Povich
(Sports Editor, The Post)

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, St. Louis, May 25 (Spl.).—The Nats caught up with their St. Louis jinx this afternon, poured a deadly fire of base hits into the Browns, and won a 9-to-3 ball game while some five-hit pitching by Earl Whitehill covered their advance.

They sprayed the premises with three home runs over and atop the right-field pavilion to win their first ball game from St. Louis in a half dozen attempts this season and help Whitehill to last the nine-inning route for the first time since he shut out the Giants in the late and lamented world series of last October.

Three Make Homers.

The pent-up fury of the Nats' attack burst loose against the pitching of George Blaeholder, Bill McAfee and Jack Knott in the form of 13 solid smacks, with Johnny Stone, Joe Cronin and Buddy Myer unloading their first home runs of the season during the proceedings.

The upshot of the matter was that the Nats pulled their percentage up to the .500 mark again and catapulted into a three-way tie for third place in the American League vital statistics, sharing the berth with the Browns and Tigers, three games behind the leading Yankees, who were being socked by the White Sox in Chicago.

The Nats were operating from a new formation this afternoon with Manager Joe Cronin taking cognizance of his own batting slump and the furious batting pace of Cecil Travis, who led all the league's hitters this morning. Cronin demoted himself to sixth position in the line-up, promoting Travis to the clean-up role, and shifted Fred Schulte to seventh with the results aforementioned.

Browns Held Back.

Whitehill held the Browns to one hit in the first five innings while the Nats were piling up a 5-1 lead for hi magainst the offerings of Blaeholder.

They picked up two runs in the first inning when with two out, Stone followed Myer's single and Kuhel's walk, by slamming the first of his three hits into right field to score 'em both.

Whitehill himself launched the Nats' two-run uprising in the second by basting a double against the screen in right field. He scored eventually on an error by Melillo, who threw Kuhel's grounder past Hemsley at the plate, and Kuhel proceeded on to second from whence he came home on Travis' single into left.

Johnny Stone upped the score to 5-1 when he opened the fourth inning with a prodigious home run that cleared the roof in right field, the hardest sock he has unloaded since joining the Nats. Before the inning was over, Bill McAfee, the former Nat, had relieved Blaeholder in the box.

Eruption in Sixth.

The grand eruption occurred in the sixth against McAfee's pitching. Stone walked, and Cronin deposited two runs at the plate by pushing a high fly on top of the right-field pavilion roof for a homer. A bit later, with two out, Whitehill yalked, and Buddy Myer smacked a ohme run on top of the roof to give the Nats four runs for the inning and an 8-2 lead.

After that, the Nats attack subsidetd against the pitching of Jack Knott although Johnny Stone did smack a triple into left center in the ninth, but Whitehill made his 9-3 lead stand up despite a slight flurry in the ninth when he filled the bases.

A's Win After Welter of Hits

DETROIT, May 25 (AP).—The Philadelphia Athletics emerged from a welter of hits and errors today with a 9-to-7 victory, which gave them the deciding game in their series with the Detroit Tigers.

The ineffectiveness of four Detroit pitchers plus five Detroit errors helped the Athletics on their way. Sorrell, who started for Detroit, was touched for five runs in the first two innings. Frasier, Auker and Hogsett were the other Tiger hurlers.

Detroit's big inning was the sixth, when ten men batted, scoring five hits and five runs to tie the game. Kline replaced Cain for the Athletics during the bombardment. Philadelphia swept back into the lead in the eighth, combining three passes, two singles and a Detroit error for three runs. McNair added another run for good measure when he hit a homer in the ninth with none on.

Spree in Third Inning Wins For Chisox

Dykes' Homer Climax of Rally as Yankees Lose, 7 to 5.

CHICAGO, May 25 (AP).—The White Sox concentrated their hitting in one fruitful inning today and scored six runs to defeat the league-leading New York Yankees, 7 to 5. The Sox took the series, 2 to 1, and marked the third straight series the Yanks have lost in the West.

A home run by Manager Jimmy Dykes, his fifth of the season, climaxed the third inning spree at the expense of George Uhle. Luke Appling was on base when Dykes made his swat.

George Earnshaw went the route for the Sox, allowing only six hits, including a homer by Sammy Byrd.

Earnshaw, Evar Swanson and Mule Haas singled in succession with one out in the third to start the winning drive. After Uhle passed Zeke Bonura, forcing Earnshaw home, two more runs were scored on Al Simmons' sharp single to right. Bonura scored when Luke Appling forced Simmons. Dykes then lofted his homer into the left field stands.

Lena, Sister of Levinsky, Gives 'Low Down' on Fight Cash Splits

CHICAGO, May 25 (AP).—After an hour in court during which she painted a drab picture of the fight industry and a lively scene of the various degrees of smartness among fight managers, Mrs. Lena Levy packed up her bags and started her brother, King Levinsky, back to Los Angeles for that postponed battle against Art Laskey.

Lena and the Kingfish were brought to court by a fish and oyster company which is attempting to collect a judgment of $947.02 from them as the result of an unsuccessful venture in the restaurant business.

"My brother and I have been broke for the last two years," Lena told the court. "The game isn't what it used to be. But my motto is try, try again."

When the plaintiff attorney suggested that Lena got "most" of the King's salary, she denied it hotly, explaining he had three managers, all of them getting a cut. She said she received 15 per cent; Pete Riley, 25 per cent, and Harry Steinman, 10 per cent. Steinman, she added quickly, does most of the work.

"Then why does he only get 10 per cent?" the plaintiff attorney asked.

"He's not smart enough to get more," Lena replied.

"And why does Riley get 25 per cent?"

"He's too smart to work for less."

"You're smart. Why do you work for only 15 per cent?"

"After all, that's all I'm after. I'm satisfied with that."

Davis Cup Doubles Delayed by Rain

U. S. and Canadian Teams Will Compete Today.

Wilmington, Del., May 25 (U.P.).—The Davis Cup doubles match between United Staates and Canada was postponed today until tomorrow because of rain. The concluding pair of singles contests will be played Sunday.

George M. Lott, Chicago, and John Van Ryn, Philadelphia, were slated to meet Marcel Rainville, Montreal, and Walter Martin, Toronto.

Hagen and Cox Tied In Battle for Title

Westfield, N. J., May 25 (AP).—Walter Hagen, topping off a great round with a marvelous approach for a par on the eighteenth hole, today toured Echo Lake course in 72 strokes to go into a tie for first place with Wiffy Cox, of Brooklyn, at the end of 36 holes of play in the Metropolitan Open golf championship.

Each had a two-round total of 142.

Little to Face Wallace for Golf Title

Defeats Garnett One Up, in Extra Hole Match at Prestwick.

Dunlap Beaten by Scot Star; Championship Match on Today.

By Gale Talbot.

PRESTWICK, Scotland, May 25 (AP).—W. Lawson Little, long-hitting Californian, qualified today to meet James Wallace, unemployed and dole-financed carpenter, for the British amateur golf championship in a hectic day which saw the elimination of George T. Dunlap, jr., American amateur title-holder.

Little defeated Leslie Garnett, conqueror of Johnny Goodman, 1 up in an extra-hole match. Dunlap bowed to Wallace, 2 and 1, in one of the greatest competitive rounds ever seen in Scotland. Little and Wallace meet in the 36-hole championship round tomorrow.

15-Foot Putt for Birdie.

Wallace was 1 down to the American champion at the halfway mark. For the rest of the round he hammered down an unbroken series of pars and birdies, finally nailing his frail rival at the seventeenth, where he banged in a sensational 15-foot putt for a birdie. He was 3 under par for the eight holes along the backward route, while Dunlap was even with regulation figures.

"When a man shoots the kind of golf Wallace did I don't feel disgraced in losing," Dunlap said.

Wallace could not afford to pay his caddy, but the bonny lad who has toted the carpenter's bag, cried for sheer joy when his man won.

Wears Old Clothes.

He's been wearing the same brown sweater, pants and socks all week and his shoes are half soled. A popular, likable fellow, Wallace plays golf almost daily, carrying his own clubs, since he lost his job a year ago.

Before they came to grips, Wallace defeated Francis Francis, Sunningdale millionaire, 3 and 2, in the quarter-finals, and Dunlap scored a 3-to-1 victory over Alexa Walker, scion of the famous whisky family, in the same round.

Discovery Winner by 10 Lengths in Feature Race Over Muddy Belmont Track

Race Serves As Practice For Colt

Works Out at American Derby Route; Bejshak Has the Mount.

BELMONT PARK RACE TRACK, May 25 (AP).—Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Discovery, a three-year-old that was unfortunate in having to run up against the Brookmeade Stable monopoly in the spring classics this year, made his metropolitan debut here today and won the Tournament Purse in hollow fashion by ten lengths. The powerful chestnut son of Display, facing very inferior horses of his own age and carrying only 112 pounds, essayed a sloppy track for the first time. He demonstrated that he was perfectly at home in the going and ran the seven furlongs in 1:25 flat.

P. S. P. Randolph's War Letter, a 20-to-1 hazard under Coucci, was second, a half length before R. C. Winmill's Rebel Yell. Discovery, although he had no mud form, was held at 1 to 5. The Vanderbilt colt was not named for any of the local stakes but this event served as a preliminary tune-up for the American Derby at Washington Park June 2.

Johnny Bejshak kept Discovery going after the finish, working the colt out a mile and a quarter in 2:04 4-5. The fractional time was 23 2-5, 47 1-5, 59 3-5, 1:25, 1:37 4-5, 1:51 1-5 and 2:04 4-5.

Making his first public appearance since his splendid effort in the Preakness, Discovery had all his speed. He broke third and sped to the front in a few strides. Before the others knew which way he had gone, the chestnut star was many lengths clear. The battle for the place was the real race from a competitive viewpoint, with War Letter making up ground rapidly in the stretch to catch Rebel Yell. Cant Remember stopped after trying to keep within range of Discovery.

Shepherd College Loses.

Shepherdstown, W. Va., May 25. The Shenandoah Junction baseball nine routed Shepherd College here yesterday through a ninth-inning, four-run rally to win, 7-5.

Zimmerman played an outstanding game for the Newcomites, pounding out a double, a home run and gaining a walk in five trips to the plate.

Charles Town Lists Many Race Events

Track Opens Monday for Summer Meeting.

Charles Town, W. Va., May 25 (Spl.).—The first summer meeting of the Shenandoah Valley Jockey Club, scheduled to begin Monday, promises to go over with a bang.

C. C. Smithson, of Washington, is shipping the big string he raced at the Maryland tracks. T. J. Donohue is another Washingtonian whose colors will be seen.

On the opening day the Jefferson County Inaugural will be offered as a feature. The conditions call for 3-year-olds and upward at 6½ furlongs. The program on that day will be made up of seven races, including the Shirley Povich, George Goodacre and Apple Blossom Purses.

On Decoration Day eight races will be programmed, the big attraction being the Decoration Day Handicap. On Tuesday the attractions will be the Kirk Miller Handicap and the Bernie Harding Purse. Both are sprint affairs.

Manager Joseph Boyle has arranged with the B. & O. Railroad for a special train to leave Washington at 12 o'clock noon each day and a reduced rate of $1.50 round trip, including admission to the grounds.

Aquatic Sports Added To Regatta Program

One of the most noted events ever held here in conjunction with the annual President's Cup Regatta is being arranged by James W. Burch, former commodore of the American Canoe Association, chairman of the swimming and aquatic sports program of the regatta.

He has scheduled a complete program of swimming races on Thursday evening, September 20. On Sunday, following the opening of the regatta, Burch plans to conduct canoe and rowing competition. Nothing has ever been attempted in aquatic competition on this large scale. Appointment of Burch has assured the Capital and the regatta one of its most interesting water features.

Richmond Frosh Win.

Woodbury Forest, Va., May 25 (Spl.).—The Woodberry Forest golf team defeated the University of Richmond freshmen over the local course here Thursday afternoon, 14½ to 3½. Dick Payne, playing No. 1 for Woodberry, turned in a 76 for the lowest score of the match.

Many Players Shifted In Interstate League

Cumberland, Md., May 25 (Spl.). Franklin Wolfe, southpaw hurler, who has pitched for numerous independent nines in recent years, has been traded by the Celanese A. A. to the American Legion nine of the Interstate League. The names of the Legion players involved in the trade were not announced. Wolfe will be eligible to play in league games this weekend.

The Frostburg Demons have released Robert and William Wiebrecht and Thomas Burl and signed E. W. Wolfe.

Tommy Cloonon, veteran lefthander, and Kenneth Valentine have been added to the F. O. Eagles' roster and releases were handed to Floyd Yost and Charles Belfoure. The B. & O. nine announced the release of J. G. McGinn and also the addition of John H. McCullough to its roster.

200 Hunters Listed For Virginia Show

Blue Ridge Club to Hold Annual Event Today.

Millwood, Va., May 25 (Spl.).—Two hundred hunters have been entered for the forty-first annual Blue Ridge Hunt Club Horse Show in Carter Hall Grove here tomorrow.

The Green Hunters class has the most entries, 23, and spirited competition is anticipated in that field between Brown Bruin, owned by G. P. Greenhalgh, of Toledo, who won the class in 1933 under the colors of Mrs. John D. Richardson, of Clarke County, and Dr. Lewis M. Allen's Clifton's Rose, Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Bolling Green and Capt. Ewart Johnson's Old Salt.

The lightweight hunters class has 14 entries including Mrs. Whitney's Bolling Green, Cornelius and Silver Shield, and Dr. Allen's Clifton's Rose and Petite Poule.

Fairfield Farms, owned by Mrs. John D. Richardson, of Berryville; Dr. Allen, E. B. Jacobs, A. MacKay Smith, Capt. Johnston and Mrs. Johnston each have outstanding hunters entered in the handy hunter class.

Gaithersburg Seeks Game.

Gaithersburg A. C. is seeking a game with some strong unlimited team for tomorrow. Call Manager Devilbiss at Rockville 20.

Wants Action Tomorrow.

The Colonial A. C. wants a game with an unlimited team for tomorrow. Call Georgia 1404.

N. C. U. Batting Average Set At .320

Vick Tops Team With .417 While Irwin Slugs .415.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., May 25 (Spl.).—North Carolina's State and Southern Conference baseball champions busted the apple for the cool team average of .320 during the season just closed, according to the official averages released today by Manager W. W. Sloan.

The Tarheels were led by Thurman Vick, center fielder and captain-elect, who connected 35 times out of 84 trips for an average of .417, closely followed by Tommy Irwin, sensational sophomore shortstop, who hit 34 times out of 82 for .415.

Nate Andrews, Fred Crouch and Ernest McKeithan split honors on the mound, both being undefeated.

Thurman Vick won the year's fielding honors, turning in a series of spectacular catches game after game and finishing his third season of freshman and varsity ball with a record of but one error.

Piety, Victorious Again, Is Claimed by Baroni

Detroit, May 25 (AP).—Piety, C. V. Whitney's filly, scored another victory at the Michigan State Fair Grounds today, when he beat a small field in the fifth race for three-year-olds and up at one mile. The race, an $800 claiming event, brought together a good field. Biff, which ran yesterday, set the early pace, but at the upper turn, Jockey Jacobs gave the Whitney filly her head and she romped out to win by four lengths, with Biff second, three-quarters of a length in front of Six Bells.

A. A. Baroni claimed Piety after the race for $2,500.

S. P. Railroad Nets $827,325; Halts Losses

National Dairy Products Votes Regular Dividend Of 30 Cents.

San Francisco, May 25 (AP).—The Southern Pacific Co. reported today that April operations produced a net return of $827,325. This compared with March net of $1,110,632, and with a loss of $107,389 in April, 1933.

Operating revenues totaled $11,491,928 for the month, compared with $11,774,412 in March, while operating expenses were $9,078,675 compared with $9,054,267.

During the first 4 months of this year the company's revenues totaled $43,760,980, a gain of $1,946,262 over the 1933 period.

New York, May 24 (AP).—The National Dairy Products Corporation today declared the regular quarterly dividend of 30 cents on the common stock, payable July 2 to stock of record June 2.

The company's first quarter sales, said Thomas H. McInnerney, were about 20 per cent ahead of the same period last year, but profits failed to show a corresponding gain, being only slightly larger.

The annual report of the National Air Transport Corporation for 1933 shows net loss of $61,950 after charges depreciation and other deductions, compared with profit of $263,304 or 40 cents a share in 1932. The company is controlled by United Aircraft & Transport Corporation which announced reorganization plans recently.

Checker Cab Manufacturing Co. and subsidiaries report net loss in the first quarter of $36,383 after charges compared with net loss of $77,274 in the same quarter in 1933.

Directors of the Safeway Stores Co. have declared the regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents a common share, payable July 1, to stock of record June 19.

Directors of Tide Water Associated Oil Co. today declared a dividend of $2 in payment of arrears on the 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock payable June 30 to stock of record June 8.

General American Transportation Co. and subsidiaries report net profit in the first quarter of $360,285 after charges and taxes equal to 44 cents a share compared with $295,000 or 39 cents a share in the first quarter last year.

Servel, Inc., today reported a net loss of $177,935.50 after a special inventory reserve of $500,000 for the six-month period ended April 30, as compared to a net loss of $574,797.58 for the corresponding period of the 1933 fiscal year.

Railroads reporting net operating income for the month of April included:

	1934	1933
Southern Pacific	$827,328	*$107,389
St. L. Sthw. Sys.	197,704	99,412

*Deficit.

The New York Telephone Co. reported net operating income of $3,649,157 for April, as against $2,804,361 in April, 1933. Income for the first four months of this year totaled $12,964,491, compared with $10,557,419 for the same period last year.

Chicago, May 25 (AP).—While the net operating income of the Illinois Central Railway dropped from $1,446,441 in March to $1,161,069 in April, the April figure was the best for the month since 1930, company officials said. Operating income for the first fourth months of 1934 was reported as $4,642,317, an increase of $1,650,331 over 1933.

San Francisco, May 25 (AP).—Directors of Natomas Co., Sacramento gold dredging firm, placed the company's new stock on a 60-cent annual dividend today by declaring a quarterly dividend of 15 cents a share due July 2 on records of June 15.

The stock was recently split into 10 new shares for one of the old, which was on a $5 annual dividend basis. Natomas reported April net earnings were $79,481.

Baltimore, May 25 (Spl.).—Net operating revenue for the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. for April of this year totaled $1,069,529, as compared with $1,013,963 for the same month in 1933, the company reported to the Maryland Public Service Commission today.

Expenses of operation including taxes amounted to $838,403 for April of this year, which was $54,902 more than for the same month last year.

The company reported that its net operatnig income, $899,626, for the first four months of 1934, was at a rate of 5.8 per cent of the present fixed value of the company; 6.8 per cent on a basis of the valuation of the Federal Court recently put on the property, and 8.2 per cent on the valuation placed by the Public Service Commission.

Robey's Review

NRA Policy of Ordering a Uniform Curtailment of Production in an Industry Prevents Elimination of Economic Unfit.

By Ralph West Robey.

Blanket orders for the curtailment of production in an industry, such as the NRA has just given in the textile field, involves an economic problem upon which it would be valuable to have detailed information. This is the question of the extent to which such an order serves to protect the weak and inefficient units of the industry from the superior productive ability of other organizations. If it does have this effect it means that the consumer definitely is hurt through having to pay a needlessly high price, or, to put it in other words, through failing to get the benefit of the lowest possible cost of production at which his wants could be satisfied.

Whether such a result holds true in the textile field is a problem that can not be answered on the basis of publicly available statistics. There is comparatively little doubt that it does. This is because it fails to be true only when all units in an industry have the same cost of production per unit, a situation that probably does not exist in any field in the United States. In the final analysis, therefore, the question largely is merely one of the degree to which a uniform curtailment order adversely affects the consumer.

Prevents the Weeding-out Of More Inefficient Units.

The answer to this rests upon the variation of costs of production between the various units. If the variation is large, consumers pay a correspondingly higher price than they otherwise would have to. This is because it is only in times of stress in an industry that a vigorous weeding-out process takes place—whereby the inefficient producers are eliminated. In other words, with free and effective competition those who are unable to meet the price reductions that accompany an overabundance of a product on a market, are forced out of existence. Later, with improving conditions, those organizations that have shown greater productive efficiency absorb the increased demand. The output of the entire industry, thus, tends to be produced by the most efficient and the public gets the benefit of having its goods produced at the lowest possible cost.

Under the plan being used by the NRA, however, this corrective process is eliminated. Under it with an overabundance of a product on the market, every unit in the industry is forced to curtail operations by a uniform amount. The efficient producer, accordingly, is hit just as hard as the most inefficient. After the surplus has been worked-off, through keeping production below consumption for a period, we still have the same old inefficient units, the same surplus productive capacity, and the same proportion of the output concentrated in the hands of the high cost producers. And prices, of course, will be held at a level that will cover the cost of production of these inefficient units.

Other Side Has Two Points in Its Argument.

The other side of the argument is that by following the blanket-curtailment scheme two purposes are served: First, employment is spread, each worker being employed merely, say, 25 per cent less time instead of a quarter of all those in the industry being thrown out of work entirely; and secondly, such a plan prevents the buying-up of embarrassed organizations at small cost and turning out products at bankrupting prices.

There is, admittedly, real strength in these points. This strength, nevertheless, must not be permitted to hide the fact that such a policy can at best be justified only in meeting an emergency, not in the industry in question, but in the entire economic system. The issuing of such blanket orders "freezes" an industry and tends to prevent that continuous readjustment that is essential for economic progress and the improvement of our standard of living. It is, in a word, a levy upon consumers for the benefit of entrepreneurs. Temporarily the imposition of such a levy may be justified; as a permanent policy it would be ruinous.

Curb's Prices Improve in Dull Trading

List Closes Steady Under Record Light Sale of 102,000 Shares.

New York, May 25 (AP).—The curb market closed a little better than steady today but no corresponding improvement was noted in volume, which was extremely light. Transfers, which approximated only 102,000 shares, represented the smallest total for a full trading session since March 30, 1933.

Fractional variations predominated in final prices, with a few specialties, as usual, ranging wider. Sherwin Williams recovered nearly 3 points following a sinking spell early in the week. Waco Aircraft and Hiram Walker firmed a point, but Schiff Co., and New Jersey Zinc dropped back a couple points each.

Electric Bond & Share, Standard Oil of Indiana, Lake Shore, Technicolor and Imperial Oil were virtually unchanged. Greyhound eased a trifle under profit taking, while Tubize Chatillon and Celanese first preferred yielded fractionally under the influence of price unsettlement in the textile industry.

The new stock created by the reorganization of the United Aircraft & Transportation Co. were admitted to dealings today on an unlisted basis. They included the United Airlines, United Aircraft and Boeing Airplane issues.

Bond Market Sags in Spite Of Some Gains

Federal and Rail Loans Advance; Sales Up to $12,071,000.

New York, May 25 (AP).—Government issues and high-grade railroad and utility obligations monopolized activities on the bond market today, recording substantial advances which were in contrast to irregularity in second-grade and speculative issues.

Trading was at a slightly accelerated pace, transfers for the day totaling $12,071,000, par value, against $9,500,000 yesterday. Of this amount, dealings in Government issues accounted for about $4,900,000, as compared with only $2,200,000 the previous day.

The average for 60 domestic corporate bonds showed a loss of one-tenth of a point at 85.8.

Home Loan Sales Heavy.

Home Owners Loan 4s and 3s experienced a heavy turnover and both issues went into new high ground with advances of eight thirty-seconds and three thirty-seconds, respectively.

The balance of the Government list closed one thirty-second to eight thirty-seconds higher, and trading was especially heavy in the Treasury 3¼s of 1941.

Many of the better grade railroad and utility loans sold up to or came within striking distance of their previous highs for the year. Gains of around one to three points occurred in some bonds of the Michigan Central Railway, Louisville & Nashville, Portland Railroad, Southern Pacific, Canadian Pacific and Nickel Plate.

On Gaining List.

In the utility group, issues of American Telephone, International Telephone, Detroit Edison, Postal Telegraph, New Orleans Public service and Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit improved major fractions to more than a point.

Second-grade bonds followed no definite trend and the volume of trading was small. Missouri-Kansas-Texas adjustment 5s declined a point and some loans of the Mobile & Ohio, Pan-American Petroleum Corporation, Southern Railroad, Baltimore & Ohio, Boston & Maine, Consolidated Coal, Interborough Rapid Transit and Missouri Pacific were lower. International Mercantile Marine 6s and Bush Terminal 4s gained around a point.

The foreign list was quiet and changes narrow. City of Vienna 6s and City of Berlin 6s were each a point higher, and losses of that much occurred in the Argentines and a few other South American groups.

The Markets at a Glance

What The Stock Market Did.

	Fri.	Thurs.
Advances	318	252
Declines	146	187
Unchanged	134	136
Total issues	598	575

Stocks—Prices advanced nine-tenths as trading proceeded with caution. An undercurrent of returning cheer afforded little comfort to brokers. Transfers barely exceeded the light turnover Thursday, totalling only 535,470 shares.

Bonds—Federal and railway issues advanced, but the general market sagged one-tenth of a point. Secondary bonds forced the averages down. The turnover increased to $12,071,000.

Curb—Extremely light sales marked trading on the curb, but the list closed a little better than steady. The turnover dwindled to 102,000 shares, the smallest since March 30, 1933.

Wheat—The market advanced 2⅝ above previous prices, hoisting corn and oats to the highest points in months. May wheat closed at 93½; corn, at 52⅛; oats, at 36⅞.

Cotton—Cotton prices rallied after early declines of 3 to 4 points. October sold at 11.54. The general market advanced 8 to 10 points. July closed at 11.33.

Rubber — Crude rubber futures closed steady, 27 to 34 points higher. May sold at 12.20; July at 12.35.

Sugar—Raw sugar was unchanged at 2.75; refined sold at 4.20.

Coffee—Spot coffee demand was steady. Santos No. 4 sold at 11¼ to 11½; Rio No. 7 at 10¼.

Silver—Bar silver was steady. It sold in New York ⅛ higher at 44¾ cents per ounce.

Gold—Bar gold sold in U. S. at $35 per ounce. It sold in London at 136 shillings and 6½ pence.

Dollar—The United States dollar was steady on foreign exchanges. It stood in New York, with reference to other currences, $5.09½ to the English pound; 6.60¾ cents to the French franc, and 39.38 cents to the German mark.

Foreign Markets.

London, May 25 (A.P.).—Idleness prevailed on the stock exchange today. Activity and strength in gold mining shares on dividend anticipations was the feature of the session. German bonds held firm, but otherwise the price tendency was easy owing to lack of support. The market closed dull.

Paris—Rentes weakened on the Bourse today, but industrials steadied after two days of heaviness. Gold mining shares advanced sharply. The closing was hesitant.

Berlin—Trading on the Boerse continued hesitant. After a quiet opening, a more cheerful tone was recorded due to the official statement concerning the increased activity in industry. The market closed sustained.

Stocks Crawl Forward in Thin Market

List Gains Nine-tenths as Trading Totals Only 535,470 Shares.

New York, May 25 (AP).—Stocks crept forward cautiously today in another thin market.

Bulls watched indifferently as wheat prices soared, discounting the immediate importance of the rise in grains because it was based chiefly on drought and crop damage reports.

Although there was an undercurrent of returning cheer in the stock market, it afforded little comfort to brokers, burdened with overhead of facilities requiring an average daily volume of some 2,000,000 shares to pay costs.

Transfers Still Low.

Transfers on the stock exchange barely exceeded volume of the preceding session. The total was 535,470 shares.

Modest buying throughout the list was sufficient to extend the creeping upward movement in evidence yesterday. The average price of 90 stocks closed at 77, up nine-tenths of a point.

Outstanding strength was restricted to tobacco shares. Proposals in Congress to cut tobacco taxes 40 per cent motivated the buying. American Tobacco B, Liggett & Myers B, Reynolds and Lorillard picked up gains of fractions to 2 points.

Curtis Preferred Up.

Curtis Publishing preferred advanced more than 2 points as directors declared a dividend of $1.25 a share on the $7 preferred on account of accumulations. Tide Water Associated Oil preferred gained 2 points for a similar reason. Moderate demand carried corn products, Devoe & Reynolds, Allied Chemical and Du Pont up for gains of about 2 points.

Otherwise movements were narrow. American Can, General Motors, United States Steel, American Telephone, New York Central, Southern Pacific and other old leaders showed gains of around a point or less at the close.

The market was subject to conflicting influences. The Toledo situation, threat of a steel strike and other manifestations of labor unrest disturbed sentiment, although it brought out no important liquidation.

Washington Business Angles

By J. R. Brackett.
(Associated Press.)

Literally hundreds of security issues were described authoritatively yesterday as ready for registration with the trade commission as soon as pending amendments to the securities act are passed by Congress and given Presidential approval.

These are issues designed to get funds for industrial and other purposes, which their sponsors reportedly hesitated to float under the original restrictions of the act.

The trade commission expects to expand its staff by about 15 men to a total of 70 and is otherwise preparing for a rush of statements.

If a new securities commission is cut up, as urged by some but opposed by the President, it was deemed probable that the commission's staff would be used as nucleus for the work so that an increase now by the commission is not "jumping the gun."

Securities officials of the commission also had for study today the reported plan of a group of New York bankers to float an issue of local transportation bonds without regard to the securities act.

The bankers were said to believe that if the bonds were sold only in New York State, the transactions would not be in Interstate Commerce and therefore would be outside the act.

Commission officials declined a formal opinion on the question but it was said that so long as the transaction was entirely within New York there probably could be no objection.

"In New York" means there could be no advertising that went across State lines, no interstate telephone calls, or use of the mails, or sale of securities for later resale out of the State.

Officials do not believe the suggested transaction is applicable to many security issues.

Wool Markets.

Boston, May 25 (A.P.).—(U. S. Dept. Agriculture).—Inquiries for wool were received in the Boston market, but the actual trade was very limited. Buyers operating in bright wool States reported that their bids were being rejected more freely. According to reports from members of the Boston wool trade, prices to growers advanced in some sections. Asking prices on spot wool here showed no change on fleece and territory lines.

Wheat Values Jump; Corn, Oats Advance

Market Reaches Topmost Point Witnessed Since February 5.

Chicago, May 25 (AP).—Soaring 3¼ cents a bushel today, wheat reached topmost prices since February 5, hoisting also corn and oats to the highest point witnessed in months.

Broadened speculative demand became manifest for wheat in particular, largely owing to intensified drought damage conditions over the Canadian and American spring crop belt, and because of sharply reduced estimates of European crops.

Predictions of renewed excessive heat in drought territory Northwest attracted special attention, with no immediate prospect of moisture relief.

Estimates of Cuts.

Some trade estimates current suggested that France, Germany, Italy, Great Britain, Rumania, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Hungary and Czechoslovakia would produce 269,000,000 bushels less wheat this season than last year.

Wheat closed strong at virtually the day's maximum prices, 2⅝ to 3¼ above yesterday's finish, corn ⅞ to 1⅝ up, oats 1⅛ to 1⅝ advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 7 cents.

Biggest gains in wheat values with most activity of trading came in the final half hour of business here. For a while, the brisk upward swing of the markets was led by Winnipeg, but later Minneapolis went to the front, and scored 4⅛ cents gain.

Exporters at Winnipeg were reported as good buyers, and there were messages saying that after 900 miles drive in southwestern Manitoba and southern Saskatchewan a Winnipeg grain man declared the present outlook in that part of the prairie provinces was for a near crop failure.

Probable Reduction.

Giving emphasis to adverse crop prospects both sides of the Atlantic were United States Department of Agriculture advices indicating 100,000,000 bushels probable reduction of the 1934 wheat output of the Danubian Basin.

Drought damage in the Danube region was reported as especially severe of late, and the curtailment indicated would imply one of the smallest crops ever raised along the Danube, leaving little or nothing for export. Another bullish factor was word that during the time for preparation and seeding of wheat in Argentina this season, there had been unusual lack of moisture, the supply totaling less than a third of normal.

Corn and oats followed the action of wheat, although the Government-sponsored buying, so conspicuous a feature of the corn market yesterday, was not in evidence today.

Provisions rallied at the last, responsive to strength of grains.

China Is Expected To Import Wheat

Foreign Grain Needed to Mix With Native Product.

While the Chinese market for foreign flour may be expected to decline in view of the recent imposition of an import duty of from 20 to 25 per cent, China will undoubtedly continue to import certain quantities of wheat as essential for the mixing with its own product, according to Commercial Attache Julean Arnold in a report to the Commerce Department.

It is not generally understood, Arnold points out, that China's wheat production is on a level with that of the United States and also that the country is both a large producer and consumer of wheat flour. In addition to local production considerable quantities of wheat are imported, averaging between 35 and 40 million bushels annually for the past few years.

Consumption of wheat products among the Chinese people, it is pointed out, is increasing. The modern style flour mills in China have an annual output of approximately 25,000,000 barrels of flour, but a large proportion of the rural population use flour ground in old style stone mills, or as part of the domestic handicraft industry of the household.

Pneumatic Casings Sales Jump to 4,222,962

New York, May 25 (AP).—Pneumatic casing shipments for March were 4,222,962 units, compared with 3,284,910 in February and 2,091,878 for the same month last year, according to the Rubber Manufacturers Association. Production was 3,180,122 casings, compared with 3,335,092 for February and 2,037,899 for March last year.

Stock in the hands of manufacturers on March 31 totaled 11,650,661 casings, against 10,725,032 in February and 7,289,976 a year ago.

D. C. Bankers Leaving Today For Session

Leaders to Address Parley at White Sulphur Springs on Live Topics.

By motor, airplane and special train, delegates to the sixteenth annual convention of the District of Columbia Bankers Association will leave today for the gathering at the Greenbrier, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

The completed program of live topics includes as speakers Robert V. Fleming, Riggs National Bank; Merle Thorpe, editor, Nation's Business; Corcoran Thom, president, American Security & Trust Co.; Francis G. Addison, jr., president, Security Savings & Commercial Bank; Ralph Endicott, assistant treasurer, Washington Loan & Trust Co.; Frederick P. H. Siddons, secretary, American Security & Trust Co., and Hilleary G. Hoskinson, a vice president of Riggs National Bank.

George O. Vass, vice president and cashier, Riggs National Bank, is president of the association, and Thomas J. Groom, vice president and cashier, Bank of Commerce & Savings, is general chairman of the convention.

In addition to the original program, arrangement for a night session on the first day of the assembly has been made. This session will be conducted by Henry H. McKee, president, National Capital Bank. Topics to be discussed are the current problems of bank operation and management, with particular relation to recent legislation affecting banking.

Nearly 50 women will accompany the bankers and ample provision has been made for the entertainment by a committee headed by Mrs. George O. Vass. Dates arranged for this convention have been so fixed that only two days' actual absence from business will occur and the bankers will be back at their desks on Thursday morning, the last day of the month.

Orders Placed For 15,964 Freight Cars

Class I railroads of the United States on May 1 had 15,964 new freight cars on order, according to reports just received by the Car Service Division of the American Railway Association and made public yesterday. On the same day last year, 1,561 new freight cars were on order and on the same date two years ago, there were 2,812.

The railroads on May 1 this year also had 21 new steam locomotives on order and 107 electric locomotives. New steam locomotives on order on May 1, 1933, totaled three and on the same date in 1932, there were 31 on order. No figures are available to show the number of new electric locomotives on order in previous years.

In the first four months of 1934, the railroads installed 1,091 new freight cars. In the same period last year, 893 new cars were placed in service and for the same period two years ago, the total number installed was 1,341.

Workers Will Return.

Fredericksburg, Va., May 25 (Spl.).—Approximately one-quarter of the 105 idle workers of the General Textile plant, which closed because of lack of orders on May 15, will be put back to work Monday morning.

Lead Prices Fall As Silver Turns Easier

Copper Buying Moderate; Zinc Unsettled; Tin Holds Dull.

New York, May 25.—Except for a fairly active buying movement in lead that followed an unexpected reduction in the price, major nonferrous metals passed through a quiet week, Metal and Mineral Markets reports today.

Buying of copper in the domestic market continues restricted, and no change is looked for in the conservative attitude of buyers until all code problems have been settled. The foreign price of copper declined.

Zinc was unsettled on news that some business was booked during the week at slight concessions. Tin was dull. The developments in Washington in reference to silver disappointed traders, and the market eased yesterday in spite of "special" buying that was generally understood to be for Government account.

Domestic buying of copper has not been sufficient in volume to bring about the much-talked-of rise in prices. The Code Authority's quotation remained at 8.50c, Valley, throughout the week. The "book" for the first three months has not yet been absorbed, but producers see enough business ahead to take care of the 30,000-ton monthly sales quota. Sales of "Blue Eagle" copper during the last week amounted to about 3,700 tons.

Total sales of lead last week exceeded 11,000 tons; such was the effect of the May 17-18 downward revision of prices. The first decrease in price, that of May 17 to 4.15 cents, New York, and 4 cents, St. Louis, had little influence on demand, but the next day when the contract settling basis was reduced to 4 cents, New York, and the principal seller in the West quoted 3.85 cents, St. Louis, an "old-time" buying wave was created, with more than 5,000 tons being booked on that one day.

Buying of zinc fell short of expectations, and a little competition for business resulted in some uncertainty over the price structure. Most operators showed no desire to cut under 4.35 cents, St. Louis, but it develops that business was put through on May 21 at 4.30 cents.

Canada's Trade Activity Still Points Upward

Imports in April Rise 70 Per Cent Over 1933 Period.

New York, May 25.—Asserting that the trend toward recovery in Canada has continued without interruption, the Bank of Montreal in its current business summary points out that external trade of the Dominion made a striking increase last month when imports rose $14,385,000, or 70 per cent over the corresponding month last year, and domestic exports increased $11,571,000, or 57.5 per cent.

"These are remarkable figures," says the bank. "They reveal the largest volume of commerce in April since 1931, attributable in the case of exports largely to the empire preferential tariff agreements and in the case of imports to the rising tide of business activity within Canada."

Among industrial production records commented on by the bank, newsprint again stood high with an output of 206,500 tons, compared with 210,129 tons in March and 174,000 tons in February. Iron and steel production was firmly maintained.

Automobiles contributed one of the notable records of the month in a rise from 14,180 produced in March to 18,363 in April, compared with 8,255 in April, 1933.

Western States' Trade Activity Is Increased

New York, May 25.—Business in the Western United States during the month of April reached the highest point in the last two years, according to the Bank of America (California) index figure published in the bank's Business Review for May.

The index figure registered 65 last month, the highest point in the preceding 24 months and a gain of 15 per cent over April 1933.

Cotton Market Climbs After Early Losses

July Closes at 11.33 a General Market Rises 8 to 10 Points.

New York, May 25 (AP).—Further declines of 3 or 4 points during today's early trading were followed by rallies in cotton today.

Trade buying and covering promoted by reports of strength in wheat, and an improvement in the stock market aided the upturn. July contracts sold up from 11.22 to 11.39 in the late trading, and closed at 11.33 with the general market steady at net advances of 8 to 10 points.

The opening was barely steady at a decline of 1 to 3 points under liquidation and selling on reports of continued favorable weather.

Trade Takes Offerings.

Offerings were taken by the trade, however, and after showing net losses of about 2 to 4 points right after the call the market turned steadier.

December sold up from 11.53 to 11.71, making a rally of about 18 points from the lows of the morning and net advances of from 12 to 15 points on active positions. Closing prices were several points off from the best under realizing.

The Liverpool market was closed today and will remain closed until next Monday morning and the holiday there probably had a restricting effect on trading, although some Liverpool buying of March was reported on all resting orders on the early decline.

There was a moderate volume of July liquidation, but it was said to be absorbed by the trade without much change in the differences between months.

Exports today 3,847, making 6,843,987 so far this season. Port receipts, 4,471. United States port stocks, 2,869,184.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was more active and prices were easier today under increased liquidation and hedge selling which seemed to center principally in the September position, with some months selling at new low records for the season.

There was a partial rally from the lowest on covering influenced by the strength of gains, and the better tone to cotton, stocks and lard. Final prices were 7 to 11 points net lower. Sales 90 contracts. Bleachable spot nominal; May closed 4.90, July 5.05, September 5.23, October 5.32, December 5.48.

Wool Demand Better; Prices Close Lower

Boston, May 25 (AP).—The Commercial Bulletin will say: "A demand for wool of fair proportions has sprung up this past week or ten days at the lower price level, at which bright fleeces have been available. This movement has been on the medium quality wools chiefly, which have declined ten cents a pound in the grease from the high point of last fall. Territory wools, which still are maintained near the peak level of prices, evidently are regarded by the manufacturers as too dear, except for some special use or to complete a blend already established.

"In the West there is little change. Consignments are the rule in the Far West, while in the bright wool sections medium wools of the best type are selling around 25 to 26 cents to the farmer and fine wools at 20 to 23 cents, according to locality.

Foreign markets are still rather slow, but are a bit steadier in price than they were.

"Mohair is still dull and prices are unchanged for the week."

The Bulletin will publish the following quotations for domestic:

Ohio and Pennsylvania fleeces—Delaine unwashed, 32@33; ½ blood combing, 30@31; ⅜ blood combing, 32@33; ¼ blood combing, 31@32.

Michigan and New York fleeces: Delaine unwashed 26@29; ½ blood combing 27@29; ⅜ blood combing 32@33; ¼ blood combing 31@32.

Wisconsin, Missouri and average Indiana and New England ½ blood combing, 27@28; ⅜ blood combing, 31@32; ¼ blood combing, 30@31.

The Federal Diary

By Morgan Baker.
(Trade-mark Applied For)

Reprinted from yesterday's last edition.

OVERTIME work has become an institution in various Veterans' Administration offices in the field, with the apparent tacit Washington headquarters, is the charge made to E. Claude Babcock, president of the American Federation of Government Employes, by one of the A. F. G. E. members.

BAKER

"The clerical employes at acquiescence of these various Veterans' Administration facilities are performing an average ten-hour day service (instead of the usual seven hours) on work which requires concentration, close application and responsibility," the employe writes.

"As a single instance," the statement continues, "in the adjudication offices of the Veterans' Administration facility at Batavia, N. Y., the following hours are being enforced: Week days (except Saturdays), 8:30 a. m. to 12 m.; 12:30 to 5 p. m.; 6 to 8 p. m. Saturdays, 8:30 a. m to 12 m.; 12:30 to 5 p. m."

Th A. F. G. E. member further charges that "this is a clear indication that superior officers are endeavoring to make a showing for themselves at the expense of their subordinates, in order to curry favor with headquarters at Washington."

The labor leader points out that if this program of overtime is permitted to continue unchallenged, especially in view of the approaching hot summer months, with restricted annual leave in addition, "there is no foretelling what further sacrifices may be imposed on these employes."

Fishing Excursion.

Back from a fishing excursion near Solomons Island, six engineers of the Bureau of Animal Husbandry showed a long string of trout, hardheads, and bluefish to substantiate the customary fish tales. Theirs is said to be the largest catch this season in the Bay area. On the party were Hugh Council, Francis Lore, E. T. Davis, Clyde Nicoll, Robert Jordan and Otto Myers.

OFFICERS to lead the Adjutant General's Office, War Department, Local No. 372, National Federation of Federal Employes, through another successful year have just been installed. Miss Elizabeth S. Kilgore (*), retiring president, inducted the following:

Charles Kothe, Executive Division, president; Miss Grace E. Reardon, Enlisted Division, first vice president; Emory J. Tarr, Old Records Division, second vice president; Miss Marie Mazourek, Publications Division, third vice president; Albert Harmon, Old Records Division, secretary-treasurer, and Miss Beatrice C. Robertson, Publications Division.

An executive board also was named, consisting of Harry W. Wanner, Executive Division; Samuel J. Snyder, Officers Division, and John J. Crites, World War Division.

Delegates to the District Federation of Federal Employes elected are Mr. Kothe, Miss Reardon, Mr. Tarr, Louis A. Rosafy, Old Records Division, and Harvey B. Gram, Selective Service Division. Alternates are Walter E. Keeton, Executive Division; Miss Viola C. Milnes, Selective Service Division, and Miss Bertha D. Brown, Old Records Division. Mr. Harmon also is secretary-treasurer of the District Federation.

Diary Guest Tickets.

IF your name is followed by (*), call in person on the Federal Diary editor the same day. You will receive tickets to Loew's Columbia (George Arliss in "The House of Rothschild"); or to Loew's Palace (Clark Gable and Myrna Loy in "Manhattan Melodrama"); or to Loew's Fox (stage, Herb Williams and super-vaudeville show; screen, John Boles, in "Stand Up and Cheer.").

Diary office hours are: Daily except Sunday, 12 m. to 1 p. m., and from 4:30 to 6 p. m. Saturday, 12 m. to 2:30 p. m.

Popular Employe Passes.

Employes at Tariff Commission are mourning the death of Joseph P. Gregory, a staff accountant for 11 years. Mr. Gregory died Wednesday at Walter Reed Hospital. The funeral will be held at his home, 21 Girard street northeast, at 8:30 a. m. tomorrow and thence to St. Martin's Catholic Church. Burial with military honors will follow in Arlington Cemetery.

Pall bearers will be L. W. Moore, S. W. Pitts, T. H. Joyce, W. J. Dedicott, K. L. Stone and B. Weissbrod, his close friends at Tariff Commission. Mr. Gregory was a captain in the Sanitary Corps in France during the World War and later served in the Surgeon General's Office here.

School children from the District and various parts of Maryland have been visiting the Animal Husbandry Farm at Beltsville for educational purposes. The farm has been receiving as many as 400 and 500 of these students each week.

Limericks a la Chaz.

There was a young girl from Elmira,
Whose boss would get mad and then fira,
But when she would cry,
He'd heave a long sigh,
And turn right around and re-hira.

A young fellow from Montezuma,
Encountered a terrible ruma,
That he had no sense,
His wrath was intense,
'Til he heard they meant "sense of huma."

—A. Chasanow (*), Navy.

Postettes.

Miss Carolyn E. Eidhammer, of Virginia, has been appointed to a position in Soil Erosion Service, Interior.

Mrs. Marguerite McGinty, Engineering Section, I. C. C., enjoyed a trip to New York recently.

O. L. Mohundro, Docket, I. C. C., is back at his desk after a sad trip to Kentucky, where he attended the funeral of his father.

W. H. Drane Lester (*), Division of Investigation, Justice, has been awarded second prize for his essay in the recent "Why Buy a Home in 1934" essay contest.

Robert Abbott Gorham (*), Treasury, will marry Miss Eloise Herring, June 2.

L. Nelson Lee (*), Accounting Division, RFC, is back at his desk after having his tonsils removed.

Old Engines to End As Parts of Bridge

Eureka, Calif. (U.P.).—Two locomotives which were puffing from Humboldt County's redwood forests 50 years ago, hauling logs from which early Californians hewed a great Western empire, are about to fall before the march of progress.

The locomotives, constructed in 1887 by the Baldwin Locomotive Works, will end their periods of service as scrap steel to be used in reinforcing the mammoth San Francisco Bay Bridge, wrecking company officials announced.

DORIS IRENE TAYLOR, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Taylor, Veterans' Administration, will dance tonight and tomorrow night in the Hoffman & Hoskins Revue at the Wardman Park Theater.

Swanee at Front Royal.

Swanee A. C. will travel to Front Royal, Va., to morrow to meet the Front Royal All-Stars. Manager Rosenberger of the Swanees is booking games at Adams 10283.

By virtue of a certain deed of trust duly recorded in Liber No. 6377, Folio 435 et seq., of the land records of the District of Columbia, and at the request of the party secured thereby, the undersigned trustees will sell, at public auction, in front of the premises, on MONDAY, THE FOURTH DAY OF JUNE, A. D. 1934, AT FOUR O'CLOCK P. M., the following-described land and premises, situate in the District of Columbia, and designated as and being Lot 14 in David B. Gottwal's subdivision of part of block 14 "Trinidad" as per plat recorded in Liber County 11, Folio 96, of the records of the Office of the Surveyor of the District of Columbia, subject to covenants of record.

TERMS OF SALE: One-third of the purchase-money to be paid in cash, balance in two equal installments, payable in one and two years, with interest at 6 per centum per annum, payable semiannually from day of sale, secured by deed of trust upon the property sold, or all cash, at the option of the purchaser. A deposit of $300.00 will be required at time of sale. All conveyancing, recording, &c., at cost of purchaser. Terms of sale to be complied with within 15 days from day of sale, otherwise the trustees reserve the right to resell the property at the risk and cost of defaulting purchaser, after five days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C.

G. PERCY McGLUE,
WILLIAM P. NORMOYLE,
Trustees.

Cool—Comfortable—"Come Out"

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix
For further proof address the author, inclosing a stamped envelope for reply. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

One of the strangest methods of hatching eggs known is that employed by the gaff-topsail catfish. In the incubating process the male does all the work; the female's duties end when the eggs are laid. The male fish takes the eggs in his mouth, and keeps them there until the young hatch. The fry are unable to swim at first, so the male takes care of them for another week or so, letting them nest in his mouth.

The fish grows to be about two feet long, and has a very large mouth in proportion to its body. In a single fish's mouth as many as 50 eggs have been found, each of them nearly an inch in diameter. They must be carried in the mouth for at least a month, and during this time the male can not eat. The prolonged fast seems to work no particular hardship on the father, or at least causes him no permanent injury.

Theodore (Red) Breitenstein, well known National League pitcher back in the 90's, won for himself an all-time honor when he pitched a no-hit, no-run game in his first start. Up to that time he had pitched relief, but never started a game. In his no-hit, no-run game only 27 men faced him—one man was walked but he was tagged out trying to steal second.

Walter Marty's record jump was not made under official supervision, hence is not recognized as a world mark even though it exceeds the official record.

BETTER CONDITIONED CARS ALWAYS
BUT you actually PAY NO MORE for one than you would for an ordinary used car.
We endeavor to BETTER CONDITION our traded cars before offering them for sale, because the average USED CAR BUYER cannot afford a new car, and therefore shops around to find the BEST LOOKING, BEST CONDITIONED CAR he can for the amount of money he has to pay. We fully realize the importance of selling this type of prospect the VERY BEST CAR for the price he can afford
Because he is the BEST POTENTIAL NEW CAR BUYER, and because of the great amount of satisfaction he enjoys from the dependable service of a "T. M. C. BETTER CONDITIONED CAR" he naturally becomes a "BOOSTER" — a "GOOD WILL MAN" in the field.
We Know
a "SATISFIED CUSTOMER is OUR GREATEST ASSET."
Inspect our stock of better conditioned cars before you buy any car at any price! !
Besides a selection of CHEVROLETS and FORDS, you will find 15 OTHER MAKES—coupes, coaches and sedans.

Walt Mason, Himself

Improving Moments.

"Improve each moment as it flies," remarked the sage, severe and wise. The sage himself had lazy streaks, that lasted six or seven weeks, and then he let the moments slide, without their being beautified. "Catch, then, oh catch the shining hour," exclaimed this man of mental power, and he would catch an hour, betimes, and hand out highly moral rhymes, and maxims which were good as wheat, to guide our erring mortal feet. But he'd grow weary doing well, and then he'd loaf for quite a spell, and let the shining hours go ride adown the steep toboggan slide. He'd lie all day upon his couch and nurse a most unseemly grouch, and growl at people like a bear, and sometimes he would snort and swear. But when he lay upon his bier, and people sized up his career, his average seemed pretty high; in catching hours he had been spry. We can't be always at our best, some days we're stale and lacking zest. If we just strive to do our share, improving moments here and there, and catching hours as they whiz past, we'll get due credit at the last. We are no worse than other men if we miss moments now and then.

THE BUNGLE FAMILY — A Busy Day — By Harry J. Tuthill

LATE AGAIN THIS EVENING. IMAGINE A MAN IN THE DETECTIVE BUSINESS WHO CAN'T EVEN FIND HIS WAY HOME UNTIL....
WHAT A DAY! WE OPENED THE SAFE. IT WAS FULL OF SILVERWARE. WHILE WE WERE LOOKING AT IT WHO WALKED IN BUT THAT PHONY MAJOR AMBUSH AND...
R.E.G. U.S. PAT. OFF. 5-26
GEORGE, TALK SLOWER.
WHERE, HE SAID TO US, DID YOU TWO BURGLARS GET ALL THOSE SECOND-STORY SOUVENIRS? WHILE I WAS ORDERING HIM OUT WHO WALKED IN BUT MRS. DARDANELLA.
THAT VAMP.
WELL, ONE WORD LED TO ANOTHER AND THE NEXT THING I KNOW SHE BELTED HIM ON THE HEAD WITH A PARASOL. AFTER HERMAN AND I FANNED HIM FOR A MINUTE OR SO HE RAN OUTSIDE AND...
SHE REALLY STRUCK HIM? WELL I'M NOT SURPRISED. OH ISN'T SHE BOLD?
WAIT, THERE'S MORE. THEN MRS. DARDANELLA LOOKED AT THE SILVER IN THE SAFE, THE INITIALS ON IT, AN E. AND RECOGNIZED IT AS BELONGING TO MONTGOMERY EL DORADO. TIE THAT FOR ODD STUFF.

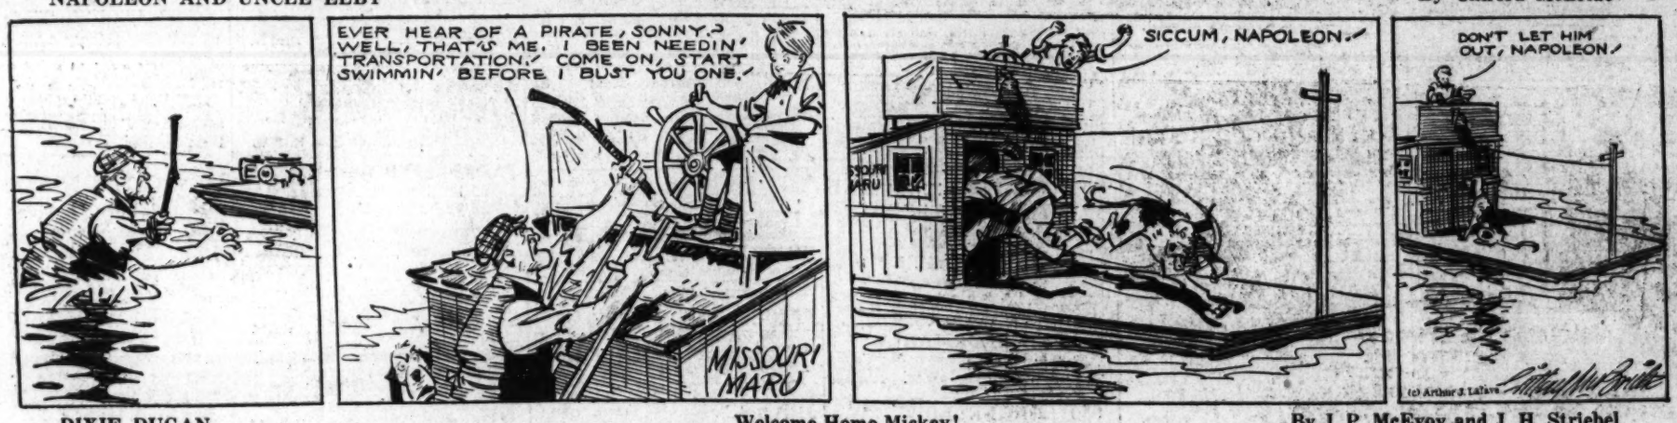
WELL—WHAT IF HE DOES?—HE'S GOT HIS FIVE HUNDRED SMACKERS, AIN'T HE?
SURE—BUT WHEN HE FINDS OUT I LET HIM STAY, I'M SCARED HE'LL TRY TO GIVE THE MONEY BACK!

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY — By Clifford McBride



E.O.
EVER HEAR OF A PIRATE, SONNY? WELL, THAT'S ME. I BEEN NEEDIN' TRANSPORTATION. COME ON, START SWIMMIN' BEFORE I BUST YOU ONE.
MISSOURI MARU
SIOCUM, NAPOLEON.
DON'T LET HIM OUT, NAPOLEON.

DIXIE DUGAN — Welcome Home Mickey! — By J. P. McEvoy and J. H. Striebel

YOU'RE LOOKIN' WONDERFUL
I SHOULD! WE HAD A WONDERFUL, HEAVENLY, GLORIOUS MAGNALOOFALUS TIME!
McNaught Syndicate, Inc., N. Y.
-AN' THOSE BOXES ARE FULL OF PRESENTS FOR EVERYBODY
WHY, MICKEY!—YOU SHOULDN'T HAVE SPENT ALL THAT MONEY SAY!—YOU DON'T KNOW WHOM YOU'RE TALKING TO, TO WHOM, TO WHOM!—WAIT 'TILL YOU HEAR!

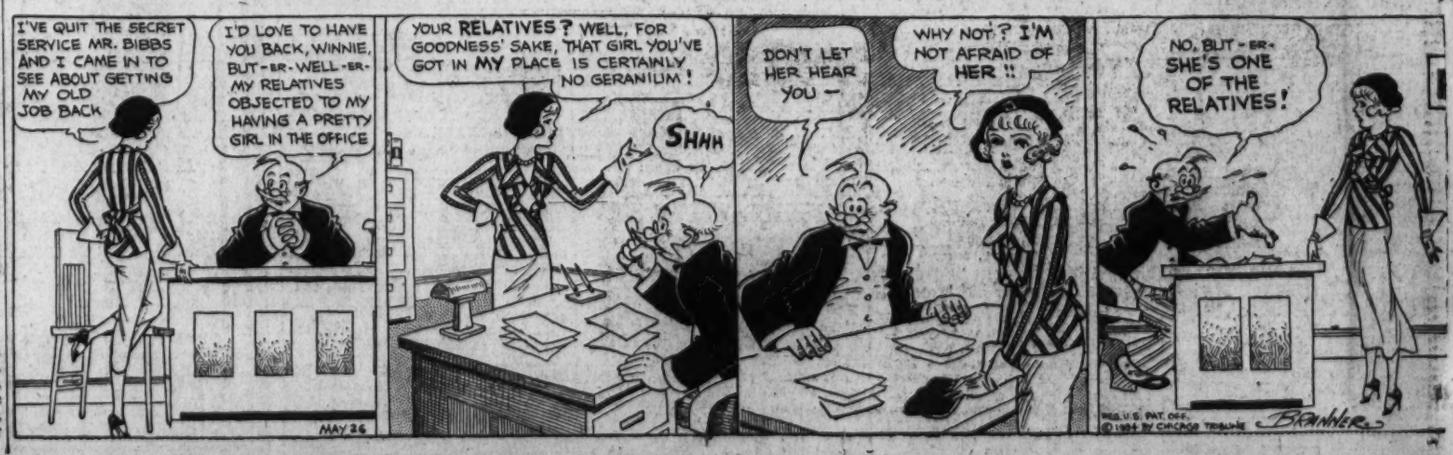
THE GUMPS — The Clouds Are Lifting

GOOD NEWS, MRS. DE STROSS—I JUST TALKED TO THE JUDGE—HE'S A PERSONAL FRIEND OF MINE—EVERYTHING LOOKS GREAT—WE OUGHT TO HAVE BIM GUMP ON HIS KNEES BEGGING FOR A SETTLEMENT BY THE END OF NEXT WEEK—
OH, MILLIE, DARLING—I HAVE SUCH GOOD NEWS—IF WE WIN THIS DECISION IN COURT NEXT WEEK, WE'LL HAVE EVERYTHING BIM GUMP OWNS TIED UP—HE WON'T BE ABLE TO TOUCH A PENNY OF HIS WHOLE FORTUNE—HE'LL BE POORER THAN WE ARE—OH, WHAT THOSE GUMPS WILL SAY IF WE WIN—AND OUR ATTORNEY IS A CLOSE FRIEND OF THE JUDGE—JUST THINK!
HE WOULDN'T DARE TO FIGHT A SETTLEMENT THEN—WE'LL HAVE HIM RIGHT WHERE WE WANT HIM—AND WE WON'T LET GO TILL WE SEE THAT $10,000,000.—TUCKED AWAY IN OUR BANK ACCOUNT—OH, MILLIE—IMAGINE $10,000,000.—
SIDNEY SMITH

DICK TRACY — The Missing J. Scotland Bumpstead

TRACY! HEY..ARE YOU OKAY!
THERE—TAKE THAT TEAR-BOMB!
LIKE A RAT SPRINGING FROM A HOLE, STEVE BOUNDS OUT OF THE TEAR-GAS INFESTED TREE-TRUNK, EYES STREAMING WITH TEARS. IT'S THE WARDEN'S OPPORTUNITY TO SHOOT, BUT HIS ATTENTION IS TAKEN UP BY THE WOUNDED TRACY...
DON'T REACH FOR THAT RIFLE, WARDEN—AND DON'T FOLLOW ME! NEXT TIME I'LL KILL YOU!
WHERE IS J. SCOTLAND BUMPSTED? WHY DOESN'T HE COME TO THEIR AID????

WINNIE WINKLE, the Breadwinner — Business Relations



I'VE QUIT THE SECRET SERVICE MR. BIBBS AND I CAME IN TO SEE ABOUT GETTING MY OLD JOB BACK
I'D LOVE TO HAVE YOU BACK, WINNIE, BUT-ER-WELL-ER-MY RELATIVES OBJECTED TO MY HAVING A PRETTY GIRL IN THE OFFICE
MAY 26
SHHH
DON'T LET HER HEAR YOU—
WHY NOT? I'M NOT AFRAID OF HER!!
NO, BUT-ER-SHE'S ONE OF THE RELATIVES!
